INCOME TAX INCREASE VOTED IN HOUSE

Exit, One Turk.
Grand Monarch Cheerful.
Billion, Number One.
Gold in the Kalahari.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

AHMED OSMAN, executed in the Massachusetts electric chair on Tuesday, was the first Turkish citizen, and the first Mohammedan, ever executed in Massachusetts.

He spent his last hours going through the ritual of his religion, although Mohammed never made special provision for an electric chair, electricity being unknown in his day.

THE PRISON offered him his choice of three assorted clergymen to accompany him to the death chair, two Christian, the third not. But they could offer him no Mohammedan comforter, so he refused and went alone.

Two thousand volts of electricity, applied three times, perhaps made him realize that there are conditions ahead of us not dreamed of by Mohammed.

IF YOU are not prejudiced against high-sounding titles, supposed to have been abandoned in this country when we broke away from England and royalty, you will be interested to know that Mr. Sieber, of Akron, O., "grand monarch of the Mystic Order of the Enchanted Realm of the United States and Canada," inspecting his various "grottoes" throughout the country, finds cheerfulness and a better feeling everywhere.

IT WILL please the conservative, and alarm the ultra-radical, to hear from Mr. Sieber that paternalism, well represented by his grottoes, will "do more than any other single factor to stifle the growth of Communism."

THE GOVERNMENT announces sale of the first billion of 1934 bonds. Nine or ten other billions will come later. Half the billion will pay two and a half per cent interest; the other half, one and a half per cent.

Financial concerns now lending money on call at less than one per cent will gladly buy the bonds, and naturally, as they can get from the government the money to buy the government's own bonds, and then get interest, an amusing "run around a rosy."

THE SECOND, third, fourth, fifth, etc., billions will perhaps not be so easy to sell. There is a limit even to imaginary money since the government must print the money that will pay for the work to be done under its program.

Why, in heaven's name, not print the money and pay it out and redeem it, as the bonds will be redeemed, and save interest payments?

Before the government finishes with retiring "refinancing" and new bond issues, the interest will amount to more than the total ten or twelve billions spent and needlessly borrowed.

You may be tired of this matter, but if you are a taxpayer, you will be more tired of paying interest before you get through with it.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL, holding the world's automobile speed record of three hundred miles an hour, and Sir Alan Cobham, one of the best English fliers, are off to the Kalahari Desert in Africa to hunt for a rich gold reef, supposed to have been located there.

They will look for the gold reef from the air, flying low, and the idea may not be such a bad one.

Flying over a new California oil region with Mr. Kingsbury, president of Standard Oil of California, this writer could see, after they had been pointed out, the "domes" under which oil is found, as plainly as you could see a ring-worm on a child's hand. The oil "dome" is not unlike a ring-worm.

AS IN days when Mr. Dooley described the Dreyfus affair in Paris, so now Frenchmen take an active interest in politics. Royalists, who are dead politically in France but don't know it, imagine, occasionally, that they ought to bring back one of their preposterous kings.

On Tuesday they tore things up in the fashionable Fauborg St. Germain and proved their royalist patriotism on the Boulevard St. Michael, better known as the "Boule Miche," by knocking over the stands of news dealers and florists, soaking them with gasoline and setting them on fire.

At the same time, five thousand Communists fought police on the Boulevard Montparnesse, and other ardent patriots were fighting late into the night around the chamber of Deputies.

When a Frenchman contemplates the American passive acceptance of things as they are, he must be surprised.

AS ONE dictator to another, Mussolini warns Hitler, "Don't step on the toes of Italy," referring to the rumor that Hitler intends to absorb what was left of Austria after the Versailles treaty got through with the Hapsburg empire.

Mussolini's newspaper mouthpiece, Il Lavora, warns Hitler that Italy will stand shoulder to shoulder with France if it comes to Germany swallowing up Austria.

This will shock Hitler, who must feel that all good dictators should stand together in their little ambitions.

AT EAU CLAIRE, Wis., a child, four years old, suffering from dangerous infection of the leg, will have a surgical operation by order of the court.

Its father and mother, believers in "faith healing," say their child "must be healed by the power of God alone." Doctors assured the judge that the child would be permanently crippled, perhaps die, without surgery, and the operation is ordered.

LEVY RAISED ON RETURNS EXCEEDING $7,000

Committee Approves New Revenue Schedule

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The House Ways and Means Committee today voted an increase of $36,000,000 in income taxes—increasing the levy on all taxable income over $7,000 a year—as a part of its proposed sweeping revision of tax laws.

In approving a new schedule of income tax rates, the committee rejected recommendations of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau with one exception. A slight concession was made on earned incomes.

CREDIT RESTORED

A proposal of Representative Bacharach, (Rep.) of New Jersey, to restore the credit for earned income to benefit salaries classes was adopted after being modified.

Under this proposal a 10 per cent deduction from net income would be allowed on earned income up to $8,000 a year, with the first $3,000 being considered earned. The amendment restores only a part of the benefit taken from salaried classes in the 1932 law. It is estimated to cost the Treasury less than $10,000,000.

The committee's proposal provides for one normal income tax rate, with surtaxes beginning on net income over $6,000. The bill carries the surtax rate to 59 per cent on incomes of $1,000,000 or over, to which is added the four per cent, nromal tax.

The new plan will boost thei ncome tax on incomes ranging from $7,000 to $100,000 a year from 10 to 23 per cent, while the increase on incomes above $100,000 is less than 10 per cent.

The heaviest burden will fall upon persons having net income of $10,000 to $20,000 a year, the increase here ranging from 15 to 23 per cent.

The committee yielded to the Treasury by dropping the proposal of its investigating sub-committee for an arbitrary cut of 25 per cent in depreciation allowances and abolition of consolidated tax returns.

Instead, the Treasury promised to tighten up on depreciation and depletion allowances to save $85,000,000 a year. The committee plan would increase the penalty for making consolidated returns from 1 to 2 per cent.

DRASTIC PENALTIES

Drastic penalties upon capital gains and losses were approved. Percentages of gain or loss will be recognized for tax purposes as follows: 100 per cent, if capital asset is held for not over one year; 80 per cent, if held one to two years; 60 per cent, if held two to five years, and 40 per cent, if held for over five years.

The effect is to take more taxes from stock market speculations and other short term investment transactions.

Other action of the committee included:

Personal holding companies taxes 35 per cent on undistributed income; dividends paid out of earnings prior to March 1, 1913, to be taxed; losses on legalized gambling denied except to extent of gains and statute of limitations in favor of Treasury raised to five years.

The committee expects to complete the bill early next week.

New Taxi Hearing Slated for Feb. 14

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Hearing on the application of the Zone Cab Company of Cleveland for a certificate to operate a "nickel-fare" cab service in Pittsburgh will be held February 14 before the Public Service Commission, it was announced today.

The Zone Cab has applied for the right to operate a fleet of lower-priced cabs at a cheaper rate in Pittsburgh in competition with the Parmelee System which now has a monopoly.

Studying Drama!

LIBBY HOLMAN

LIBBY HOLMAN STUDIES DRAMA

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Libby Holman, "torch singer" who was widowed by the bullet which killed Z. Smith Reynolds, heir to tobacco millions, is studying dramatics for what is believed to be an intended Broadway comeback.

In a select class of 12 pupils, she is treading the path which has been beaten to the door of the Hedgerow Theater, in the beautiful little Rose Valley, 25 miles outside Philadelphia.

Jasper Deeter, head of the theater where Ann Harding got her start, directs the class. The husky-throated Broadway star is a "proficient pupil," he says, adding:

"She merely explained that there were some things she would like to 'unlearn.'"

Little more could be learned, because Miss Holman has remained in seclusion since Reynolds was shot at Winston-Salem, N. C., on July 6, 1932. She was indicted in connection with the death, but the case was nol prossed. Her son was born six months later and, in her one interview, the mother said her only plans were for him.

Now the star who packed theaters while she sang "Moanin' Low" and "Something to Remember You By"—the mother of a baby who is expected to receive $2,000,000 from his father's estate—is paying $10 a lesson to learn dramatics.

Fireman Overcome In Blaze, Rescued

Partly overcome by smoke as he battled flames on the roof of a three-story frame dwelling at 6222 Joseph street today, Hoseman Lawrence Schram, of No. 8 Engine Company, was rescued by fellow-firemen who ran up a ladder and assisted him to the ground.

James Pucciarella, 21, of 642 Thompson street, a bystander, suffered hand injuries when he scaled a rear porch pillar and shattered a window to learn whether anyone was in the house.

Seven persons, all Negroes, fled the dwelling.

NUMBERS RAID HOLDS DE BASI

Dapper Carlo De Basi, alias Kelly, self-styled produce yards laborer and follower of Pat O'Malley, Strip political boss, was held for court charged with operating a big numbers lottery, today in Central Police Station.

At the same time, Magistrate Howard B. McNutt reversed yesterday's decision and freed three other men who had been arrested in a raid at 1231 Penn avenue Tuesday. They had been ordered held for court on a similar charge under $2,500 bail each after yesterday's hearing.

Nattily dressed, De Basi, better known, police say as one of the "Kelly brothers" long associated with O'Malley, Second Ward Republican chairman, told the magistrate he was surprised to find that his apartment had been raided and that it turned out to be a number headquarters.

He testified:

"I work as a laborer in the produce yards and don't get home until late. My wife is out of town and a week ago Monday I sub-let part of my home to George Homer who works with

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Three Chicagoans who abducted and flogged W. B. Austin, Jr., young Nashville executive, in what police charged was an attempted extortion plot, were held here today without bond.

Those held were R. L. Sipe, 24; his wife, Mrs. Mary R. Sipe, 23, and Fred Larmonth, 36, all of Chicago. J. N. Jones, 64, of Nashville, the father of Mrs. Sipe, also was arrested.

Policeman Found Slain in Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Harry L. Clapp, Washington policeman, was found shot to death early today slumped across the steering wheel of his police scout car.

'Body' in River Here Proves Only Tree

Police received a dozen 'phone calls tracing the "body's" progress down stream from the Washington Crossing to the Sixth street bridge.

2 WITNESSES GIVE KIDNAP CLUES

Woman Tells of Fight By Banker; Second Gets Car Number

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Two unnamed eye-witnesses, both women, who espied the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, when they seized the wealthy St. Paul banker January 17 and spirited him away, today supplied police with clues that might lead to ultimate apprehension of the gang.

One of the women, it was understood, witnessed the actual abduction from about 20 feet near where Bremer's automobile was halted near the Summit Girls' School after he had left his 8-year-old daughter, Betty.

TELLS OF BATTLE

She related a story of a brief scuffle in the Bremer car as he apparently resisted the kidnapers who have demanded $200,000 ransom. His automobile later was found, the interior splotched with blood.

The second witness was reported to have obtained the license number of the gang's car.

Earlier federal operatives struck out on a new trail, seeking to solve the eight-day enigma of the kidnaping of Bremer by running down the source of two anonymous notes, supposedly penned by the abductors.

Although the contents of the missives were not disclosed it was understood they contained instructions for meeting the kidnapers at their rendezvous for ransoming the son of the principal owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Company.

PLACED IN MAIL BOXES

One of the missives, unsigned, was received Tuesday at the Minneapolis postoffice. The other was brought in yesterday. Both were collected from different mail boxes in that city in the regular course of routine. They were unstamped and addressed to Adolph Bremer, father of the missing man.

Admirer Shoots Estranged Wife, Self

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—An 18-year-old wife and her admirer were shot and wounded today in what police said was a quarrel precipitated by the girl's announced intention to return to her husband, from whom she is estranged.

Mrs. Rita Penz was wounded in the side and William Simpkins, 29, is in a serious condition, shot twice in the chest. Detective Murphy quoted Simpkins as saying:

"I was mad and I couldn't think right. I am sorry now."

Roosevelt, Einstein Talk About Ships

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt and Prof. Albert Einstein, the scientist, talked for nearly an hour today in the presidential office—and the theory of relativity was not mentioned.

They talked about sailing, which Prof. Einstein confessed was his greatest hobby. While they talked, they examined the scores of prints of sailing ships which adorn the walls of the office.

Meddling and Muddling U. S. 'Statesmen' Tie America to Europe, While Public Sleeps

This is the fourth of five articles by William Hillman, London representative and chief of staff of the European correspondents of the Hearst papers.

Mr. Hillman's articles, obtained from state documents or authoritative statements of foreign government officials, probably will give America a clearer insight into the attitude and objectives of the Washington administration than can be obtained from news sources here at home.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

THE UNITED STATES has played a leading role in recent years in the new diplomacy of international intermeddling.

American statesmen have meddled and muddled in affairs of little direct and vital concern of the United States.

And spokesmen and "statesmen" of the present administration, like those of the preceding administration, are apparently determined to continue along the same dangerous path and to go even farther.

These American "statesmen" have intervened in important discussions, guided and misguided European action and opinion by promises which could not be fulfilled, and yet, afraid of public opinion at home, have refused to admit they have intervened.

If Europe accuses the United States of promises which have not been kept, blame can be attributed to meddlesome, muddling American representatives, who defied American public opinion or lulled it to sleep by false representations.

THE UNITED STATES has consistently refused to join the League of Nations.

But with the Kellogg Pact, and with the Stimson interpretation of the pact, and with the recent elaboration of the Stimson doctrine by Norman Davis to abandon neutrality,

'I'LL KILL GIRL,' MADMAN SAYS

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mildred H. Hewey, mother of 15-year-old Loraine, reported missing since January 15, today received a letter in which the writer said it was his intention to kill the girl "because I am crazy."

The writer said he was the one who had perpetrated the atrocious and unsolved slaying of Miss Ethel Zuckerman, 18, in a bakery in the south end section of the city where she was employed as a clerk, about five weeks ago, and announced his intention to slay the Hewey girl in a similar manner.

The Zuckerman girl's body was found pinioned to the floor of the bakery with a bread knife through her throat.

The letter read:

"I am going to kill your girl like I killed Ethel Zuckerman, because I am crazy. I am 36 years old, 6 feet 2, and blue eyes. I wear a gray suit, blue hat and black shoes, and I will kill her soon. I live in the south end of Boston, Mass."

Iraq's Young King Awaits His Bride

BAGHDAD IRAQ, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Ghazi, Iraq's young king, looked forward to seeing his tall, dark-haired young bride today for the first time since both were children—although their betrothal last September virtually amounted to marriage.

Prearranged plans called for the new queen to leave the home of her father for the royal palace today, formally to take her place beside King Ghazi on the throne.

Mussolini Book Profits Go to Needy

ROME, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Premier Benito Mussolini, as author of one of the best selling books in Italy, today contributed his royalties to relief work organized by the Fascist party.

The book is his "Life of Arnaldo," story of the Duce's brother, who succeeded him as editor of the "Popolo d'Italia." The "Life of Arnaldo" in its first four editions has brought $21,000.

Insull 'Very Ill,' Specialist Declares

ATHENS, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—A medical consultation was held today to determine the condition of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, ordered deported from Greece on January 31.

Dr. Voilas, Insull's regular physician, called upon the aged ex-millionaire and then Dr. Maroulis, a heart specialist, was called in. Both doctors stated Insull was "very ill."

MAIL QUIZ HINTS BROWN ARREST

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The administration prepared today to seek early criminal indictment of former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and several others on charges growing out of the ocean and air mail investigation by the Black Senate committee.

The basis also was laid for early action seeking to abrogate some of the ocean and air mail contracts on the ground that they were awarded illegally.

Coincident with these devolpments, the Senate approved a resolution greatly broadening the committee's power by including holding companies and aircraft equipment concerns in the scope of the investigation.

Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, postponed further hearings in the air mail contracts until next week. He conferred with Attorney General Cummings and later with Carl L. Ristine, special assistant to Cummings, who was assigned to handle the government's cases.

Former Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover is implicated by testimony that he, along with Brown, made a bonfire of air mail files which he claimed were "personal" but which the Black committee's investigators claim to have been official.

Hope for Recovery Of Banker Traylor

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Hope for the recovery from an attack of pneumonia of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank, increased today.

His physicians agreed he had an excellent chance to get well, barring unforseen developments.

CAR AFLAME IN EAST END CRASH

'Hank' Byrnes Victim; Injured Companions Saved From Blaze

A well-known East End athlete was burned to death and two friends narrowly escaped a similar fate when their automobile struck a pole and burst into flames in Lincoln avenue, near Apple avenue, early today.

Mr. Byrnes

Francis (Hank) Byrnes, 25, of 6933 Churchland street, football player and trainer of amateur boxers, was dragged from the flaming wreckage, burned almost beyond recognition.

The driver, Henry Byrne, 23, of 7209 Lemington avenue, suffered a broken leg and dislocated hip, and William Fay, 23, of 1636 Lincoln avenue, was burned on his legs and feet. Both were rescued from the car and taken to Pittsburgh Hospital by Joseph Ross, of 1312 Grotto street, and Robert Couts, of 6900 Apple avenue, nearby at the time.

Byrne told Homicide Detectives Robert Carroll and James O'Kane that the steering gear of the car locked, forcing it onto the pavement and into the wooden pole. Couts, walking near the scene of the accident, said the automobile caught fire after the crash and the gasoline tank exploded.

WELL KNOWN IN SPORTS

Byrnes was well-known in amateur boxing and sandlot football circles. He performed in both capacities for the Linwood Club and Corpus Christi. Last football season he was selected as the "All-East Liberty" center.

Michael Byrnes, a brother, was a passenger in a Lincoln avenue street car when the motorman, stopping at the scene, was told that "a Byrnes boy was killed."

Boy Flees Hospital In Nightshirt, Caught

Clad only in a nightshirt and suffering from pneumonia, Clarence Beenus, 18, of New Castle, an inmate of the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza, was arrested early today, shortly after he had fled St. Francis Hospital, according to a police report.

Beenus was removed to the hospital from the institution, and last night, while his nurse was giving medicine to another patient, he ran out, police said.

Boy Reports Seeing First Three Robins

The question of who saw the first robin seems to be settled for 1934. Paul Franklin, Jr., 12, of 5800 Elgin avenue, clinched the honor by reporting three of spring's official welcomers in the East End. Paul said:

"I heard a lot of twittering in the back yard, and looked out the window, and there they were."

Parisians in Pistol Duel Over Bank Scandal

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Four pistol shots echoed through an empty football stadium in the Parc Des Princes on the outskirts of Paris today as Deputy Andre Hesse and John Beineix, a lawyer, fought the first duel to materialize from the Bayonne Bank scandal.

The two men in the middle of the huge athletic field before 20,000 empty benches in a biting cold wind, each firing two shots without result. A score of friends who arrived with the principals were the only spectators besides those who officiated.

The bitterness of their quarrel outgrowth of an article Beineix wrote criticising Heese for his activities as a lawyer for Serge Stavisky while a member of the Chamber of Deputies, was not settled by the "satisfaction of honor." Stavisky founded the fallen Bayonne pawnshop.

Expressing dissatisfaction at the result, the men stalked off the field with their attendants.

Four seconds, two doctors and Jean Joseph Renaud, the director of the duel, supervised the proceedings.

Shortly after the last two bullets had been fired, policemen arrived on the scene, as dueling is unlawful in France. But by that time the group was already leaving by a side gate. In a dozen automobiles they drove rapidly away.

Roosevelt Son, En Route To Mail Quiz, Stops Here

Elliott Roosevelt, the President's son, stopped briefly at the county municipal airport today en route to Washington.

In newspaper parlance, he was on an assignment to cover the air-mail contract hearings before a Senate committee, in his capacity of aviation editor for the Hearst newspapers.

He likes his job, he said, as he talked as one reporter to another.

During his brief stop, he telephoned his father at Washington.

All he knows about the hearings, he said, is what he reads in the newspapers. He expects to obtain material for more Universal Service articles on aviation in the United States.

He was smiling as he stepped from a Transcontinental and Western Air plane, despite more than 24 hours in the air from his home in Los Angeles.

Roosevelt had a word to say about Herbert Hoover, Jr., son of the former President, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the airmail hearings. He said:

"Hoover's son is recognized as one of the foremost radio engineers in the country and obtained and held his position on his merit."

KELLY OFFERS BILL TO CONTINUE FEDERAL RELIEF JOBS

CONSOLIDATION OF ALL UNITS PROPOSED

Measure Would Create Giant Employment Corporation

By JOHN P. COWAN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A bill providing for the co-ordination of all federal relief agencies and insuring continued employment for all the men and women on the rolls after May 1 was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Clyde Kelly, of Edgewood.

Calling for the forming of the National Industrial Adjustment Corporation, the bill paves the way for an organization that would take over all the activities of the PWA, CWA, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, subsistence homesteads and all other federal relief activities.

FIVE DIRECTS

According to Kelly's measure, the corporation would be administered through five directors, appointed by the President, who would be authorized to organize subsidiary corporations to take over the various activities in the state and municipalities and thus provide employment on self-liquidating projects.

The corporation would be financed by the issuance of the corporation's bonds purchased by the Treasury of the United States, and paid for in currency having a 40 per cent gold reserve. The money would be repaid at a rate of 6 per cent, including the interest and amortization charges.

JOBS FOR 4,000,000

Calling attention to the need for providing employment of at least 4,000,000 idle men and women in the country after May 1, next, Kelly declared in a speech in the House that his bill would make good the declaration "Every man willing and able to work shall have a job."

He said the corporation would immediately take over public works now under way at the rate of wages and hours provided under the NRA codes for various industries.

With the increase in production in private industry, he said, the activities of the corporation would be restricted in proportion to the number of workers who would be returned to normal employment.

Kelly declared that the NRA codes must be revised, "the hours downward and the wages upward."

CWA Chief Denies Widespread Corruption

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Graft, greed and corruption is not so rampant or widespread within the Civil Works Administration as recent developments would indicate, Harry Hopkins, CWA Administrator, declared today as his own department and the Department of Justice continued investigations of charges.

While Hopkins was issuing his statement praising the "loyal and devoted workers in the CWA," Washington police announced the second arrest of a CWA worker.

He is J. G. McAlwee, a supervisor in the rent survey. He is charged with "larceny by trick," and was the immediate superior of Thomas E. Archer, already under arrest. Archer was held in $1,500 bond, accused of having forced survey workers to pay nominal sums to get high efficiency ratings.

In defense of his administration Hopkins said:

"There appears to be a widespread misunderstanding as to the extent that graft is present in the Civil Works Administration. As a matter of fact it is of small proportions in terms of the number of persons employed on civil works and of the amount of money expended.

"But any graft in an undertaking of this nature and at the expense of those who have suffered the brunt of the depression is so despicable that when exposed it is quite naturally magnified in the public mind beyond its actual proportions in terms of dollars or malefactions.

Meanwhile, aroused by widespread charges of graft, House Democrats were considering a drive to oust Hopkins.

'STOOLPIGEONS' IN NRA CHARGED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Radical administrative changes in the NRA were foreshadowed today, following a "good-will tour," of congressional and labor offices in the capital, by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Following complaints by Senators Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, and Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, that there are "big business stool pigeons" in the NRA, Johnson visited Nye and Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska.

Next he made an unannounced visit to the American Federation of Labor offices with his labor assistant, Edward F. McGrady, and met with labor chieftains who continued their criticism of various NRA methods and practices.

Following Johnson's visit with the labor heads, it was reported Johnson agreed to an immediate review of charges against some deputy administrators, including those of extreme favoritism.

As a result of Johnson's visit on Capitol Hill, it was expected Nye would accept the chairmanship of a board to which the small manufacturer and businessman may present complaints as to operation of the codes.

BREAD CLASSED AS 'UTILITY'

Bread and coal industries ultimately will be classed as utilities and will come under federal supervision, the same as milk, Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, declared at the concluding session of the Pennsylvania Bakers Association yesterday in the Hotel Schenley.

Robert E. Weaver, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the association.

PWA Considers New Span at Homestead

The new high-level bridge over the Monongahela River at Homestead was taken under consideration by the Public Works Technical Board of Review today, according to an International News dispatch from Washington. It is one of several Pennsylvania public works projects sought by Gov. Pinchot.

PINCHOT BARES REED SNUB

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today announced he did not send a telegram urging support of the proposed expansion of the CWA to United States Senator David A. Reed along with other members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation because he believed the message would have been "of no use."

The Governor's statement continued:

"If Senator Reed had had his way, hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvanians would have starved in the last two years, for federal relief, obtained in spite of Senator Reed, is what has kept the state going."

The Governor charged that Senator Reed, whom he is expected to oppose for the Republican senatorial nomination, "represents the Mellon and big monied interests," who opposed federal relief because it would necessitate higher taxes. The Governor declared:

"Impending elections make some men change like a flash. I can see the symptoms now. The voice of Mellon coming out from under sheep's clothing is a strange phenomenon and it does not convince me."

STATE DEPRIVED OF CWA FUNDS

Complaints that rash expenditure of CWA funds in other parts of the country has deprived Pennsylvania of its share of the money are being expressed in CWA offices here.

To date only $1,200,000 has been spent by the CWA in the county, although $4,000,000 was promised as an allocation in the beginning of the campaign. Since then projects have been approved by Eric H. Biddle, state administrator, which add $3,000,000 to that sum.

Last week's payroll here listed 22,316 employes who received $287,000. Headquarters in Cleveland have announced a payroll for the same week totalling $850,000.

The plea for relaxation of the rule prohibiting employment of more workers here has been denied by Harrisburg, according to James L. Stuart, local administrator. He said Bibble approved the transfer and reclassification of employes but opposed further hiring.

Roscoe Ates' Wife Asks $1,560 Month

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—As Roscoe Ates, stuttering film comedian, speeded eastward today, he carried papers giving notice Mrs. Ates had filed suit for separate maintenance.

The papers were served upon Ates as he boarded a train. Mrs. Ates seeks $1,560 a month.

'STOCK TRUTH' REPORT READY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The Commerce Department's stock market committee was reported authoritatively today to have virtually completed a report on the "truth in securities" law, holding that any stock exchange regulation should be correlated with the act.

President Roosevelt this morning had the committee's report on regulation of the exchanges on his desk and was expected to ticket it shortly to Congressional committees for their information.

Although it recommended no immediate drastic regulation, the White House stood fast on word that some legislation along this line would be requested of Congress before the session ends in fulfillment of the Democratic platform.

Secretary Roper has said that the securities act report probably will contain recommendations for changes, but the extent of those alterations was not publicly known.

QUINN HONORED IN M'KEESPORT

Mayor George H. Lysle, the four councilmen and dignitaries of McKeesport paid honor today to Fire Chief M. J. Quinn, who died Thursday after serving as chief for 35 years.

After requiem high mass at St. Pius Church, the cortege visited each of the four fire stations in McKeesport, halting finally at the Central Fire Station where Quinn had made his headquarters. His roadster, draped in mourning, stood in front of the fire house, and 30 firemen from McKeesport, Duquesne and Port View stood at attention. The fire gong was tolled 12 times in honor of the dead chief.

The casket was removed to Walker Funeral Home, where the chief will lie in state all day. Interment will be tomorrow morning at Titusville.

G. O. P. ATTACKS MONEY BILL AS 'ROBBERY'

Independents to Seek Vote on Mandatory Inflation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—While Republicans shouted "robbery" at the administration money bill in the Senate today, independents in both parties virtually decided to put silver and mandatory inflation amendments to a test vote but meanwhile found their strength far from a majority.

The cry of "robbery" came from Senator Hastings (Rep.), of Delaware, as Democratic leaders bided their time for a vote on the legislation. They were confident of success when the roll was called.

Meanwhile, the House Banking Committee made plans to start hearings tomorrow on bills to establish a new federal monetary authority which would have the sole right to issue currency.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, told newspapermen there were insufficient votes for the two independent proposals but they probably would be offered anyway.

He said a silver purchase proposal built around the idea of Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, probably would be proposed first to be followed by one of his own for compulsory issuance of new currency against the gold proposed to be taken over by the Treasury preparatory to devaluation of the dollar.

Borah said he would have surplus gold—that left over after $2,000,000,000 was taken out for stabilization purposes—used as a 30 per cent reserve for new currency. This, he estimated, would provide for about $6,000,000,000 of new money.

Borah said a preliminary poll had shown that the Republican regulars—about 26 in all — were opposed to compulsory inflation—while the administration Democrats wanted this left to the President's discretion.

The silver purchase idea would provide for the buying of silver until a ratio of 16 to 1 with gold had been reached, with provision for issuance of new currency against the silver bullion that was bought.

FIRST BILLION LOAN GOES OVER TOP

Treasury Accorded Big Response in New Financing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Pocketing a billion dollars' worth of offers in a day and turning away several billions more, the Treasury still had aces in the hole today should they be needed in its remaining $9,000,000,000 of borrowing.

Orthodox financing was chosen by Secretary Morgenthau to start the biggest borrowing operations since wartime figures, but the statute books held untried powers at President Roosevelt's command.

Two were important. The Thomas inflation amendment voted by the last Congress empowered President Roosevelt to arrange with the Federal Reserve System for open market operations in government securities and the purchase of $3,000,000,000 in federal obligations, or to issue $3,000,000,000 of United States notes for buying government paper.

With yesterday's offering several times oversubscribed, however, the administration foresaw resort to neither.

Morgenthau described himself as "delighted" with public response to the first offering of government securities since Mr. Roosevelt's estimate that $10,000,000,000 would have to be "borrowed" before June 30.

FACTOR'S WIFE PICKS KIDNAPER

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Rella Factor, young wife of John Factor, wealthy market plunger, who was kidnaped in July, today identified a picture of Willie Sharkey, gunman, who committed suicide in jail after acquittal in St. Paul for the kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., a brewer, as one of the kidnapers who seized her husband.

She told Prosecutor Wilbert Crowley, identifying a double view photograph of Sharkey:

"That's the man who threatened me with a big gun."

After the kidnaping, she identified Sharkey in real life, she said, while he was a prisoner at the Chicago Detective Bureau.

Her voice strained, Mrs. Factor testified that the kidnapers in a direct phone call to her toward the end of her husband's captivity, told her they were starving Factor.

Roger Touhy, leader of the gang of which Sharkey was a member, and three henchmen are on trial here for "snatching" Factor.

PAULINE FREDERICK

ACTRESS WEDS FIFTH TIME

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Pauline Frederick, stage and screen star, has been married since last Sunday to Col. Joseph A. Marmon, U. S. A., it was learned today.

The actress' fifth marriage, it was disclosed, took place at Scarsdale, N. Y., and was attended only by a few intimate friends of the couple.

Col. Marmon, who is stationed at Governors Island and is chief of staff of the 2nd Corps Area, is a veteran Army officer. He is 58, served through the World War and is a graduate of the Army War College, the General Staff School and the School of the Line. He is a native of Iowa.

Miss Frederick's previous husband was H. S. Leighton, Los Angeles hotel owner, who obtained an annulment in 1930.

BULGARIAN KING VISITS CAROL

BUCHAREST, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Coincident with rumors of a new attempt on the life of Mme. Magda Lupescu, King Carol's favorite, King Boris and Queen Joanna, of Bulgaria, arrived here today on a state visit.

The rumors, which could not be confirmed, stated that several members of the anti-Semitic "Iron Guard" hurled a bomb at Mme. Lupescu's villa last night.

King Carol, the Dowager Queen Marie, Prince Nicholas and former Queen Elizabeth of Greece greeted the Bulgarian monarchs at the railway station, which was heavily guarded. The royal party proceeded immediately to Sinaia, site of King Carol's country palace.

Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu was absent, pleading illness.

His failure to appear led to revived reports over differences with King Carol owing to the latter's refusal to renounce Mme. Lupescu despite growing public opposition to her power as head of the so-called "Court Camarilla."

40 MILLION MORE SOUGHT FOR VET RELIEF

Senator Reed Pushes Legion's Demand In Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Liberalization of the economy sections of the independent offices bill to provide another estimated $40,000,000 for veterans' benefits, and removal of alleged inequities in automatic promotions for the military services, was urged today before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee.

With administration leaders believed to be opposed to veterans legislation to expand the new benefits of $21,000,000 ordered by President Roosevelt, Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, and Edward A. Hayes, American Legion national commander, presented the veterans' case.

Urging the legion's four-point program, Reed said the President had conceded two of the points but he believed the new regulations should be made permanent law and not left to local boards of review, which he said in some instances had adopted "scandalous" rules.

URGES WIDOW PENSIONS

The two points conceded by Mr. Roosevelt, he said, were restoration of the $100-a-month for total disabilities of service origin and free hospitalization for veterans who cannot afford to pay for such treatment, regardless of the origin of their disabilities or disease.

In addition, he recommended a $15-a-month pension for World War widows and restoration of cases presumed to have had service origin and which were wiped out by the economy act.

Reed estimated the two additional points would cost the government "less than $40,000,000."

The Pennsylvania Senator said the program was part of the World War Veterans Act which he wrote 10 years ago.

ABSOLVES PRESIDENT

Reed blamed "injustices" in the past to subordinates who wrote the regulations. He said President Roosevelt was not to blame, for he had not the time to attend to all these details himself.

Hayes said the government should assume the burden of proving presumptive cases were not service-connected.

Rear Admiral Claude Bloch and Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, budget officers, respectively, of the Navy and Army, opposed the House provision restoring automatic promotion to the services, saying it would have a bad effect on the morale of junior officers.

LONG FOE WINS BY 15,747

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Expressing happiness that New Orleans would not have to experience a run-off primary campaign such as that just closed in which he and Senator Huey P. Long contested so bitterly, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley today launched plans for his second term of four years.

Complete returns from Tuesday's voting gave the mayor a plurality of 15,747 votes over his nearest opponent, John Klorer, who headed Senator Long's ticket for mayor.

Klorer was entitled to enter a second primary three weeks hence with Walmsley, but last night announced that since Mayor Walmsley's administration had promised to reduce electric rates, one of the points in his platform, "I am going to take them at their word and not run in the second primary."

Aide to Morgenthau Quits Job Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Earle Bailie, who has been serving as special fiscal assistant to Secretary Morgenthau, will leave the Treasury tomorrow.

McFadden Denounces Roosevelt on Money

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A denunciation of President Roosevelt for his monetary policies and the pending gold-devaluation bill was made in the House yesterday by Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who several times asked the impeachment of President Hoover and lost his patronage as a result.

McFadden, perennial attacker of both Republican and Democrat Treasury and Federal Reserve officials, shouted:

"George Washington did not take orders from the money changers.

"He did not take money from the people.

"He would have died before he violated his oath of office, in the manner our present President has."

The Pennsylvanian asserted the so-called gold bill was unconstitutional because that document gave only Congress the power to coin money and regulate the value thereof.

The bill he charged, "attempts to legalize robbery," in that the Federal Reserve banks kept their gold while the people turned theirs into the Treasury. Now he added, it is proposed that the banks receive new gold certificates for pretended turning of their gold holdings over to the Treasury.

McFadden asserted:

"It is a bill to save for the Federal Reserve Board and banks their monopoly in their currency which they stole from the people. The Federal Reserve Board and its banks are the agents of the Bank of England, and it seems there is no law to reach them."

Roosevelt Sends Reply To School Children

Forty-eight stout-hearted little supporters of President Roosevelt went to school today with renewed faith in their President.

A letter from the White House, the President's personal answer to a hand-drawn Christmas card, is the prized possession of sixth grade pupils in the Third Ward School of New Kensington.

A New Kensington architect, Enos Cooke, designed the card the children copied on the vellum paper. Each signed his or her name to the card, which bore the message:

"We believe in our President. With you, Mr. Roosevelt, we entrust the destiny of our government. May God bless and guide you."

President Roosevelt mailed his reply to Miss Eleanor Haskell, the pupil's teacher, who lives in Clarion. His letter reads:

"It is a real pleasure to receive such a greeting as that you sent from the pupils of the Sixth Grade. Will you not be good enough to tell my young friends how deeply I appreciate their kind thought of me and tell them, too, that I wish them the Merriest of Christmases and the Happiest of New Years.

"I am keeing this illuminated greeting in my personal papers."

The leter will be framed and hung in the sixth grade class room.

MYRTLE FACES PRISON IN POLICEMAN'S LOVE THEFT

UNABLE TO PAY $7,500 AWARD, SHE SAYS

'I'll Have to Go to Jail,' Mrs. Blacklidge Cries On Hearing Verdict

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Found guilty of stealing the love of Policeman Norman E. Nottingham, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, must pay the $7,500 damages awarded Mrs. Susanne Nottingham or face the prospect of a stay in jail.

After six hours of spirited debate the Superior Court jury which heard the spicy testimony of the patrol wagon driver's wife returned its verdict finding Mrs. Blacklidge guilty of husband-stealing last night.

Mrs. Nottingham had valued the affections of her husband at $100,000, but the jury awarded the plaintiff $7,500 damages.

Since the verdict carried a malice count Mrs. Blacklidge may be imprisoned if she fails to pay the damages.

HUSBAND MAY PAY

And the possibility arose that Norman Nottingham might be forced to pay $3.50 a week to keep Mrs. Blacklidge in jail unless she pays $7,500, when Murphy O. Tate, counsel for Mrs. Nottingham in the trial, announced his client planned to sue her husband soon for separate maintenance.

Under Illinois laws, Mrs. Nottingham may pay $3.50 a week board for Mrs. Blacklidge and thus keep her in jail for six months if she fails to pay.

Mrs. Blacklidge exclaimed upon learning of the verdict:

"Why, I haven't got 75 cents. I'll have to go to jail."

A jury of ten self-styled "perfect husbands" and two bachelors set the damages for Mrs. Nottingham's lost love.

Mrs. Nottingham had testified before a gaping courtroom to climbing over roof tops and automobiles to obtain evidence against Mrs. Blacklidge, who admittedly kept two apartment residences.

EVERYBODY SPYING

In closing arguments to the jury counsel for the policeman's wife described Mrs. Blacklidge as "a predatory female." Defense counsel argued that the 42-year-old widow was "only a playtoy to Mr. Nottingham."

Mrs. Blacklidge, who had admitted she was the author of four sentimental letters to Nottingham in which he was saluted as "Dear Denny," took the witness stand for a second time as the trial neared conclusion and admitted she had done "a little spying myself."

The defendant testified that almost everybody in the case had been "spying on everybody else."

GANGSTER RULE CHARGED IN N. Y. PRISON

Worse Than Devil Isle, Says LaGuardia Aide After Surprise Quiz

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A mild mannered stranger from Chillicothe, O., tore the false-face from Welfare Island Penitentiary today and showed a scandalized New York "the worst prison in the world."

Austin H. MacCormick, Mayor LaGuardia's "specialist" appointee as commissioner of corrections for New York City, has only been in town a fortnight from Portsmouth, where he was in acting charge of the federal reformatory. No one had anticipated, so soon at least, such a coup as he directed yesterday.

His descent upon the island prison yesterday was so well planned that neither the 1,700 prisoners nor Warden Joseph McCann himself was aware of the purpose.

'WORST IN WORLD'

Commissioner MacCormick expressed astonishment at conditions on the island, and after finding it reeking with gang rule, narcotic addicts and ugly viciousness he called it "the worst prison in the world."

Commented one of the members of the commissioner's "visiting party:"

"Welfare Island? A better name would be 'Devils' Island.'"

Some of the conditions uncovered by the commissioner and described by him as "almost beyond belief," were:

The prison population was virtually under the thumbs of two gangster inmates.

These leaders had unnumbered special privileges.

They enjoyed valet servic, special food, special sleeping quarters, special liberties.

PETS AND FLOWERS

They kept pets and even raised flowers. (One investigator said that whenever the warden returned from a trip off the island his office was profusely supplied with blooms from the gangster garden.)

One of the leaders, the notorious Joseph Rao, who was the unscathed target of the infamous Harlem "baby killers" two years ago, even had his own monogrammed stationery.

When MacCormick's men walked in yesterday morning Rao was shaving. Ordered to "Come along," he merely waved his hand tolerantly and said:

"I'll go with the next batch."

A brawny deputy commissioner snapped Rao out of his majesty with a quick,

"You'll go now, Rao."

HONOR SLAYER SOBS STORY

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Millie Prince wept and sobbed on the witness stand yesterday, but did not change her story that she stabbed Charles J. Wolfert, Astoria jeweler, to death because he attacked her.

During four hours of steady cross-examining the 31-year-old dark-haired housewife lost the poise that carried her through the first two-days of her trial on a charge of second degree murder.

She told of going with the 56-year-old jeweler to a wooded Queens hillside last September and said Wolfert tried to attack her. She said the struggle ceased while Wolfert wrote out a note giving her permission to kill him.

A motion to dismiss the indictment charging her with second degree murder was denied today by Judge Thomas Downs.

After the motion was denied, Samuel Leibowitz, counsel for Mrs. Prince, began his summary to the jury.

Neighbor Woman Ill, John D. Sends Caller

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—During the recent illness of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., there was no more solicitous inquirer concerning his health than Mrs. Margaret Moore, whose modest home is just outside the Rockefeller estate.

Today, the financier and his family are reciprocating.

Mrs. Moore, known as "mother" to the whole town, is ill, and at Rockefeller's orders an employe of the magnate calls at her home to ask after her condition.

LUPE, JOHNNY MAY MAKE UP

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—Lupe Velez, red headed Mexican film actress, and her husband, Johnny Weissmuller, may be reconciled.

They separated Tuesday night Lupe announcing:

"It's no use. I guess it's Hollywood. We fight, fight, fight, all the time."

Today, however, the couple made a joint announcement:

"We will try a trial separation for about two weeks, and if we still love one another, we will go back together. No divorce is planned."

Weissmuller left Miss Velez's home following the disagreement, the actress said.

Her earlier statement that she had separated from Weissmuller electrified Hollywood which had seen the pair at the Olympic Club bouts Tuesday night.

They were married last October 8 at Las Vegas, Nev. It was Lupe's first marriage. Weissmuller had been divorced from Bobbe Arnst, actress.

GANNA'S SONGS ELATE EX-MATE

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Led by her former husband, Harold F. McCormick, some of Chicago's society leaders turned out last night to see—and also hear—Ganna Walska, Polish opera singer.

It was almost the fifth anniversary of her last appearance and for the concert Mme. Walska used the spacious Auditorium Theater, former home of grand opera.

But there were rows of empty seats and even many of the boxes in what was once the famous "diamond horseshoe" went unoccupied, probably due to a counter attraction at the Civic Opera House in which Tito Schipa appeared for the first time this season in the opera "Martha."

Of Mme. Walska the critics agreed that her voice had improved, but most of their praises were for the dramatic aspects of her recital in which she appeared in elaborate period costumes.

Encores were frequent and McCormick, with whom she had luncheon after she arrived in the city the other day, was noted as one of the most enthusiastic applauders.

CHURCH CRASH INJURES 50

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A floor in a condemned frame building used by a Pentecostal Church congregation crashed 15 feet into the basement last night in a chaotic jumble of human bodies, furniture and a hot stove, and today 50 persons are nursing injuries.

Firemen and volunteers poured water into the gaping hole to prevent a fire, and doctors, nurses and ambulances were rushed to the scene to give first aid.

A church service was in progress when the accident occurred in suburban Sciotoville.

Officials planned a grand jury investigation.

John Stiltner, 7, nephew of Marion Lightner, a church official said by firemen to be in charge of last night's service, fell beneath the stove and was burned about the body.

Mrs. Henry Stiltner, the boy's mother, pulled the stove off his body and was burned about the arms and body.

Franklin Whitehouse, 18, received a broken leg. Mrs. Matilda Holsinger, 54, suffered a fractured skull. Mrs. Ida Ward, 54, was injured internally when someone stepped on her in the race to get away from the stove.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

As a rule folks don't like war headlines, but here was one that was in the papers that hit the spot, "Roosevelt declares war on civil works grafters."

We recognized the new president of Cuba. I hope he stays in long enough to get acquainted with.

Just had a nice visit from Senator Henry Allen, of Kansas. He said Kansas was feeling fine. Now when Kansas ain't kicking, things have got to be running about perfect.

Yours, WILL.

CLERIC, BRIDE SIP CHAMPAGNE

With champagne—the gayest of wines—a former Episcopalian clergyman, of New Kensington, and hostess of a downtown restaurant celebrated their surprise marriage at a dinner party last night at Kleman's Inn, Collins avenue.

Percy K. Jones, an instructor at Duquesne University and a lawyer, sat at the head of the table with his bride of a few hours, pretty Sarah (Sally) Campbell, of 1425 Forsythe street, hostess in the Pittsburgher and Union grills. Nine of their close friends helped them celebrate.

They were married yesterday in Wellsburg, W. Va., climaxing a friendship of 15 years. The pair met at Croydon, England, during the World War. Jones was with the British air forces, while his wife was a nurse. He said:

"Don't think it was an elopement. We planned to get married four months ago and it was just our way of doing it."

For the present Jones said they plan to live at the William Penn. Next summer he and his wife will visit his home in Victoria, British Columbia. Until a year ago Jones was at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in New Kensington.

CALLS FIREMEN TO OPEN DOOR

When L. J. Rafferty returned home this morning he was vexed because his night key wouldn't turn the lock in the door of his apartment in the Burry Apartments, West Ohio street.

His mother, an invalid, was unable to answer his summons; so Rafferty called the fire department.

Just as though they were going to a fire, Engine Company No. 46 sped to the apartment and obliged by hoisting a ladder and sending one of the fire laddies up to open the door from the inside.

STOKOWSKI HIT AS COMMUNIST

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Accused of being a Communist, Leopold Stokowski, famed conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, was today confronted with opposition to his plan to perform the "Internationale," Russia's national anthem, at his next youth concert.

A committee of three leaders of the Philadelphia County Board of the American Legion was planning to call on Stokowski and appeal to him to desist from rendering the revolutionary song. The committee was named after the Rev. Robert J. McFetridge, county board chaplain, had declared:

"To my personal knowledge Mr. Stokowski is a Communist. He attends Communist meetings and takes part in their councils. He is definitely identified with the Communist party."

2 COUNTY DEER SLAIN IN PARK

The mystery of who killed and stole two county deer was heightened today with the news that a hole had been cut in the fence in the deer preserve at North Park.

Director of Parks A. M. Marion brought the matter to the attention of Capt. of County Police W. E. Rucker. Commissioner C. M. Barr suggested a police trap be set. The cut in the fence, made from top to bottom with shears, was discovered Friday, Marion reported yesterday.

The killing of two deer on December 28 was revealed yesterday for the first time. In a letter to the Commissioners Marion reported the deer had been shot, and one of them bled in the park.

BISHOP BOYLE'S NEPHEW WEDS

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh, had acquired another niece today.

His nephew, Michael J. Boyle, 21, a junior at St. Vincent's College, Latrobe, Pa., was married to Miss Dorotohy Steele, Latrobe High School senior, on January 13, according to announcement from Ebensburg by the young man's father, Sheriff M. J. Boyle, of Cambria County.

They were married by Father Stephen A. Ward, of Our Mother of Sorrow Catholic Church at Westmont, suburb of Johnstown, the father stated. The couple will reside in Latrobe, with both completing their school courses, the sheriff stated.

Girl Loses Appeal In $100,000 Balm

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court yesterday quashed the appeal of Miss Estelle F. Maxwell, 28-year-old former Temple University student, in her suit for $100,000 for alienation of affections against Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus Eastman and her son, James Dobson Altemus.

Miss Maxwell charged that Mrs. Eastman and her son induced Lemuel G. Altemus, Mrs. Eastman's former husband, to break his alleged engagement to marry her.

Two Women Killed By Train on Trestle

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 25.—Trapped on a railroad trestle, two women were killed by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train here today.

The victims were Mrs. Andrew Kish, 60, of Youngstown, and Mrs. Elizabeth Halak, 50, of Chicago, who was visiting here. They were en route to visit a priest and were walking across the trestle over a ravine.

Gridder Steals Show At Mae West Trial

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Irvine (Cotton) Warburton, the University of Southern California's All-America quarterback, dropped into Superior Court today as a spectator and stole the show in the absence of Mae West, the complaining witness.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Higgins escorted the tow-headed gridiron star into the courtroom to look over the trial of Edward Friedman, charged with robbing Miss West of $20,000. The crowd forgot about the trial, momentarily, as it gazed upon the hero of the football field.

King Couldn't Survive Oxford Accent—Shaw

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—If King George delivered one single speech in an "Oxford accent," declared George Bernard Shaw in a letter to the Times today, on that same day his people would rise up and proclaim a republic.

Shaw's letter was declared to close a controversy which has raged in the newspapers over the question of the pronunciation of English.

The controversy was started by the British Broadcasting Commission's committee, of which Shaw himself is chairman, when it issued a list of pronunciations recommended for radio announcers.

Newspapers wrote editorials. Indignant readers wrote indignant letters. The classically minded quoted scraps of Latin and Greek to substantiate their claims.

Shaw told the readers of the Times today:

"An Oxford accent is considered by many graduates of that university to be the perfection of current English, but, unfortunately, over large and densely populated districts of Britain, it irritates some listeners to the point of switching off and infuriates some others so much that they smash their wireless sets because they cannot smash the talker."

Smart Bellevue Pupils 'Flunked' by Economy

A lot of bright-eyed youngsters, who made A grades in Bellevue's elementary schools, were sad today.

They were not promoted in mid-winter as heretofore and were in effect "flunked" for one semester, according to their parents.

It all happened as a result of the Borough School Board's deciding to eliminate mid-year high school commencements four years hence.

To accomplish this no top notch eighth grade pupils were graduated into high school this month as has been the custom. They are being held back with the rest of the class until June. The same applies to all grade A elementary students.

Mrs. Belle M. Johnston, president of the school board, explained that the move was actuated chiefly by a desire for economy. The same action has been taken in Wilkinsburg and other communities, she said.

3 SHOT IN RIOT AT FAYETTE MINE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 25.—Three men were shot and automobiles carrying the Sheriff and county detectives were riddled with bullets in a flareup of the Fayette County mine war at Isabella mine, subsidiary of the Weirton Steel Company, last night and early today.

Those shot are George Hoover, 55, and Charles Stewart, 30, both deputy sheriffs, and Harry Dial, 32, a miner. None was injured seriously. The deputies were treated at the scene by a physician and Dial was taken to Brownsville Hospital.

The shooting broke out last night about 9:30, deputies on duty at the mine reporting sniping from the hillside overlooking the mine. After nearly two hours of this, the officers say, a crowd of strikers came charging out into the open, yelling:

"Push the deputies into the river."

Tear gas was laid down by the deputies to halt the rush and, it was reported, a charge of buckshot fired from behind the school house struck the two officers. The deputies returned the fire and Dial was hit.

Between 650 and 700 mine employes, all members of the United Mine Workers of America, went on strike yesterday demanding the removal of Supt. David A. Boyer and four assistants.

They charged discrimination and unfair management, and insisted no deputy sheriffs were needed.

Leader Warns Against Company Mine Union

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25.—(INS.) — Commenting on the shooting of two deputy sheriffs and one union miner near the Isabella mine of the Weirton Steel Company near Uniontown, Pa., William Hynes, of Uniontown, president of District No. 4 of the United Mine Workers of America, who is attending the miners' convention here, said today:

"As long as there is an attempt on the part of the Weirton Steel Company to organize a company union there will be hell!"

Two More Mines To Hold Elections

James F. Dewey, special representative of the United States Department of Labor and the National Labor Board, arrived in Pittsburgh today to arrange for employes' elections at two more captive mines in Fayette County, recently resumed.

They are the Republic Iron and Steel mine at Searight and the Nemacolin mine of the Buckeye Coal Company, a subsidiary of the Jones and Laughlin interests.

BANK TO REOPEN IN HAZELWOOD

With more than 16,200 of the 20,000 shares necessary to open the new Hazelwood Bank already subscribed, the stock-selling committee of the new institution today predicted success within a week. Expectations were that the legally required quota would be reached at a mass meeting of depositors in the Grand Theater, Hazelwood, next Wednesday night.

A meeting of the stock-selling committee, attended by a number of depositors, was held in the Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company Building, 4801 Second avenue, last night. Approximately 160 shares were sold at the meeting. In addition, 15 volunteers pledged themselves to solicit 2,000 shares before the mass meeting. Max Balsam, chairman of the committee, presided.

The plan for opening the bank, tentatively approved by the State Banking Department, provides for a capital of $200,000, a surplus of $100,000 and an undivided profits account of $20,000.

Armed Bandit Gets $29 in Street Holdup

MINERS OPPOSE COAL POLICE IN PENNA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A resolution asking repeal of the Pennsylvania coal and iron police law was adopted by the thirty-third constitutional convention of the United Mine Workers of America yesterday.

Under the Pennsylvania law, the resolution stated, deputy sheriffs could be appointed right at the mines in cases of labor trouble.

The convention began consideration of more than 400 resolutions touching on a wide variety of organization matters and current affairs.

After lengthy debate in which international officers took part the convention adopted a resolution proposing that the union support a shorter work-day and shorter work-week rather than object to the mechanization of coal mines.

The convention adopted two resolutions recommending that the National Industrial Recovery Act become a permanent law.

One of the resolutions, submitted by a local at Davin, W. Va., praised the act for eliminating "cut-throat competition between the coal operators." The other, offered by an Acme (Wyo.) local, in its final form, advised "that the principles of the National Industrial Recovery Act should be extended beyond the present term." Originally the resolution proposed government acquisition and control of all natural resources.

Miners from Scranton, Pa., discussed the dual union movement in the anthracite field while debating resolutions condemning desecration of the monument of John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers, in the courthouse yard at Scranton.

Ed McCrome, delegate from Scranton, said men expelled from the United Mine Workers had been active in the dual movement.

U. S. Ownership Of Mines Proposed

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Government operation of the nation's coal mines is urged by Powers Hapgood, labor leader and former United Mine Workers organizer.

Speaking at Allegheny College last night, he said federal operation is the only means of eliminating cut-throat competition.

Anthracite Miners Defy Court, Riot

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Rioting broke out near the South Wilkes-Barre mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company today as pickets of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania defied a court injunction and charged police guarding non-striking workers en route to their posts.

Bandits Steal $20 From Tech Student

ACTRESS' RING MAY BE DOUG'S

Universal Service.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Gertrude Lawrence, British actress, is wearing an engagement ring, and the word in London is that the ring was given her by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Miss Lawrence, who is starring in a play at the Adelphi Theater, was asked if she was engaged to young Doug, but declined to discuss the report, current for some time.

She laughed when it was suggested Fairbanks provided the ring she wears.

Young Fairbanks, recently divorced by Joan Crawford, American film star, is in England making several films. He and Miss Lawrence have been seen together frequently at fashionable London resorts.

700 Miners Strike In Cambria Field

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Alleging the employers neglected to pay them for certain "dead" work, 700 miners of the Heisley Coal Company at Nant-y-Glo today were out on strike.

It was the first riff between employers and employes in the Cambria County soft coal field in several months, save for the differences at two district operations of the Bethlehem Coal Corporation over "captive mine" elections.

Song Writer's Wife Granted Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A divorce from Archie Gottler, song writer and film director, was granted yesterday to Mrs. Gladys Gottler, who charged her husband was associating with other women and neglecting her.

Through her attorney, she charged that Gottler neglected her while she was ill in a hospital and that his conduct retarded her recovery.

ARSON CHARGES HELD OVER

Embers of three empty butter tubs, which smelled strongly of gasoline, were found by city detectives after a fire January 17 at 418 Third avenue, according to testimony at the hearing of three men today in Central Police Court.

The men are Louis Zaharopolos, 37, of 230 Ophelia street, proprietor of a restaurant on the ground floor, and his two employes, Joseph Martin, 47, of 408 Third avenue, and Peter Zappas, 37, of 414 Third avenue. Zaharopolos' lawyer contended the defendant left the restaurant four hours before the fire.

City detectives admitted they had been unable to discern any motive for arson and asked that the case be continued until next Thursday. Magistrate Howard B. McNutt agreed.

MAN, 64, KILLED BY TRUCK

Fred Connor, 64, of 337 First avenue, died in the Mercy Hospital yesterday after being struck by a truck Tuesday at Fourth avenue and Grant street, the Coroner reported. He was known to many of the attorneys in the city as an investigator for legal suits.

W. J. Walker, 40, Negro, of 726 Clarissa street, said to be the driver of the truck, was turned over to the Coroner pending an inquest.

CABINET BALKS AT M'NAIR BUDGET

Director William R. Dunlap said they were not entirely familiar with the recommendations.

The session for the most part was a gabfest. One motion was adopted to hire an expert to prepare plans and inspect a site for a city-owned garbage plant.

Councilman William A. Magee warned:

"Unless we do something with this budget, you'll find the city will close up about the latter part of September."

MOTIVES QUESTIONED

Councilman John J. Kane questioned the "patriotic motives" of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, who prepared the Mayor's budget recommendations, and M. C. Conick, auditor who assisted her.

Kane said he understood an ordinance was to be introduced calling for a city audit, and that a similar audit conducted by Conick and others, while it had saved money, had cost the county more than $200,000. He was "inclined to think," he said, that more money could have been saved if there had been an investigation of the pay of auditing employes.

Councilman Charles Anderson objected to changes in employes' titles in the Health Department as suggested by Mrs. Smith. He said:

"I had no idea there was so much practical politics around City Hall. There is only one reason to change titles. That's to take jobs out of civil service."

SAVINGS PERILED

The budget recommendations of Mrs. Smith would fail to balance the city budget even if Council adopted the entire program within one week.

Even if the Mayor's suggestion of a 5 per cent cut in city salaries were approved, there is doubt if the city's expenditures could be made to stay within its income.

This is the problem that faced Council as it resumed efforts to cut a $21,252,000 budget, now out of balance to the extent of more than $1,800,000.

The time element is the thing which spoils the picture. One month of 1934 is already almost gone, and considerably more time would have to go by before some of the Smith-Conick proposals could be adopted, even if opposition were lacking.

Kane Opposed to Delay In Levying Meter Tax

Councilman John J. Kane, author of the $5 meter tax ordinance, has served notice on the public utility corporations that he does not intend to let them delay the levying of the taxes with argument.

The utilities, including the electric, gas, water, steam and taxicab companies are scheduled for a hearing this afternoon before City Council. They have been asked by Councilman William A. Magee to bring in statements of their earnings for 1933, net assets and the amount of equipment which would be taxable.

Kane takes exception to this idea, stating:

"A public utility has no more right than any other taxpayer to escape taxation by bringing into Council a set of figures calculated to prove that taxation would be a hardship to bear. Taxation is a hardship on the many home owners who can't come to Council and demand exemption from taxes because their earnings have ceased. Taxation was never in the history of governments based on the earning capacity of taxpayers, but on the need for revenue."

RIGHT TO BE HEARD

Kane, referring to the public utilities as "new taxpayers," states that they should have the right to be heard. He limits this, however, saying:

"I hereby serve notice on the public utilities that I do not intend to allow this courtesy of City Council to be developed into strategy of the utilities to defeat the city's right to levy these taxes. I deny the utilities the right to argue either their inability to pay these taxes or the legality of the ordinance or act."

Kane holds that the City Law Department has rendered a favorable opinion on the legality of the proposed taxes and that Council should abide by that opinion. He refers to listening to utility lawyers as "waste of time."

OPPOSED TO FIGURES

As to the defense which the utilities might make, he says:

"Any attempt of the utilities to smother the emergency tax proposal under an avalanche of figures will be vigorously opposed. Figures mean nothing unless verified and analyzed by disinterested expert accountants. City Council in this emergency has neither the time nor the facilities to do this."

McNair 'Passes Buck' on Pay Cut To City Council

Mayor McNair says he is not going to turn back any of his $15,000 salary, but says City Council can cut his pay if it wishes.

Council early refused his offer to take a $5,000 salary reduction for the reason that $15,000 is fixed by law and Council has no control over it.

If the other elected officials and special executives follow the example of the Mayor in making no refunds this year, it will mean a difference of about $29,000 to the city, on the basis of the 16 2-3 per cent refunds made by most of them last year.

PAYROLL SLASHED

The bulk of the payroll is getting the same 16⅔ per cent cut that was in effect last year, and in addition faces the possibility of losing another 5 per cent of the remaining pay if the idea in the Mayor's budget message to council is carried out.

Regarding the small-salaried part of the payroll, the Mayor said yesterday:

"Well, a lot of these small-salaried employes are going to be Democrats, and they'll be glad to get anything—whatever it is, they'll be tickled to death to get it."

UP TO COUNCIL

Apparently he is under the impression that Council is all-powerful in payroll matters, for he added:

"If Council wants to cut me and the department heads, we'll be glad to take it."

He saw no reason for alarm over the city's financial condition and said:

"The budget is balanced, and there's money in the treasury. If I have my way, we're going back to the old millage next year. That's 23 mills on land and 11.5 mills on buildings."

Recently he said that the revenue from proposed taxes on meters would be used to lighten the tax burdens of the people and not to balance the budget.

MAGISTRATE'S JOB IN DOUBT

With doubt raised as to his right to hold the police magistracy to which he was appointed, Magistrate J. William McGowan today looked on while Mayor William N. McNair occupied the bench in South Side and Mt. Washington Police courts.

The legality of the appointment was questioned because McGowan's home address is in Wilkinsburg.

The Mayor disposed of the Police Court cases by discharging nine drunks and patched up a family quarrel.

Mayor McNair's communication to Council, asking McGowan's confirmation, gave his former address at 332 LeRoi road. The telephone operator gave the new address as 1463 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg.

McGowan admitted he's living temporarily in Wilkinsburg. But, he says, he keeps a mailing address at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alice Burns, at 5169 Woodworth avenue, Bloomfield.

The city charter provides that city employes must have lived in Pittsburgh for six months prior to their appointment.

McGowan succeeds Ralph E. Smith, who was promoted to Safety Director by McNair last Monday.

WHITE HOUSE ADOPTS DOG

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The Roosevelts have adopted another dog. And this time they're quite sure it won't get in bad with visitors.

It's a little brown cocker spaniel pup which "Major," the huge police dog which was banished, could have squashed with ease. "Major" was exiled to Hyde Park after biting Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, and several other visitors.

"Meggie," "Major's" Scotch terrier successor, was lent to friends here after she snipped a small chunk from the lip of a newspaper woman.

The present little ball of fur is the property of Buzzie and Sistie Dall, the President's grandchildren.

Keystone Party Pre-empts Name

The name of another new political party, the "Keystone Party," was pre-empted in Harrisburg yesterday for use in the forthcoming elections, according to an Associated Press dispatch. The pre-emption was made by Attorney Charles Henry Fleming, of Pittsburgh.

M'NAIR'S STAND ON PATRONAGE, TAXES AIRED

Mayor McNair was on the record today as to jobs for citizens of Italian extraction, abolition of the grand jury system, shifting the load on police magistrates to the people, the utility taxes proposed by Councilman John J. Kane, and other things.

These came out at an hour-long press conference yesterday.

He is against Kane's taxes, The Mayor declared:

"I think the people are becoming very much disturbed. There's no reason why we should be fined $3 just because we have that (he flourished a French-type telephone in the air) on our desk.

"The utilities will shove the tax on the consumer or give you less service—that's an elementary law of economics you can't change."

CITES G. O. P. DOWNFALL

To prove it, he analyzed the recent elections. Citing former Councilman W. Y. English, McNair said:

"English licked the Republican machine the minute he came out for a tax on washing machines.

"You may not think so, but it's true."

Later, English, laughing at the Mayor's statement, denied he ever advocated a washing machine tax. He said the proposal was one of many submitted to Council two years ago by many persons, and did not bear his indorsement.

McNair wants to tax real estate of utilities.

Although judicial opinion seems to contradict him, he insists the utilities are subject to municipal real estate taxes.

DISCUSSES JOBS

On the subject of jobs, he interviewed Nicholas Capone, spokesman-chairman of the Italian Voters' League of Allegheny County.

Capone protested the consideration Frank Nerone, president of the Italian Democratic Club, asks in patronage distribution. Nerone wants Magistrate Charles F. Papale for police superintendent. Capone declared:

"The better element of Italians are a little timid about coming up. We don't want to be blown to pieces. We're for Ben Marshall 100 per cent."

Nerone wants two major jobs for his followers—police superintendent and superintendent of highways and sewers.

The Mayor also announced a new policy for police courts:

"I've instructed the police to call on complainants and tell them to come to court to present their own testimony. We want to throw all this stuff back on the people. They're as much responsible for law and order as the police and the courts."

me. I had no idea he was running a numbers joint".

Magistrate McNutt commented:

"It seems very strange a man wouldn't know what was going on in his home when scores of men were visiting it every day. There was a roomful of adding machines and a $2,000 business was carried on daily."

ADDRESS 'NOT KNOWN'

De Basi said he didn't know Homer's address. McNutt added:

"I suppose if we find Homer he will tell us he sub-rented the room to somebody else and so on down, and we'll never get any place."

To which Attorney Edward G. Coll, representing DeBasi agreed:

"I wouldn't be surprised if such were the case."

Detective George Brubach, told by the Magistrate to institute a hunt for "Homer," said:

"I think he is a myth, but if DeBasi will give us any help we'll look for him."

DeBasi posted $2,500 bail for court trial.

The three held yesterday and freed today were Walter Dimireck, 154 Mulberry way; Louis Burkin, 4034 Windsor street and Stanley Dzmidowich, 907 Herron avenue. They were released on their own recognizance yesterday the record showed after they ostensibly had been held under $2,500 bail each.

Magistrate McNutt today explained that evidence was lacking to show the three were operators of the pool.

Sixteen persons were arrested in four vice raids by police in the Strip and Lawrenceville districts last night.

Await Jap Protest On Mussolini Stand

ROME, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Diplomatic circles said today that a Japanese protest against a recent article written by Premier Mussolini on the Far East and also against a speech by Marquis Giacomo Medici del Vascello in the Chamber of Deputies was expected to be presented at the foreign office within a few days.

In their statements, both Mussolini and the Marquis del Vascello mentioned the "yellow peril."

Woman and Doctor Free in Auto Deaths

A Coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Miss Anne McCutcheon, 45, of 5635 Stanton avenue, in the death of Mrs. Mary J. Fleck, January 11. Dr. Samuel R. Perrin, 40, of 315 Ninth street, Sharpsburg, was also exonerated in the death of William Hatton, Sharpsburg youth. Both were auto accident victims.

Police to Intensify War On Rackets Here

The police cleanup in the Hill district is not a "flash in the pan" but will be intensified in the future, Assistant Police Supt. Andrew Charles promised at a meeting of the Joint Law Enforcement Committee and the Community Council of the Hill district late yesterday.

Replying to the report that the district has improved within the past month by Sidney A. Teller, chairman of the committee and director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, Charles said:

"We want to clean up the city and keep it clean. The racketeers are taking us seriously. Already some have left the city. Director Ralph E. Smith is a very determined man and Mayor McNair is very sincere in keeping graft out of the police department."

Complaints, signed or unsigned will be acted upon by the police department in the future, Charles said.

In his report on vice and crime conditions in the district, Sidney Teller commended John Schnurr, captain in charge of the Hill, for his work since January 1, when he was given authority to clean up the district.

Teller said:

"There has been real improvement in the district recently and we desire that Capt. Schnurr be allowed to retain his post just as long as he continues this work."

40-Foot Tower Will Enhance Beauty Of Cathedral

A new 40-foot addition to the top of the tower of the Cathedral of Learning, designed to give the structure a more graceful appearance, has been started by workmen.

Four gothic-styled turrets will be erected to carry the lines of the cathedral to a more harmonious conclusion. An enclosed super-structure, surrounded by an open observation parapet, will be built. Beneath the observation tower will be a lounge room.

ENGLISH FACES FIGHT ON PAY

Former Councilman W. Y. English must go to court to collect the $1,333.33 salary cut which Council voted him in 1932 while he was in Texas.

Controller James P. Kerr broke the news to English's attorney yesterday. Kerr told him he would have to get a court decision before he would get the money. Later Kerr hinted it might even go to a higher court.

In the closing sessions of the old Council, English rebelled against the 16 2-3 per cent cut. He first attempted to set up a fund to pay back the salary reductions accepted by all the members of Council, and when that failed, tried to set up his own, and was voted down.

President of Council Harry A. Little said he would not like to be "an Indian giver."

English said he was not present when the cut was made and served notice on the Controller then that he intended to demand his full salary.

WIFE COUNSEL IN DIVORCE CASE

Just as the last witness had finished testimony in her husband John's divorce case, Elizabeth Podsiadly, 204 Bell avenue, McKees Rocks, acting as her own lawyer, walked into Judge Harry H. Rowand's court to protest against the decree being granted.

Chief Clerk Jack Moore introduced the woman to the court. Judge Rowand told her when he learned she did not have an attorney that she could ask questions. Mrs. Podsiadly informed the court that the last witness was not telling the truth. Judge Rowand said he was not going to argue with her, but that if she wished she could take the stand.

Mrs. Podsiadly testified that her husband had another woman and was keeping the other woman's children, but could not keep his own. She denied the husband's accusations that she "ran around," became intoxicated, did not prepare his meals and called him vile names.

Podsiadly produced two witnesses to corroborate him, while the wife brought one with her who averred Mrs. Podsiadly was a good wife.

WAITER SCOUTS MATERNITY COST FEAR

Must young married couples with small incomes go without children?

Miss Hazel Corbin, director of the New York Maternity Center Association, answers this frequently asked question in the negative in an article, "Every Baby Needs a Mother," in the February issue of the magazine Good Housekeeping.

Miss Corbin deplores the attitude of society that would bar children from homes where money is scarce. She said:

"Public opinion on the subject is so strong that it often prevents healthy young married women who want children and are at the age when nature intended them to be mothers, from having babies and fulfilling their natural destines."

Miss Corbin assails the high cost of maternity. She pleads for better co-operation between the community, doctors, nurses and the public for better service at clinics, wider dissemination of medical knowledge, and a return to the old idea of having a baby at home without the great expense of hospitals and trained nurses. She quotes Dr. Frank H. Brown, of Roselle Park, N. J., who attended 2,800 mothers during childbirth and never lost a baby:

"Unless conditions are such that the patient cannot be taken proper care of, I insist that the birth take place at home. A woman is much more at ease when she is surrounded by her own things. She can get better food. And she is immune to the germs in her own surroundings. In a hospital even the nurses may be germ carriers."

Old Christmas Tree Fires Gun, Man Loses Arm

CORRY, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A shotgun trigger makes a poor Christmas tree ornament, as Floyd Joseph, 28, will testify.

JURY CHARGE PROBED

An investigation of alleged jury tampering in connection with a suit for $2,000 against Oliver M. Wright, realty agent, in which the jury returned a verdict for the defendant, was under way today.

The case was tried last week in Common Pleas Court.

The plaintiffs, Julius C. and Arthur F. Schmidt, of the H. W. Schmidt Company, real estate brokers, had sued for half the commission in an $82,000 land deal for the Allegheny County Memorial Park.

District Attorney A. T. Park admitted he was seeking a man said to have approached two jurors and to have offered money to one.

2 Suspects Seized In Store Robbery

Two Negroes driving away from Pittsburgh in an automobile loaded, police said, with dresses, hose and skirts, were arrested early this morning by State Police at New Kensington.

The arrests were made for city detectives who contend the merchandise was part of the loot of the $15,000 robbery of the Wiener Style Shop, 1342 Fifth avenue. The men gave their names as Malte Gober, 23, and Hazekak Langford, 25, both of 815 Locust street. They denied any part in the robbery and said they were en route to Leechburg.

JUNIOR PATROL

We saw a mighty neat boy on the street the other day, fellows!

His clothes weren't expensive an they weren't exactly the latest style, but they were neat and clean and well pressed. That's the most important thing, fellows.

Brush your hat and clothes, shine your shoes, wash your face and hands several times every day, especially just before meals, and take a bath just as often as you can, preferably once a day. Make sure you hair is combed neatly.

We hope every Junior Patrol member will try their best to keep neat and clean. A fellow or girl feels better when his appearance is pleasing. And people like them better.

One of our new members today is John Dietrich, of 50 Wabana street, North Side. He says that he is going to try to get other members. Perhaps you would like to start at Junior Patrol club, John.

Arthur Gasparini, of 101 Baldwin road, Crafton, wants to start a patrol. You have to have 10 members who have badges to start a patrol, Arthur. Then they meet and elect a captain.

A new captain today is Vincent Iannacchione, of 539 South Winebiddle avenue, Pittsburgh. He sends 10 pledges for his members, and they have elected him captain.

Now here's a letter from George Christner, of Box 514, Mt. Pleasant, Pa. He says that he has five members in his club, the Junior Patrolers, and they have a clubhouse. We hope you can get at least five more members for your club, George, so that we can send the captain an armband.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.

KAMONS SENT BACK TO PRISON

Judge H. H. Rowand dismissed a writ of habeas corpus obtained by the attorneys of L. J. Kamons, formerly of Darlington road, in Common Pleas Court today and directed that he be sent back to prison.

He was sentenced five to 10 years in the Western Penitentiary after being convicted of arson in Beaver County in November, 1932.

He was accused of murder in connection with the Cleveland apartment house fire case and was extradited to Cuyahoga, O., but was found not guilty.

Kamons was brought back from Cleveland and returned to prison. His attorneys, Morris M. Berger and Allen H. Kerr, maintained that the authorities here lost control of the case by granting extradition and that Kamons should be freed.

CUTWORK LINENS PATTERN 627

Do Cutwork and Have Smart Linens

January white sales are as much a boon to the needlewoman as to the housewife. They give her the opportunity to get lovely linens to embroider. And what could be lovelier to use as a design than this choice cutwork that will add greatly to any set of pillowcases and sheet. The graceful bow, strikingly done in cutwork with a touch of it in the flowers, sets off the dainty sprays that can be done in satin-stitch or eyelet. The two smaller motifs would also do for scarf ends.

Pattern 627 contains a transfer pattern of two 7½x18-inch motifs for the pillowcases or scarf ends, and one motif 8x28 inches for a sheet and complete directions for doing cutwork.

Send ten cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

JAP, RUSS WAR FEAR RIFE IN WASHINGTON

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Strong belief exists today in high American quarters that war between Soviet Russia and Japan may be a matter of only a few months.

Officials feel the present tension between the two countries is so dangerous a slight provocative incident may touch off hostilities.

While hoping for peace, American foreign affairs experts, it was learned, are already giving study to America's role should war break out in Asia.

One of the first steps, a high official disclosed, probably would be an immediate conference between the United States and other world powers to decide on a course of action.

Under the Kellogg anti-war pact and the Stimson-Hoover doctrine, the question of determining the aggressor would come to the fore. On this point, however, the United States has complete freedom of action.

CHANGE SIGNIFICANT

In well-informed circles, the substitution of Gen. Senjuro Hayashi for Gen. Sadao Araki as Japanese minister of war was viewed with especial importance. Araki dominated the military and naval cliques that dictated policy during the Manchurian invasion.

Although described as more conservative, Gen. Hayashi is said to be the idol of the younger Japanese military officers, among whom a war spirit is prevalent. One high American expert thus summed up the change:

"I would prefer an older man in command of the military in time of peace, but a younger man, with the confidence of younger men, in time of war."

'HANDS OFF' TO CONTINUE

Unless and until the Russo-Japanese situation reaches a more acute stage, the United States officially will steadfastly pursue its hands-off policy. No direct pressure will be brought on either side.

American officials believe, however, the present United States naval building program, plus the Vinson bill to bring up the Navy to treaty strength, is having an effect in quieting anti-American outbursts in Japan. It is regarded as a potent force for peace.

It was considered as notably significant that Japanese Foreign Minister Hirota, in his address to the Diet in Tokio yesterday, extended a gesture of friendship toward the United States while using aggressive language toward Russia.

Officials here interpret the speech as the beginning of a definite Japanese policy to keep on good terms with the United States, at least until after the Russian situation has been disposed of.

If Japan should be victorious over Russia, America's turn would come next.

U. S. to Oppose Increase In Japan's Naval Ratio

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(Universal.)—The Roosevelt administration will vigorously oppose any increase in Japan's naval ratio with the United States, it is learned.

Those in charge of the President's naval policy declare they will insist on continuance of the present 5-5-3 arrangement in any future armament limitation conferences.

Special significance was attached to the statement in view of the speech of Foreign Minister Koki Hirota in the Japanese Parliament in which he announced early dispatch of a note to the United States on the naval question.

The Japanese, it is understood, seek full parity with the United States at the expiration of the present treaty limitations in 1936.

we shall soon find ourselves in the same pew with the powers whose universalism we rejected despite the pleas of Woodrow Wilson and his followers.

President Wilson failed in his revolutionary step to have the United States join the League of Nations.

But two secretaries of state under Republican Presidents who followed Wilson attempted to bring us closer to the League.

SECRETARY OF STATE KELLOGG, with the aid of M. Briand, got the United States to join the nations of the world in denouncing war as an instrument of policy.

Secretary of State Stimson, in a bold and unchallenged interpretation of the Kellogg Pact, enunciated a doctrine virtually abandoning American neutrality.

He suggested, during the Chinese-Russian dispute in 1929, that the Kellogg Pact implied that each signatory was confronted with the right and the duty to adopt a definite attitude towards any country involved in an international dispute.

During the course of his meddlesome attitude on the Manchurian question he went even further and declared it was the definite obligation of a signatory of the Kellogg Pact to make known its attitude toward a violator of international agreements and there COULD BE NO NEUTRALITY UNDER THE PACT.

THIS DOCTRINE has been taken over and elaborated to a stage even more dangerous by spokesmen of the present administration.

Mr. Norman Davis, who once was spokesman for Mr. Stimson, speaking at Geneva in behalf of the United States, accepted the Stimson idea and declared the United States WAS READY in case of a dispute between nations to make known her attitude toward the "aggressor."

Mr. Davis furthermore stated that if the United States concurred in the opinion of the other nations as to the aggressor then the United States was ready TO ABANDON HER NEUTRALITY and her historic policy of the FREEDOM OF THE SEAS in order to give full effect to the steps taken by other nations to punish the aggressor.

It was explained that if any American nationals attempted to trade or conduct business with the nation named "AGGRESSOR," even if the Untied States were in no way involved in the dispute, these American nationals would have to run the risk of attack and confiscation of their property at sea without any hope of assistance from their own government and their own people.

MR. DAVIS declared this doctrine would positively be made effective if a disarmament agreement based on the MacDonald plan is reached at Geneva.

But what is more pertinent, the capitals of Europe have been informed that this doctrine can be made effective WITHOUT BEING SUBMITTED TO THE UNITED STATES SENATE, the treaty-making power of the country.

This doctrine, Europe has been informed, MAY BE PROMULGATED IN A PRESIDENTIAL UTTERANCE and would be regarded as having the same force as the Monroe Doctrine!

BIG NAVY BILL GIVEN HOUSE RIGHT-OF-WAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The House Rules Committee today gave legislative preference to the Vinson treaty Navy bill with the understanding that it be brought up on the floor tomorrow or Tuesday.

Three hours of debate will be allowed and the bill will be open to amendment. It will be considered tomorrow, leaders said, if the pending Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill is disposed of by then. If not, it will be taken up Tuesday.

SEEK PLANES FOR SHIPS

The Rules Committee took this action as the Navy disclosed to the Naval Affairs Committee its intention to ask 660 new airplanes to man ships now under construction.

Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, arguing that airplanes now are just as necessary to warships as guns or ammunition, said the present law limiting naval aviation strength to 1,000 airplanes would have to be increased to 1,660 to take care of "immediate" needs.

Eventually, naval officers added, the fleet will require a total of 2,100 airplanes to man all vessels in a fleet built up to treaty limits.

Industrial Mobilization Slated in Case of War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—One of the War Department's semi-secrets was brought partially into the open today with a statement by Assistant Secretary Harry H. Woodring that President Roosevelt's creation of emergency agencies closely paralleled the Army's "contemplated set-up for industrial mobilization."

Woodring's prejared address before the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense by coincidence followed disclosure of a move on Capitol Hill to have the Army and Navy "take Congress into their confidence" on secret plans for defending the nation in case of attack.

Auto Victim Wears 8 Shirts, 5 Trousers

YORK, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—An unidentified umbrella mender, about 80 years old, was killed last night by an automobile driven by Mrs. Ada Conover, of Hanover.

He wore eight shirts and five pairs of trousers. Police found in his clothing $468, mostly in old bills, some of which dated back 40 years.

Jap Story Visions U. S., Russia at War

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Despite intensive efforts by Japanese government officials to suppress the flood of "war scare" stories appearing in Japanese publications, the magazine Bungei Shunju appeared today with details of a mythical conflict between the United States and Soviet Russia.

This new version of the next world conflict described the climax as occurring in the Caribbean Sea "when the United States fleet sinks the Soviet fleet."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

A pleasant contribution to social life this month will be a tea Mrs. James H. Greene will give in the College Club Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, at which her friends will meet her daughter, Mrs. W. Dee Scherman.

The Greenes and their family have returned to Pittsburgh just recently, and are living in Fair Oaks street.

Pouring at the tea will be Mrs. Jean McCrory Newman, Mrs. Letha Frazer Rankin, Mrs. Kenneth Cunningham, Mrs. James Stephen Martin and Mrs. F. F. Rohrer.

Among the many, many smart young women who are selling tickets in the downtown department stores for the Presidential ball, to be given Tuesday night in the William Penn Hotel, are Eleanor Cowdrey, Connie Verner, Eleanor Kaufman, Anne McClure, Janet and Martha McKinney, Mrs. William McCullough, Mrs. C. H. McCullough, Mrs. Renwich McWilliams, Mrs. Ralph M. Rush, Mrs. William E. McKinney and Mrs. Eugene H. Cooper.

With the exception of an occasional benefit—the biggest one on the social horizon just now is the Presidential Ball Tuesday night in the William Penn Hotel—there just isn't any large entertainment for the social set except an occasional club dance, always greeted with much enthusiasm in these post-season days.

There's to be a special dinner-dance Saturday night out at Longue Vue Country Club for members and their friends.

Girls' Group To Observe Birthday

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

With a banquet of 400 covers and a fantasy depicting its history, Trinity Cathedral Branch Girls' Friendly Society will celebrate its twentieth anniversary tonight in Webster Hall. The play, which was written by Miss Elizabeth Jordan, introduces a young woman (played by Myra Bell Geltz), whose mother (Mary Duggins, representing Mrs. Edward S. Travers, founder of Trinity Branch), presents her with her baby book on her twentieth birthday.

In the second act suitors for the hand of the girl are the different phases of Girls' Friendly work. Incidental music for the production has been arranged by Mrs. Maud Jones Sinclair and Edward Downes has staged the little play.

Bishop Alexander Mann will be at the banquet as one of the honor guests and to offer the invocation and Miss Marion Milligan, the toastmistress, will call upon each honor guest to respond with one word. An unusually large attendance marked yesterday's luncheon meeting of the literature department of the Congress of Clubs, the guests having come to hear Mrs. Harvey O'Connor, wife of the author of "Mellon's Millions," tell of her impressions of Russia.

Introduced by Mrs. Stewart McFarland, chairman of the department, as "brand new from over there" (she returned last year), Mrs. O'Connor gave a delightful talk, telling especially what had been done for women in the Soviet Union and of the difficult and complicated housekeeping.

There is not "such a mad chase for charm" on the part of Russian women who are judged, as are men, by their usefulness, and women are given absolute equality with men before the law, she said. She told, too, of the maternity and post and pre-natal care which the state gives.

Incidentally, Mrs. O'Connor said she was never more than 10 days with guides in Russia, for she learned the language but spoke it so badly that it caused constant comment. At one time she lived in the home of Tolstoy's granddaughter and on another occasion lived at the Quaker Mission in Moscow.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

To find out the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column . . . CALL GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or . . . send a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

B is for Boucle . . . the second important item in your spring wardrobe (the first being hats, in our humble opinion at least). So chalk up a great big "B" for these boucles which have but just made their bow to a sportswear department recently!

We're accustomed to finding most two-piecers of this type grouped under the sheltering price of $22.50 . . . but no longer! Today they're huddled together with $17.50 standing guard! Spring dresses of turquoise with navy or black to set off their paleness . . . the dark shades applied by means of vest effects and tassels, especially tassels! Many of them hand-fashioned and finished (though this does not mean "hand-made"). All the new shades . . . and sizes 14 to 42.

Wintering at home? . . . nevertheless, you can still sit beside a palm tree. There are some awfully cute artificial ones which can be stuck into a bowl of flowers for a centerpiece, and give a very smart appearance with their spiky green fronds and scraggly brown fibrous trunks—just like real ones! 45c each . . . and one is sufficient for the average flower-bowl!

Frighten the bogeyman as much as the thoughts of him frighten you! Have one of the new night lights installed . . . the kind which automatically turn on from the switch AFTER you switched the main light off!

An interesting idea . . . and while we aren't an electrician, still we can assure you that it's all very shipshape and practical . . . and that it really works! Incidentally, the night lights (which are something like a little candle) have china shades built right on them, in pastel shades to match modern bedrooms! And the metal part of the switch is nice and chromium-ish. Only $1.50 . . . and they say that any one with an electrical flair can put them in. Lacking that . . . an electrician can do it in about 10 minutes. So you see?!

Flowers that bloom in the spring . . . with all the attendant "tra-las" . . . can be found in your hair, and 'round your wrist these days! Tiaras of gardenias...cornflowers (a beautiful deep blue) and rosebuds. Or bracelets of gardenias (stunning if worn over black gloves!). Or little comb-clips with knots of garden posies caught up in them and making an appeal that is irresistable to almost any male heart! $1 for the comb-clips . . . $2.95 for the tiaras and bracelets.

Seems to be a day and age of "bark" . . . either dogs' bark . . . or "barking your shins" . . . or chocolate bark (candy, you know) . . . and now finally, the new fabric TREEBARK!

You've doubtless heard about it in the better fashion mags. But have you seen it . . . or better still, worn it? For as a matter of fact, it's nothing like any of the aforementioned "barks"—being soft, svelte to the touch, wearable—which is more than can be said for barking dogs, candy, or "barked" shins! (Dear me . . . we fear we are becoming philosophical!) But, anyway, you can get quite swank shirtwaist frocks of it now at one of the stores . . . for only $3.98. In the snootiest of the Spring shades—with plenty of attention to the much-demanded turquoise . . . and the long, short and ¾ sleeves which are vieing for honors! Pockets, inverted back pleats, dropped shoulders (to make you look sloping, which is smarter this Spring) . . . and all the other more expensive details of a really GOOD frock. Misses' and women's sizes.

Mr. and Mrs. Chimney (inveterate cig smokers!) please note. If you MUST spend every waking moment with a cigaret stuck in your face . . . you'll need quite a supply. And these new Aero Metal cases carry 20 as easily as they carry two!

As their name implies, they're made from the same metal which makes our modern "airy-planes" flyable . . . and of course, are positive bantams when it comes to weight! In nice black, green, or red enamel with some silver lines making a design at the front! $1.00.

FACES VERSUS FORTUNES

Right, eyes are shadowed skillfully, and the mouth accented firmly. Below, too much lip rouge and naked eyes.

Left, a very heavy eye make-up to help out the low-drawn coiffure. The mouth decorates the rest of the face.

Right, a streaked, patchy use of rouge, and button-holed lip rouge.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE REAL REASON that many die-hards say that they can't abide "paint on a woman's face" is because it is plastered on too obviously. The truthful use of colored face cosmetics is to simulate a look of health, according to a famous Russian beautician who has a large following among smart metropolitan women. Sounds like a simple recipe, he admits, but few there be who see eye to eye with him, he contenrs.

HERE IS WHAT he suggests as a pattern for face decoration, via the rabbit's foot, the kohl pot and the swansdown route:

Use cheek rouge sparingly, blending it with an upward stroke toward and near the nose, and well up under the eyes. The edges of the rouge should be softened invisibly into the rest of the cheeks. Never lay it over the cheekbones, for it takes away attention from the eyes.

See to it that your powder is a darker and warmer shade than your skin, and that it really dulls your skin; this helps build up the brilliance of your eyes.

USE ONLY TRANSPARENT eye shadow of a tint which blends with the natural eye shadows. Apply it over the whole lid and way up to the brows. Try mascara for brows and lashes that has a bluish tinge to its blackness or brownness.

Leave the orange lip sticks alone and use a bright, rosy shade, which is healthy as well as accenting. Don't be tempted into making a rose-but, Cupid's bow or button-hole of your mouth, for all that artificial nonsense passed out with hoop skirts.

At night, use a lighter powder than you do by day.

Slangiana

The muggs who keep spilling what they think is up-to-the-instant slang out of the sides of their kissers will be a lot of raised eyebrows to know they're only yapping syllables that are as old as next week's radio puns. To make it clearer, let me yammer that practically all of the argot that the wise ones indulge in now—and the language that will seep into the dictionaries of 1940—goes back farther than a Mid-West tourist getting his first look up at the Empire State Building.

And they're not the only occupants of the doghouse. There are the college profs, graybeared grammarians and high-foreheaded scribblers who call slang "the new idiom" and "addition of fresh phrases to the language." The purists are still playing Blind Man's Buff as far as their deeper knowledge of lexicography (not to mention etymology) is concerned.

Tipoff on the vintage of most popular expressions of the day is "Slang and Its Analogues, Past and Present," hatched in 1890 by John S. Farmer. This six-volume history of Slangiana contains everything mouthed by the English-speaking since the language began.

It gives the inside on derivation of terms and points the finger to the trade, locale or class that injected its catchphrases into the slanguage. Among the roots of present day lingo are backstage talk, thieves' cant, tailors' jargon, police and prison code, gypsy speech, beggars' slang, printing and newspaper trade terms, military and naval colloquialisms of a dozen countries, including ancient Rome and Greece—as well as such ciphers as rhyming and backwards slang.

The word "slang" itself dates to 1743 and 300 years ago it was okay to use "ad lib," "bull" (an error), "lam," "lousy," "crack," "hot," "uncle," "gig," "in the bag," "muff," "plant," "potted," "powder" (to scram), "rap," "shake a hoof," "nuts," "beef," "bracelets" (for handcuffs), "guts," "angle" and "dub."

Milton used "bull" to denote a muff in 1642, and the word popped up as an exaggeration 100 years later. "Lam," meaning either to beat up or beat it, dates to 1555. "She Stoops to Conquer" has a line about "it's a damned, confounded crack." And Chaucer employed "hot" to describe wenches of the fourteenth century. "In the bag" is derived from an ancient Welsh game where the winner put his adversary in a sack. "Potted" comes from calling a quart tankard a pot. Shakespeare used "shake a hoof" in "Merry Wives of Windsor," and "lousy" and "ye cuckoo" in "Henry IV," and "he gave a loud cry of whoope" in another play. Perhaps "whoope" and "whoopee" are identical.

"Nuts" was first noticed in 1678, while "beef" is rhyming slang for "stop thief." The motion picture expression "dub" made its entry in 1567 as "dub your mummer," meaning "open your mouth."

"Break," "barker," "cuddle," "dive," "flop," "flopper," "gam," "load," "moll," "mobsman," "stall," "shoestring," vamp," "scram," "chatterer," "racket," "binge," "blue," "booze," "burn," "confab," "fan" and "fence" are all in the 200-year-old class.

"Break" meant a collection of money made for the defense or escape of a jailbird, and "flop" was a variation of "flap" in 1742. "Gam" was used to describe a leg on a coat of arms, and "flutter a gam" was dancing in 1789. They "worked the joint" and "tipped the fin" among 18th century crooks, and "camp" is Australian for strutting or surpassing. "Blue," denoting off-color or obscene matter, is taken from a set of naughty old French quartos, the "Bibliotheque Bleu." "Racket" popped up in 1785, died, and was resurrected again in 1851, and gangsters were called "racketeers."

The pickpockets' routine of having a confederate talk with the victim while the dip milked him was "buzzing," and "chariot buzzing" was the same procedure in a 1789 stagecoach or omnibus.

Dating back 130 to 170 years are "big gun," "big shot," "bug," (for enthusiast), "cop," "deadhead," "freelance," "fuzzy" (for a tippler), "kick," "guff," "gag," "go for," "ham" or "hamfat," "joint," "inside," "lowdown," "lay an egg," "okay," "on the level," "pan," "razz," "gorilla," "take a fall," "spot" (for jernt), "squawk," "fizzle," "squeal," "fathead," "big house," "the bird," "biz," "he's a card," on the carpet," "chisel," "chump," "cross," "mug," "above par," "bally" and "dope."

Going on a "binge" was an early Oxford custom, and actors of 100 seasons ago coined "getting the bird," which in this case was the goose, noted for his hissing propensities. "Biz" was a hot Yankee expression in 1870 and spread world-wide. "Big house" was originally the poorhouse. In 1835, Dickens wrote: "He was a card," and "chisel," "chizzle," and "chuzzle," as well as "gouge" go back to the same period. "Chump" is an 1883 creation, and they were saying "The mug has evaporated" as long ago as 1834. A "dope" was originally a femme beggar, and "lay an egg" comes from cricket where it was a goose egg or a zero score. Glum printers "had a pan on."

In 1880, the Sporting Times of London told of a method for testing the cussedness in horses —"by producing a peculiarly squashy noise, extermely irritating. It is termed, I believe, a Razzberry, and when not employed for the purpose of testing horseflesh, is regarded as an expression of contempt, rather than admiration."

"Pickwick Papers" has a character called the "m. c." It seems they were afflicted with masters-of-ceremonies even in Bath.

Many of the old expressions, dead at present, can stand reviving. Among these are "bosco" (for schnoz), "canary" (long-term prisoner), "clerks' blood" (red ink), to "die in a horse's nightcap" (to hang), "figure dancer" (1785 for check-raiser) and "adjective-jerker" (newspaper reporter).

If I were invited—and I hope I'm not—to make up a list of people who contributed words to current American chatter—I would jot down the tags of Jack "Vass You Dare, Sharlie?" Pearl, and by all means Ben Bernie, who gave the radio "Yowzuh!" and the radio gave it to the public. They will be used—I think—when Bernie and Pearl are forgotten . . . But some of us thought that Amos 'n' Andy's "I'se Regusted" would live longer than Amos 'n' Andy lived on the radio—and they're still with us—but "I'se Regusted" has been buried by the millions who once used it on the streets—and its grave is where? . . . But none of that is slang—they're wisecracks, if you asked me . . . This is slang: One of the town's better known phonies talked out of turn to a group of Chicago sissies in a Broadway asylum the other yawning and wound up by buying a mess of Wyoming ketchup to keep from getting his conk bent . . . Only the words "phonies" and "conk" are borrowed slang—from the show and underworlds.

Miss Venable Goes Home Unkissed

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—Worried but determined, Evelyn Venable, Paramount's "unkissed" star, boarded an eastbound train to fight for the continuance of her screen career.

The actress' father, Prof. Emerson Venable, of Cincinnati, summoned her home. He wants her to quit Hollywood and to return to the stage and the interpretation of Shakespeare, on whom he is a nationally known authority.

This latest development in the strange career of the 18-year-old player follows the studio's plan to cast Evelyn in "Double Door," recent Broadway play, which is said to have been suggested by the lives of the Wendell sisters, New York's millionaire recluses.

Prof. Venable, who made Paramount agree not to put his daughter in sexy roles and who nearly took her out of "Death Takes A Holiday" because he objected to a love scene with Frederic March, is opposing the new vehicle. He says it isn't worthy.

Paramount argues that the script doesn't even violate the spirit of the agreement.

Just how it will end depends upon Evelyn's persuasive powers. She wants to please her father and, being a minor, she must yield to him anyway.

Interesting that New York experience of Vivian Gaye and Randy Scott. They call it "The Lost Adventure."

The two had been invited out to Ben Hecht's house for dinner and he promised to send a car for them. Randy and Vivian got back to the hotel a little late from tea. They asked the doorman about the car and he ushered them into an impressive town-model.

Five or six blocks later, Randy noticed a crest on a rich fur lap-robe. He and Vivian then noticed that everything about the machine was the last word of elegance.

They knew Hecht was a successful writer, but they were a little worried. Randy asked the chauffeur if he were sure he had been waiting for them. The driver said yes, that he was expecting two people.

"But whose car is this?" persisted Randy.

"The Grand Duke Dmitri's," was the startling reply.

Back at the hotel again, Vivian and Randy got the right car, one of the small and popular make. But they still wonder what would have happened if they hadn't discovered the crest and had gone right on.

Tommy Miller Saw Moliere 'School for Husbands' And Liked It

By GEORGE SEIBEL

One of the most enthusiastic admirers of Moliere and "The School for Husbands," the Moliere play coming to the Nixon next week, is Tommy Miller. Maybe you remember little Tommy Miller in "Ah, Wilderness," the O'Neill play which opened in Pittsburgh and is now a big hit in New York.

Tommy on the stage was the son of Essie Miller, and Essie Miller was played by Marjory Marquis, who is also his mother in real life. Tommy's other name is Walter Vonnegut.

Mr. Seibel

Tommy's admiration for Moliere dates from the dress rehearsal of "The School for Husbands." The whole cast of the O'Neill play were invited to that dress rehearsal. When the tickets were distributed, there was none for Tommy — who is called "the Colonel" because he was born in Kentucky. So the Colonel marched right up to Philip Moeller, informed Moeller that he was a member of the company too, and had planned to take his grandmother, who had never seen a play by Moliere. Of course Tommy got his tickets, and took his grandmother, and liked the play better than any grownup professor from Columbia.

Maybe it was because of the magician who appears in the ballet interlude.

MAGIC THAT FAILED

When you see "The School for Husbands" here next week, there is one member of the New York cast who will be missing. That is Robert Reinhart, the same magician who enchanted the little Colonel.

When I last saw Robert Reinhart in the lobby of the Empire Theater, on Broadway, where we showed each other tricks with coins, he told me he thought it would be impossible for him to come to Pittsburgh. Reinhart is versatile, like most magicians, and is not only an actor but editor of an important department in the "Literary Digest." Since he could not suspend the publication of the Digest while he came to Pittsburgh to make canaries vanish, he felt he would have to stay in New York City.

Which is a sad admission for a sorcerer. The learned Erasmus laid down as a law of nature that nobody could be in two places at the same time, but Hermann the Great and Thurston often have proved that this law is not without exceptions. There was no reason why Reinhart, if a thoroughly qualified practioner of the Black Art, could not have transported himself to Pittsburgh and back by mirrors or something like that.

The trick of the vanishing canary, which he did in the ballet of "The School for Husbands," created a big sensation when first produced. It was the invention of the ingenious Bautier de Kolta. The magician holds a cage with a canary before the audience. Presto! Cage and canary have vanished. The Humane Society's agent insisted that the magician killed a canary every evening. Of course this is bosh. Magicians are humane people, not reincarnated tomcats.

MAGICIANS CAN ACT

It is interesting also to know that magicians are good actors. One of the best performances in New York a month ago was that of Fred Keating with Hope Williams in "All Good Americans." Fred Keating is one of the best of American prestidigitators. If Thurston were to quit, Keating would be his logical successor.

In the Perelman comedy of the Paris Left Bank, he played a straight part without tricks. And he was excellent—just as good an actor as he is a magician. So is Bob Reinhart. Magicians have to be actors, because they have to persuade their audience that they possess supernatural powers.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The public sale of seats for next week's performances of "School for Husbands" in the Nixon opened in the box office this morning.

Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, was apprised today that the engagement of "Let 'Em Eat Cake," which had been booked to play here the week of February 5, has been cancelled. This disappoints not only Mr. Brown, who has had plenty of trouble getting plays for his theater this season, but also many local friends of Lois Moran, Pittsburgh actress, who, along with William Gaxton and Victor Moore, is starred in the piece, which is a sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," a musical success of last season, in which the three also were co-starred. It opened in New York some time ago, and is currently playing in Philadelphia, possibly for its last week on the road.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"DEAR MARK:" writes William Unfanger, of Chicago, "this one actually happened to this typical Joe Green.

"For sentimental reasons, I have been losing on win tickets on a nag named 'American Smile.' I'm not a race horse man by any means. But whenever that fugitive from a glue factory ran, my money dangled on his nose.

"As you probably expect, my pet could take it—but always failed to dish it out. The time she finished as far up as fourth, was the nearest she got to asserting that quality known as leadership.

"Well, to get deeper into the yarn, I recently entered a local movie house. As an added attraction, they were offering one of those dark-visaged crystal gazers who would answer any question from the stage. The Rajah saw all, knew all — and would be only too happy to slip inside information to those who wished it.

"So, with nothing to lose, I wrote out the following question:

"When will American Smile win, and what will the price be?"

"I placed the question in the proper box and fidgeted through the flicker presentation. The curtain went up, and out came the Rajah.

"The audience was hushed. Not a sound of chewing gum or asthma could be heard. The Rajah peered long and thoughtfully into the crystal that he held cupped in his hands.

"'I see a young man,' he breathed mournfully, 'who has the interests of his country at heart. He has asked me a question that is dear to his heart.

"'I'll tell him now to have no fear. I tell him that President Roosevelt and the NRA will restore prosperity and bring back that smile to all American faces. And the price will not be too big to pay for what awaits us in the future.'

"Some Rajah!" . . .

"MAYBE it's old, Mark," writes Lennie Hayton from Hollywood, "but it is supposed to have happened out here only a few days ago.

"A well-known actor slightly stewed rushed into a swanky night spot and grabbed the proprietor.

"'Say,' he demanded, 'do you serve ladies here?'

"'Certainly,' replied the proprietor.

"'Swell,' enthused the stewy star. 'Serve me one in the back room!'" * * *

"HERE'S a story," writes J. A. Miller, "that I thought you might like. Over in Pennsylvania a bum was recently arrested on a vagrancy charge.

"When he was arraigned before the judge, the bum had a sneer on his kisser. He thought he was pretty hot. The following conversation took place:

"'Where are you from?'

"'Chi.'

"'Where is Chi?'

"'Ain't you wise, judge? Chi is Chicago.'

"'Where were you born?'

"'Frisco.'

"'Where's Frisco?'

"'Ain't you wise, judge? Frisco is San Francisco.'

"'I see. Where were you headed for when arrested?'

"'Philly.'

"'I see. Then you can have 30 days in the Alley.'

"The bum stiffened.

"'The Alley,' he growled. 'What's the Alley?'

"The judge smiled.

"'Ain't you wise?' he purred. 'It's the Allegheny workhouse!'"

"DEAR Mark:" writes Namreh Renak. "I scribble a humor column for a New York trade paper. In a recent column I paragraphed the following item:

"'Mark Hellinger and Michael Farmer, the movie director, look very much alike.'

"I have now received numerous letters from readers who demand to know how Mark and Michael can look alike when Farmer sports a mustache. Accordingly, I am asking a slight favor of you in order to uphold my reputation. Will you kindly grow a mustache as soon as possible in order to settle all arguments?"

Certainly, sir. Anything to oblige a reader. A mustache is a cinch. But I warn you that You are settin ga dangerous precedent. Suppose, instead of Farmer, you had said that I looked like a certain prominent leader of a nudist cult.

What, sir, would we do then?

DEAR Hellinger:" writes Paul Kraft. "I own a small factory. Every Friday for more than a year there appeared an elderly panhandler who made my factory a regular stop. I gave him a dime the first Friday and I've been doing the same thing ever since.

"Last week he turned up with another man. I reached into my pocket for the customary dime—but before I had a chance to give it to him he requested that I turn it over to the other man. Commencing that Friday he said he was taking a vacation.

"So he had sold his route to the other man!" . . .

Novelty Film In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"I Am Suzanne," with Lillian Harvey and Gene Raymond in the featured roles, and Podrecca's marionettes more than ordinarily prominent in the supporting cast, is the principal part of a novel bill of amusing entertainment in the Fulton. Providing you are fitted up with the usual outfit of emotional gearing, it should make you laugh most of the time and amaze you the rest of the time as you watch how artfully Signor Podrecca's puppets are made to fit into sequences with human actors.

The romance of "I Am Suzanne" is really different from the customary thing in heart interest, for the young lady in the case becomes jealous of a puppet of herself. And not without reason, too, for the stupid (as we think) young man seems to love the puppet at least as much, if not more, than the original. This particular situation provides a novel and spectacular sequence in which both the animate and inanimate actors take part.

Miss Harvey, who has not been having the best of luck in the type of stories given to her since she came to America, has her best part so far as a dancer under the thumb of a scheming and slicker type of manager in "I Am Suzanne." Though adequate in the part, she seems to have lost, or mislaid, some of the charm that made her an instantaneous hit in "Congress Dances."

Gene Raymond has a good role, which he acts nicely, as a puppeteer, who falls in love with the dancer after he uses her as a model for a puppet. Leslie Banks and Georgia Cane are grand as manager and coach, respectively, of the little dancer, for whom things turn out all right eventually.

Carrick Mothers Back Blind Exhibit

The Pittsburgh Workshop for the Blind will present a practical demonstration by blind workers at the Carrick High School under the auspices of the Mothers' Club of Carrick tonight.

Sewing, chair caning, typewriting and the reading and writing of Braille will be included in the demonstration. In addition an entertainment will be presented by the Workshop Quartet, Ernest Scott and Prof. Clarence Grogan. Eugene Morgret will speak on "Adult Work for the Blind."

Local Entertainers Organize Society

The Professional Actors and Entertainers' Association of Pittsburgh has been organized, with Frank Krushinski, president; William Sloane and Charles Smith, vice presidents; Ruth Quinn, secretary-treasurer; Ruth Carr, assistant secretary, and Bert Otto and Earl Elder, business agents. An executive board will be elected at a meeting next Sunday in the Elks' Club.

Vice President Sloan promoted the organization which aims at the betterment of general working conditions, a minimum salary scale, welfare and social activities. It has nearly 100 members including singers, dancers, magicians, acrobats, clowns, musicians and other types of performers from the Pittsburgh district. Similar organizations have been successful in Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago.

"COWBOYS NEED HEALTHY NERVES — AND, BELIEVE ME, SO DO HOUSEWIVES"

Eddie Woods, All-Around Champion Cowboy, says:

"To have nerves that can take it, I smoke only Camels. I've tried them all but Camels are my smoke! They have a natural mildness, and I like their taste better. Camels do not jangle my nerves, even when I smoke one after another."

Mrs. Phyllis L. Potter, Home Maker, Montclair, New Jersey, says:

"I don't doubt but what it takes healthy nerves to ride an outlaw horse! But any woman who is a home maker will agree with me that shopping, cleaning, answering the doorbell a dozen times a day, and tending to all the other duties of running a household are enough to jangle anybody's nerves. I know that I have to be careful in choosing my cigarettes. I am a confirmed Camel smoker because I can smoke Camels freely without a hint of jumpy nerves. And they are the mildest cigarette I ever smoked!"

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Fortunate indeed is that modern man or woman who does not get nervously upset. Raw, jangled nerves seem, all too often, to be the order of the day.

If nerves are your problem, we suggest a check-up now—on your eating, sleeping, and smoking. Get a fresh slant on your smoking by trying Camels. Much is heard about the tobaccos used in various cigarettes. But this is a fact, as any impartial leaf-tobacco expert will tell you:

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand. An important fact to nervous people!

Everywhere you see Camels smoked more and more. People do care about mildness...about good taste...about their nerves. And Camels never get on your nerves...never tire your taste.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Offer Friendship if You Want It From Others

Here's the other end of that typical "American Success Story."

Here's the picture of a woman who had the shrewdness and courage to rise above sordid poverty, make good in the work world, win the man she loved, and make a home for him—

And now finds herself taking the count, because she can't be a play girl!

A strange story? No, you'll find lives like that on every street. And perhaps this pitiful letter will echo your own bewilderment, Mary. If it does, read on to the answer. Maybe things aren't as hopeless as you think they are.

Dear Miss Robinson—

I need your help. I am a lusterless, dull-witted wife of 38, and I want to snap out of it—but I don't know quite how.

In my childhood I knew nothing except abject poverty. I was shunned by all the girls at grammar school because we were so poor. I have not been able to feel at ease with my own sex since. I had to leave school at 14 and go to work. I worked up from mangle girl in a laundry to a responsible position in a real estate office, going to night school to fit myself for it.

I've checked myself over, and the only good, redeeming features I have are sincerity, fair play and a love of my home. That is part of my trouble. I'm a "home body."

It is true that I've risen above my origin, but in a crowd, where others vie with each other and clamor for the floor, I retire. No wit. No quick repartee. I can't even laugh spontaneously.

My husband is just as opposite—always the center of attraction—and I am on the verge of being his "ex" unless I change. That's why I am appealing to you. My life has been so rough (even during marriage), with little education to polish it down, that I am at a loss where to begin. I am a business success, yes. But social? No.

TIME TO TAKE STOCK

I love my husband too much, but it is evident that he enjoys other female company of a more diverting nature.

Will you help me? No effort will be too great for me to make, if I can just get out of this state I'm in. What shall I do?

MRS. C. E.

What'll you do? What would you do if your business were going down hill? You'd take stock, wouldn't you? You'd find out just what were your assets; what your liabilities. You wouldn't let your business competitors decide your rating. You'd decide it for yourself.

Then do the same with your own life.

Your life is your business, just as much as your shop or office. And it's a successful business. It may not be exactly the same kind of a success as other lives are, but that fact doesn't discourage you in the working world. You don't feel that you have to sell candy, or silk underwear, because other women do. Then stop being so frightened and discouraged because your personality isn't identical with other personalities.

The simple truth is, you're a fine, brave, strong, loyal, loving person. You've made your way up with good sense and fighting grit, and if you'll back these qualities with the spunk and faith with which you backed your working life, you'll make a success of yourself, now.

DON'T GIVE UP

You won a responsible place in business because you believed in yourself. You didn't "retire" then. Why do it now? Why cramp your own style by belittling yourself. You found plenty of people "clamoring" for the job you wanted, but you didn't step aside and say meekly, "You can have it, you know so much more than I do." No indeedy! You figured you were as smart as anybody—and proved it!

So forget the past. Forget yourself. Maybe you did get off to a bum start. Maybe the other kids did shun you—but I'll gamble they did it because you yourself shunned them. You were afraid of them. You were "standoffish," and that, and not your poverty, was responsible for your misery.

You say now that you have "no wit, no quick repartee." All right, what of it? Thousands of people haven't. You may not be able to wisecrack, but you can be friendly, sympathetic and interested. You can know what's going on in the world, and have interesting ideas about it. You can offer your friendship.

And remember, my dear, that if you're a friend yourself, you'll have friends. For most of the people you stand in awe of are just as lonely, just as anxious to be loved and appreciated, as you are.

And that husband of yours? Take an interest in what interests him. Learn to play with him, laugh with him, sympathize with him. Be the pal he married—and you won't be able to pry him loose from you!

You're afraid you can't do that? Forget it! For fear is all that ails you!

"Should a wife open letters addressed to her husband?"

I think not, even though he has given her permission to do so. For no matter how understanding and generous her attitude after knowing the contents, it must always be less than the trust and confidence expressed by not opening letters.

Nor should she watch suspiciously while he reads them, or question him. Nothing is more irritating than to be quizzed when one is not in the mood for explaining.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Says That Noel Is Really in Love With Her

"I hope I don't intrude." Mary's voice was apparently flippant as she uttered the timeworn greeting of a certain type of masculine street lounger. But there was something quite different in her tone and manner. There was bewilderment, militant defiance and something deeper—a wound which I knew Mary would die rather than reveal.

"I'm sorry if I've crashed in on a private party," she said lightly, and so perfect was the control she now had of her voice that one would have sworn there was nothing but impish malice in it, "but I just couldn't sleep, so I thought I'd come down to the library and read for an hour or two. But I didn't dream of finding a soiree in session."

"Mary!"

That was Noel, of course. When anything has gone wrong between him and Mary he seems incapable of uttering any other word except her name. But he puts into that word volumes of protest, of entreaty and of tenderness.

Mary flung her head as if someone suddenly had jabbed her. Then she sent her fiance a mocking smile.

"That's my name, darling," she said. "I was going to add—until I change it tomorrow. But, come to think of it, I don't change my first name, do I; only my last. And I'm not so sure, the last few seconds, that I'm even going to change the last one tomorrow."

I saw a gleam of triumph leap into Avis' greenish eyes, and felt the old itch to slap her face soundly tingle in my fingers.

"Mary!"

AVIS DEFENDS NOEL

Noels voice was hoarse with agony now, and as he repeated it again, I saw Avis Arlen's eyes rest on him with fierce anger in them.

"Present, and voting," Mary replied with a metallic little laugh. "But I want to find out what all the shootin's for. I'm sorry to have eavesdropped, but I really couldn't help it, you know. You weren't lowering your voices at all. In fact, I was almost upon the point of asking you to hire a hall—forgive the triteness of the phraseology; I'm not my usually brilliant self at this moment—when I heard my name."

She drew a deep breath, and then looked fixedly at Avis Arlen.

"I haven't the slightest concern in any hashing over of your hectic emotional moments," she said, "but it isn't on the free list to drag my name into a public discussion. I am really surprised, Noel, at your permitting it. You usually are very chivalrous. I'm quite disappointed in you."

Avis chose this moment of all others to come to Noel's defense.

"Oh, you mustn't say those things about No-el!" she cooed sweetly, casting a languishing glance at Noel meanwhile. "He is the most chivalrous person I ever have known. If you don't want to marry him, as you said just now, why that's one thing. But you ought not to malign him just because—"

She stopped and simpered, and Mary, whose eyes were fairly black now with suppressed anger, spoke in low, repressed tones that should have warned a girl less obtuse than Avis.

"Will you kindly finish that please? 'Just because'—what?"

GIRLS DEFIANT

Avis simpered.

"I don't want to hurt your feelings. It isn't a particularly pleasant thing to say to a girl who was to have been married tomorrow."

"Don't be too premature in mixing your tenses," Mary said silkily. "And please don't consider my feelings in the least. Finish that sentence."

The last words were like the crack of a whip, and Avis involuntarily flinched. But she obeyed. There was nothing else for her to do, with Mary's voice pitched to the timber it was.

"Just because he cares more for someone else," she said defiantly.

I saw Noel open his mouth to protest, then close it again. And I approved his wisdom. For the moment, there was nothing in the room save Mary's blazing, dominant face and voice.

"Meaning, by someone else—perhaps, yourself, his Lady of the Sonnets?" Mary purred.

"Oh, how beautifully you put it!" Avis exclaimed emotionally. "Yes, I do mean myself. He did care more for me last summer, and I am sure he would now, only that you have—"

Mary had no chance to reply. Noel sprang past her with a cry of rage, and faced Avis Arlen with clenched fists that I knew he was restraining only with a mighty effort.

"You rotten little liar," he said. "If you utter another word of this, I'll throw you out of this house, if it is the last thing I ever do."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Correct Bidding

Mr. Whitney Curry, of Branton, Fla., submitted to me a ry interesting question in bidng. There is no doubt that ore players go wrong in the dding than in the play of nds at Contract Bridge. This probably because the delicate d beautiful language of bidng, depending as it does upon e exchange of precise inferces, is not as easy for one to aster as is the technique of ay.

The hand was:

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

♡ A Q J 5
♣ K Q J 10 6 4 2

North / West / East / South

♠ K Q J 6
♡ K 8 6 4
♣ A 7 5 3

The actual bidding of the nd went as follows:

th	West	North	East
♠	2 ◇	2 ♡	Pass
?	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
?	Double	Pass	Pass
s

Mr. Curry asks me to give my ew as to what the bidding ould have been. I admit that e problem is somewhat difult, but the complications of e situation are reduced imeasurably by West's Overcall South's Opening bid. Taking at Overcall into consideration, believe there is no reason why e North and South partnerip should not reach the corct contract — namely, seven ubs. The bidding, then, in my pinion, should go as follows:

uth	West	North	East
♠	2 ◇	3 ♣ (1)	Pass
♡ (2)	Pass	3 ♡ (3)	Pass
♠ (4)	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
♡ (5)	Pass	7 ♣ (6)	Pass
ss	Pass

1—North has a long and rong suit, but, being void in s partner's suit and holding nly 3 honor-tricks, he should ot force.

2—South has a hand far bove minimum strength with a agnificent fit with his partner's bid suit. This is a splenid opportunity to show there re no losers in diamonds.

3—In view of the fact that outh has shown a strong hand y his three-diamond bid, it is nportant for North to disclose second biddable suit, even of nly four cards, before a game ontract is reached.

4—There is no need to hurry. North's Forcing Takeout assures game contract and this single aise gives the opportunity for urther exchange of informaion.

5—There is a rather strong Slam call. South has shown support for clubs and now reopens the bidding at the range of six-odd to show support for North's second biddable suit, fully realizing that it must be much shorter than the suit first named.

6—Of course, the key to North's bid of seven is the fact that he holds no spades whatever and his partner has assured him that he holds no diamond losers. It does not seem possible, in view of the fact that North holds the heart Ace, that South would bid six hearts did he not hold the Ace of clubs. The contract of seven appears reasonably safe.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The Opening bid is two diamonds.

Responding hand holds

♠ 5 4 3 ♡ 9 2 ◇ J 10 5 4 ♣ A J 6 2

What is the correct response?

Answer — Three diamonds. The hand has adequate trump support and more than one honor-trick.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

No Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother died over a year ago and my father has decided to remarry. Under the circumstances, it is to be a very quiet affair. I am wondering if it is proper for me to give my showers complimentary to Miss . . . D? Constant Reader.

No . . . please, by no means do this. It would be quite out of order and in extremely poor taste.

Sending Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My husband's brother is to be married, and I would like to know if it is proper for me to send the wedding gift to the bride's home and in her name, and how soon before the wedding should the gift be sent?

2—How should the card read: May and Harry or Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knowles? K.

1—Yes, the wedding gift should be sent to the bride-to-be, to her home. And the gift should be sent between two weeks and one week before the wedding date. It's better to send the wedding present early rather than late, so that the bride-to-be may have time to write her thank-you notes before the wedding day.

2—If you enclose the engraved Mr. and Mrs. card, the names may be left "as is," with no message added. But if you write the message on the enclosed card, then the informal names would be signed.

Household Hints

Since rickets most often begins in babies in the first months of life, measures to prevent it should begin very early. So many babies have rickets before anyone knows it that every baby should be given sun baths and cod liver oil for protection.

If meals are served in a corner of the kitchen it is suggested to have a light that illuminates that part only. Then after other lights are put out the dining corner seems to be shut off from the rest of the room and makes a more attractive nook for the meal.

Garnishes add color and flavor to fish. Something tart is usually desired and this can be added by using slices of lemon or lime, tart sauce, pickle or mustard dressing or a piquant salad such as cabbage, relish or tomato.

Mincing machines can be kept clean and in good running order by occasionally washing all the parts in hot soda water and drying in a warm oven. Then smear a little pure glycerine over all the working parts. This will not affect the flavor of food.

If you want safe relief from Constipation

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

1. Regulate intestinal action gently—no "purging"
2. Measure dose to suit your individual needs
3. Avoid Bowel Fatigue and the laxative habit

Here's Why:

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.

A doctor will tell you that the unwise use of harsh laxatives often does more harm than good.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains doubtful drugs, don't take it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics:

First. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

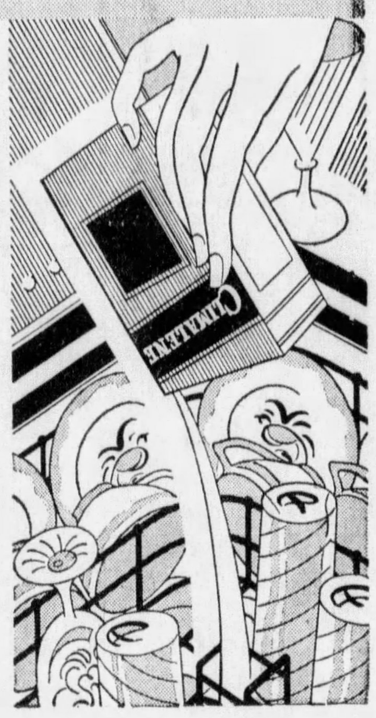
10 G.E. DISHWASHERS in a new easy Climalene letter contest



"Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest-selling preparation of its kind in America today?"

Offer made solely to induce you to more quickly try CLIMALENE, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver that makes dothes whiter, that makes dishes gleam and sparkle . . . just like new

WOULD you like to get a Special Delivery letter from The Climalene Company, of Canton, Ohio, one of these fine mornings announcing that you were going to get a beautiful General Electric Dishwasher installed in your home absolutely free of charge — a labor-saving, time-saving kitchen need that every woman who must do dishes has always wanted — but a luxury that only a few women can afford?

Do This

Well you can. Just write us a letter of 100 words or less, answering this simple question "Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest-selling preparation of its kind in America today?" You have ten chances to win because we are giving away 10 G-E Dish washers in this new letter contest.

Just a few minutes with pencil and paper will show you how easy this contest really is. No studying, no worrying about spelling, grammar and writing. It's the answer to that question that we want to hear about.

If you have ever used water for cleaning, for washing clothes, doing dishes, washing floors, tiles and linoleum and brightening silverware, you have an excellent chance to win, and if you now use Climalene your chance to win is that much better.

Here's the story of Climalene. Read this description closely; then write your answer to the question "Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest-selling preparation of its kind in America today?" Do not use more than 100 words in your letter. That's easy, isn't it?

What Climalene Is

Climalene is not a soap — but a water softening cleanser that changes hard water to soft, gentle rain water. Hard water means hard work. It is the mineral salts in hard water that waste soap because the soap cannot dissolve. Stop this waste — just sprinkle Climalene into your dishwater or washing water, a teaspoon or two. It softens water. It instantly dissolves food stains, grease, dirt and grime from clothes and dishes. You use just ½ the soap . . . your working time is cut ½ or more. White clothes come out shades whiter. Colored clothes emerge far cleaner, softer and fresher-looking than ever before. Climalene makes dishes wink and twinkle just like new and your hands stay soft and smooth. To end soap waste as thousands of women now do, try Climalene today in the kitchen, laundry and bathroom. You'll be glad you discovered it. Consider what this means to you — the saving in soap, the saving in working time, the saving in fine fabrics from "soap-eat" and "soap-fade."

Contest Rules

Here's what you to to enter. Write a letter answering this simple question: "Why is Climalene, the quick cleanser, water softener and soap saver, the fastest-selling preparation of its kind in America Today?" Do not use more than 100 words in your letter. That's easy, isn't it?

When your letter is written, send it to The Climalene Company, spelled C-L-I-M-A-L-E-N-E, Canton, Ohio, together with four fronts of the Climalene package, or four hand drawn pictures of the front of the package will do. Send this letter in at once with your name and address plainly marked. The contest closes at midnight, Wednesday January 31st.

If you send in one of the ten best letters, because 10 General Electric Dishwashers are going to be given away, best in the opinion of the judges, you will receive a General Electric Dishwasher with the sink finished in stainless steel, monel metal or porcelain enamel, valued at $347.00, installed in your home absolutely free. The judges' decision will be final. If any two people tie for one of the 10 prizes, duplicate awards will be given.

Try Climalene At Once

If you have never tried Climalene, do so at once. You can get it from your grocer. (However, you don't have to buy to enter this contest. Four facsimiles of the front of the package will do, if you know about Climalene now). But in your own interest, just sprinkle Climalene into the dishwater to make dishes sparkle and gleam just like new. It makes white clothes whiter, while colored clothes emerge from the washing far cleaner, softer and fresher-looking. Don't delay. Send in your letter at once. You may win one of the 10 G-E Dishwashers without cost.

You will find, too, that Climalene gives you new ease, and new economy in cleaning wherever you use water for cleaning. It gives twice the suds with ½ the soap . . . a longer-lasting, a richer and a better cleansing suds.

EASY TO WIN

Here's an example of how a woman in Grand Rapids won a similar contest, which shows how easy you can win — "Climalene being a water softener, keeps my hands in perfect condition; being a soap saver, it is economical to use; being a quick cleansing agent, gives one more leisure time, whiter clothes and sparkling dishes. I like Climalene best because it saves time and reduces the number of packages of washing powder, etc., in my home."

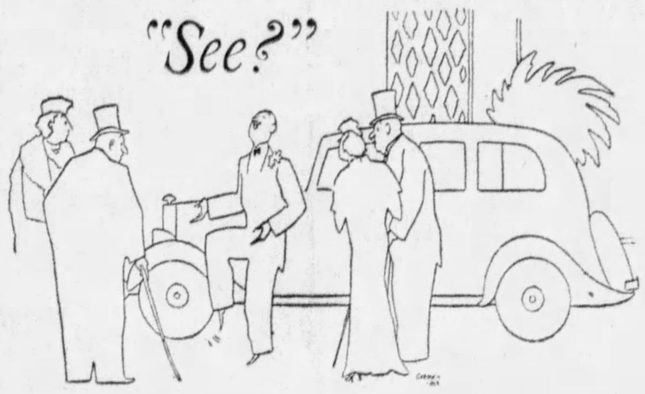
"Now I see why our car rides so slick!"

"They work just like your own knees!"

"Just wait until we ride—you'll see!"

"There's what gives you your gliding ride!"



Cartoonists picture them. News men write columns about them. Camera men snap them. People ask about them—look at them—talk about them. Everybody from schoolboys to their grandparents flock to see them.

"Watch those wheels take up those bumps!"

KNEE-ACTION WHEELS

talked about everywhere....they "STOLE" the Auto Show

THE Gliding Ride on General Motors Cars, made possible by Knee-Action Wheels, is the motoring achievement of 1934. It ranks with those other General Motors achievements: the Self Starter; Four Wheel Brakes; Ethyl Gasoline; Fisher No Draft Ventilation.

Glance at the diagrams on this page; see the demonstration at the Show. The wheels "step" over ruts and bumps—as a man steps over them by bending his knee—without jar or jounce to the body. Your first ride will be an entirely new experience in a 1934 Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Buick, La Salle or Cadillac.

Distinctively individual, these 1934 General Motors Cars; yet a consistent beauty relates them all. Beauty which satisfies, not showiness that startles. Beauty that one can live with and grow daily more contented with. Beauty that does not astonish but is genuinely admired. Progress plus beauty—to this double ideal General Motors has dedicated its Silver Anniversary Automobiles.

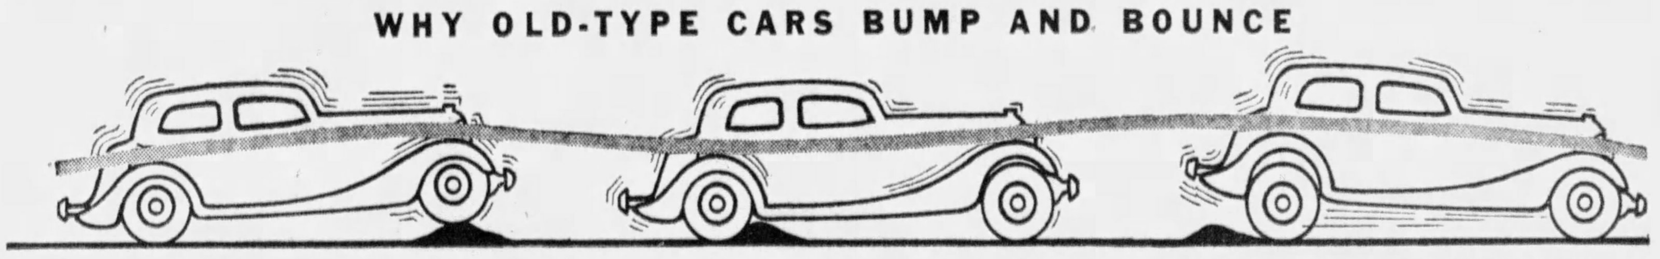
WHY OLD-TYPE CARS BUMP AND BOUNCE

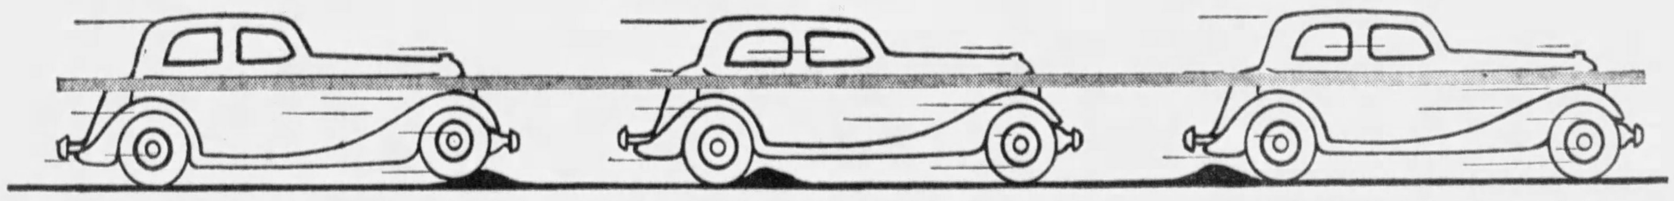


When a bump is encountered, the stiff front springs lift the front of the car higher than the rear, causing the rear springs to compress.

The rear wheels striking the bump cause the rear springs to compress still further.

Upon crossing the bump, the compression of the rear springs releases, causing the car to pitch upward and throw the passengers violently forward.

WHY CARS WITH KNEE-ACTION WHEELS GLIDE



KNEE-ACTION WHEELS, with their soft springs, "step" over a bump without lifting the front end; the car remains practically level.

The car is still practically level when the rear wheels meet the bump, causing less compression of the rear springs.

Pitching is minimized as the rear wheels cross the bump, changing your ride to a glide.

U. S. SALES TAX ADVOCATED BY S. H. CHURCH

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, noted liberal, believes a national sales tax—a manufacturers' sales tax at the source—should be substituted for the income tax.

The elasticity, providing an adjustable revenue according to the needs of the government, he believes, would be one of its advantages.

As a striking contrast to our present system of taxation, with its varied effects and uncertain revenue, he pointed out the Canadian sales tax system. In that he joined a gradually growing group of prominent Pittsburghers in business and governmental circles which believe the general sales tax would be a solution to many of the nation's tax difficulties.

Church pointed out that while he favors a national sales tax, he opposes such a state tax, declaring:

"I have studied the operation of the sales tax in Canada and believe that from the results there we should inaugurate the sales tax in the United States to take the place of the existing income tax.

"The sales tax must be enacted, however, as a national and not a state policy. If adopted in one state and not in all of them, it immediately becomes a handicap on the entire business structure of that one state.

"If Congress would put the sales tax in operation as a national policy and do away with the income tax, the government would have an elastic system of revenue adjustable at all times to its financial needs, operating automatically by collections made at the source, and scarcely felt, if at all, by the consumer of purchased goods."

Many members of Congress from Western Pennsylvania, Senator David Aiken Reed and others have already advocated such a program.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Over-Indulgence a Basic Cause of Many Ailments

Dr. Copeland

To over-indulge in anything, no matter what that may be, is hard on the human system. We are only built or trained to take so much food, so much drink, and so much exercise. If we overeat, overdrink, or overexercise, we must pay the penalty. Indigestion, constipation, headache and sluggishness, are some of the results of overindulgence. Their symptoms are annoying, to say the least, and in some cases very painful.

The holidays are over now. We have settled down to simpler and saner living.

When we sit down at table, too many of us find that such a good meal has been prepared we just cannot resist the temptation to take a second and even a third helping of that delicious meat or those excellent vegetables. Then when we are hardly able to breathe in comes a marvelous pie, just out of the oven, and it seems a shame not to eat an enormous piece.

Perhaps not at once, but within an hour, we begin to feel uncomfortable. Pains keep us from sleeping all night long, and in the morning we feel miserable.

If too much has been eaten, in all probability we will be constipated and sluggish the next morning. Several days will go by before we feel just right. But this experience has not taught us the lesson we should have learned. The next week we repeat the process and in due time we will have "dug our graves with out teeth."

The same philosophy applies to overdrinking and overexercise. Because of the latter, we are sometimes unable to move any of our aching muscles for several days.

There is a favorite saying of mine that should be kept in mind: "A person lives on one-third of what he eats and the doctor lives on the other two-thirds." It is better to eat, drink and exercise in moderation than to spend your time and income in the doctor's office.

But do not misunderstand me. I do not advise you to disregard the doctor altogether. It is wise to go to your physician and have an examination once or twice a year and find out if you are all right. This is far better than to overindulge and have the doctor come to you.

Moderation in everything is by far the best way to bring health and long life.

So—refrain from overindulging. You will find your life happier, and your health, as well as your state of mind, will improve at least 100 per cent.

Pitt Council Fights Demand by Students

Refusing to dissolve itself, as demanded in a petition signed by many students, the Pitt student council answered charges of flagrant "fraternity politics" by appointing a special committee at a meeting last night to investigate. The fight against the present council government at Pitt has been led by Pitt News, campus newspaper. University officials do not plan to abolish council, according to Walter J. Rome, assistant dean of men.

Mrs. Lillian Meismer, 45, of 131 Elm way, Homestead, was in the Homestead Hospital today with a possible fracture of the skull suffered when she fell while at work in Homestead High School late yesterday, according to a hospital report.

HUNT FIREMAN IN AUTO CRASH

Police are hunting for Martin Moran, 48, city fireman, as a hit-and-run driver.

Driving a small coupe, Moran, according to a police report, collided with a truck driven by Albert C. Wey, of 523 Foreland street, at the intersection of Middle and East Ohio streets, this morning. Although both cars were damaged, police said, Moran leaped back into his machine and drove away. No one was injured.

The accident occurred soon after Moran paid a fine of $5 on a disorderly conduct charge imposed by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in North Side Police Court early today. Moran, with two companions, was arrested late last night on a charge of having engaged in a brawl in the rear of his home, 813 Tripoli street, police testified.

Singers Applauded As Opera Is Hissed

MILAN, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The American soprano Marian Clarke, of New York, was well received last night in the leading feminine role of the new Italian opera "Dawn of Renaissance" at La Scala Opera House, but the audience expressed its displeasure with the opera itself by prolonged hissing.

The singers were given curtain calls to show the displeasure was not with their work. The opera, composed by a Milanese lawyer named Igino Robbiani, depicted the re-awakening of Italy in the Middle Ages.

POLITICS

Pinchot to Act Soon on Bench Vacancy

By MARK SHIELDS

Gov. Pinchot is expected to act promptly in filling the vacancy in Common Pleas Court caused by the sudden death of Judge Sylvester J. Snee.

Mr. Shields

According to the Governor's friends he feels that an early appointment will remove any suggestion later that there was political dickering over the position, and the Governor also will escape the charge that he was impeding the work of the courts by letting a vacancy stand. He has recollections of a Philadelphia case where one judgeship was unfilled for more than a year while politics was played as to who should be favored.

In acting on the Allegheny County case the Governor on this occasion will increase the scope of his consultation. The last three judicial appointments here have been credited principally to the influence of Judge Ralph H. Smith, though County Commissioner William D. Mansfield also played a part in the selection of Judge Benjamin Lencher.

Judges Frank Piekarski and Joseph A. Richardson, two other Pinchot appointees to County Court, are directly beneficiaries of the Smith influence, though since appointment Judge Piekarski has been a successful candidate before the voters.

Governor to Consult McGovern, Harris

It is forecast that in naming a successor to Judge Snee, Mr. Pinchot will listen to the suggestions of not only Judge Smith, but Commissioner Mansfield, Col. Charles C. McGovern and Senator Frank J. Harris. The Senator, with discussion of his potential candidacy for the governorship continuing, is increasingly a factor who must be consulted in arriving at a decision on any appointment.

Several attorneys have been mentioned as available for the bench. Among them are Assistant County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher, Herman Ruoff, Joseph I. Winslow and Oliver K. Eaton.

Mr. Ruoff was once suggested for County Court when Judge Richardson was selected, and at that time had the support of Senator Harris.

Mr. Lesher, who also served in the county legal department under a previous Board of Commissioners, was retained when the Mansfield-McGovern-Barr administration took office, and was energetic and effective in securing passage of the authority bill at Harrisburg during the recent special session.

Mr. Eaton, one of the best known attorneys in the state, has never been connected with factional politics, and at various times has in some association represented in a legal way each of the four men upon whom the Governor will rely for a recommendation. He also is a close friend of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, and is chief counsel for Senator James J. Coyne in the latter's pending case before the Federal Court.

Represented Labor On Many Occasions

It would be difficult to enumerate a more comprehensive political group than those listed as among Mr. Eaton's friends. He has also represented labor organizations in some of their most important cases, and was counsel for the miners in one United States Senate investigation of conditions in the bituminous districts.

He came to Gov. Pinchot's attention as counsel for the State Senate Utility Investigating Committee, an undertaking which brought him statewide attention through his incisive questions based on deep investigation. His service eventually closed in fireworks when he defied Senator John J. McClure, warred with Dr. Clyde L. King, and resigned on the ground that the committee was hampering him in doing the job as it should be done.

It is no secret that the Governor viewed Mr. Eaton with some suspicion when he first became counsel for the committee. He had nothing on which to base his skepticism except the fact that Mr. Eaton had been named by Republican organization leaders who were in control of the committee and the Senate.

As the inquiry progressed, however, the Governor warmed to the Pittsburgher, and some organization men claimed Mr. Eaton was becoming too friendly with the Executive. So far as any impartial observer could see, Mr. Eaton was playing the game of neither faction. He did give the committee life and direction, which it had not previously exhibited through several months.

Defied McClure and Retired in Disgust

It was when the committee began to cool, and to indicate it had tired of the inquiry, that Mr. Eaton in a public hearing defied Senator McClure and dramatically resigned. It was shortly after his resignation that the Governor and Dr. King came to the parting of the ways.

Mr. Eaton's attitude toward accepting an appointment, should it be tendered him, has not been disclosed. Informed opinion, however, is that if he wishes the place he has the best chance of any of those whose names so far have been discussed.

CARNEGIE STEEL'S RIVER FLEET PREPARING TO PULL AWAY FOR NEW ORLEANS TODAY

100TH VOYAGE BY STEEL FIRM

To the blare of calliopes and the best wishes of officials of the company, Voyage No. 100 of the Carnegie Steel River Service began its 2,000-mile trip down the Monongahela, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to New Orleans this morning. Eleven barges carrying approximately 8,000 tons of steel products, equivalent to 200 car loads of steel, made up the tow, headed by the flagship of the Carnegie River Fleet, the I. Lamont Hughes.

J. E. Lose, vice president of the Carnegie Steel Company, with a large group of officials, boarded the I. Lamont Hughes at Lock No. 1 and made the trip on the tow as far as the Emsworth Lock. Another passenger on the trip to Emsworth was Capt. Calvin L. Blaizer, 76, of Baden, Pa., who 11 years ago, on December 18, 1923, took the first tow of the Carnegie River Fleet down to New Orleans.

Of the river service, Vice President Lose said:

"It's a good thing for Pittsburgh that we have this method of cheap transportation. If we did not have the ability to handle steel by river at an economical cost we would not compete as successfully with foreign businesss and other plants which reach their markets by rail at much lower cost."

RUM STORE MEN GO TO SCHOOL

State liquor store employes of the district are going to school.

District Supt. Philip W. Gundel finger, of the State Liquor Control Board, plans to improve the service. Class day has been set for Sunday afternoon, February 4, with a lunch as the social feature.

Store help will be given all kinds of pointers, A. Albert, maitre d'hotel of the William Penn and an authority on wines will instruct in the handling of wine and suggest what each brand means to the buyer. Instructions also will be given in how to handle the store books, displays and other details.

Two Rum Law Violators Jailed Three Months

Two convicted liquor law violators, the second and third under the new state liquor control act, were sentenced to serve three months each in jail by Visiting Judge W. T. Darr, in Criminal Court, today.

They are Thomas Kenitz, of 24 South Thirteenth street, and Frank Kubill, of 3155 Arlington avenue. They were unable to pay their fines.

Wilhelm F. Kmauer, special deputy attorney general, addressing the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association convention yesterday in the William Penn Hotel, declared public support of the new liquor law was essential to its success.

600 Men Walk On One Pitch by Waldorf's Oscar

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Oscar of the Waldorf threw a hot potato across the plate.

"Strike!" yelled the dishwasher.

It was the first time in indoor baseball that six hundred men walked on one pitch.

Oscar jabbed his thumb in the soup and held it up to see which way the wind was blowing.

The gallant six hundred paraded around the Waldorf wearing double placards which proclaimed Oscar was unfair to imported labor.

The six hundred cooks and waiters refuse to tote sandwiches on a platter. But they will carry them on their backs.

Habit is a strange thing. The strikers are running the bases yelling:

"We want work."

The inning ain't over. Oscar hasn't gone to the bat yet.

EVANS FUNERAL CLOSES COURTS

Allegheny County courts adjourned at noon today to permit judges and attorneys to attend the funeral of former Judge John A. Evans, who died Tuesday.

The funeral was held from the home of the jurist's daugher, Mrs. Don Rose, 46 Beaver drive, Sewickley.

The Rev. O. D. Odell, pastor of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church, officiated. Interment was in Wilkins Cemetery.

Services for Judge Sylvester J. Snee, whose death occurred in Criminal Court shortly after he had penned a eulogy to Judge Evans, will be held Saturday afternoon from his residence, 58 Hoodridge drive, Mt. Lebanon. The judge suffered a heart attack.

Other Common Pleas Court judges have been named honorary pallbearers. Burial will be in Jefferson Methodist Episcopal Churchyard, Jefferson Township, the boyhood home of Judge Snee.

Traders to Unite For Trolley Protest

The Wilkinsburg Chamber of Commerce named a committee of three last night to confer with the Homewood and Brushton Board of Trade and the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce in arranging a protest to the Pittsburgh Railways Company against the short-routing of street cars on routes 86, 88 and 95.

The organizations hope to have the routes extended several blocks past Ninth street toward the center of the downtown district.

GIRL, 5, BURNED FATALLY IN MYSTERY

Mother Returns Home To Hear Victim Crying for Aid

A scorched pillow and a tiny pair of blue felt slippers today attest mutely to an ominous silence that yesterday was childish laughter in the home of Mrs. Anna Silich, of 13 Brightridge street, North Side.

That laughter was 5-year-old Jennie Silich's, as she sat eating breakfast, dressed in one of her prettiest frocks to attend the kindergarten class at Columbus School in the afternoon.

HEARS VICTIM'S CRIES

But fate intervened in the guise of a noon errand, and her mother left Jennie alone for less than an hour. The mother said:

"I heard Jennie crying upstairs when I returned. She kept saying 'Mom! It's fire! Fire! I'm all burned up.' She was burned from her head to her feet. She couldn't tell me how it happened. She must have played with the matches in the kitchen. I don't even know how she got upstairs. Both the doors were locked. She must have run when smoke filled the room."

DIES IN HOSPITAL

Little Jennie was wrapped into a blanket and rushed by police to St. John's Hospital, where she died shortly after her kindergarten class was dismissed for the day.

She was the youngest of seven children. They are Mrs. Martha Breccia, 20, of New York; Jack, 16, John, 14, Mildred, 12, Frank, 10, and Mike, 8.

THREE CHILDREN SAVED IN FIRE

Three children were rescued when fire swept through the 14-room home of Mrs. Henry Weir, at 1311 Belasco avenue, Beechview, yesterday afternoon.

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Weir's grandson, Walter Murray, Jr., 4, who ran into the house and notified his parents. Mrs. Murray and her mother were dressing Betty Murray, 6, and Bobbie, 2, to take them to a doctor. They carried the children to the street while Mr. Murray ran to the second floor and rescued his daughter, Shirley, 1, who was asleep.

Mrs. Weir's son, Charles, 19, after escaping through a cellar window re-entered the house and rescued Shep, a collie dog, and two kittens. He suffered a cut on the arm when he broke the cellar window and his hair was singed.

TAX RECEIPTS UNCHANGED

Contrary to previous announcements, tax receipts furnished citizens of Allegheny County will be marked out in the same number of columns as last year, Deputy Treasurer A. E. Anke said today.

The new emergency sinking fund tax will be combined in a single head with the regular bond interest tax, Anke stated. The combined millage of the two levies —47/8 mills—will be payable under this head.

Club to Hear Talk On Diesel Engines

Steam switching engines will be largely replaced by the silent, more efficient Diesel engine, according to John Dickson.

Useless Township Government Costing Millions Annually

PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania stands first in mineral resources.
Pennsylvania stands second in population.
Pennsylvania stands second in manufacturing.
Pennsylvania stands 32 in size in the nation.

BUT

Pennsylvania spends 20 per cent more for local government than for state and federal government combined.

Local taxes in Pennsylvania have increased 59 per cent in eight years.

Pennsylvania has one unit of local government for every 172 people.

Pennsylvania spends more than five million dollars annually for tax collections, or four times more than other states collecting approximately the same amount.

Pennsylvania has 608 school districts where the directors outnumber teachers.

(Today's article deals with the address delivered last night by State Treasurer Charles A. Waters. Treasurer Waters last week gave his hearty support to the campaign being waged by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph toward elimination of waste and duplication in governmental operations. Several points brought out by Waters' speech have bearing on local conditions which were reviewed here at length during the last three weeks.)

CARLISLE, Pa., Jan. 25.—A general plan of action to bring about elimination of waste and duplication in governmental operation, was presented to several hundred persons here last night by State Treasurer Charles A. Waters. Treasurer Waters addressed the Taxpayers Federation of Cumberland County.

The first step toward economy, he said, should be a well thought out program of legislation, prepared for the next session of the Legislature. Changes which cannot be passed or gotten ready in time for the session should be the subject of legislative inquiry to be acted upon at a constitutional convention.

One drastice move recommended by Treasurer Waters is the abolition of the second-class township. He declared that the usefulness of the second-class township has disappeared and as a detriment to the taxpayers, it takes the head of the list.

$10,000,000 COULD BE SAVED

The state official declared that he was of the opinion that conservatively $10,000,000 a year could be lopped off Pennsylvania's real estate tax burden without curtailing a single useful function.

Treasurer Waters pointed out that the greatest change must be in our local governments, inasmuch as the largest "sinkhole" for the tax dollar of the average Pennsylvanian is to be found right in his own front yard. He said only about one sixth of the taxpayer's dollar goes to the cost of state government; while twice that amount goes to the federal government and almost four times what the state takes goes to pay the bill of local government. To put it more forcibly he said that the local government takes 20 per cent more of the tax dollar than the combined slice of the state and federal government.

WHOLE SYSTEM RICKETY

Treasurer Waters said in part:

"We have sat quietly by in America to see our governmental structure grow into a veritable Frankenstein, and the clumsy and disproportionate creature which should be expected to function efficiently in the interest of all the people is so rickety on its legs, so lopsided in its construction, and so ungainly generally that we must wonder why we permit it to dominate.

"The base of our governmental structure is inexpensive and firmly set. It is the patchwork of the superstructure to which we must look for correction and strengthening.

"The reason we are rapidly getting nowhere in our efforts to do something about the high cost of government is due to the fact that while there is much talk there has been little in the way of prescribing a remedy for the ills with which the taxpayer is afflicted. Little is heard about how it may be corrected in a legal and orderly manner.

ABOLISH TOWNSHIPS, FIRST STEP

"As the first step toward correcting conditions the second-class township should go and go quickly. There is as much need for it in this day and generation as there is for the ox-cart. A township organization with its supervisors, justices of the peace, tax collectors, constables, assessors, auditors, and so on, was useful in the days of our great-grandfathers. Its usefulness has entirely disappeared and as a detriment it takes its places at the head of the list.

"The abolition of townships is but the first step. There must be a complete and scientific reorganization of our governmental structure and I believe the great mass of people of Pennsylvania would rather send to Harrisburg representatives who would see to it that this reconstruction takes place rather than those who appeal for votes with the catch-penny phrases and the mere offering of alms.

"There are more than 5,600 local government taxing units in this state. The useless and overlapping units should be abolished, and this would make possible a revised county government in Pennsylvania. It would make possible uniform assessment, a more efficient and less costly collection of taxes, uniform budgeting for counties and uniform accounting which should be under state control.

"The great bugaboos of the opposition to local government reform are 'centralization' and 'home rule.' I would extend a greater degree of home rule to the counties whether they are constituted as at

Mills, Atterbury, Insull Get Income Tax Rebates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The figure-studded records of the United States Treasury today showed that 127,011 individuals and corporations had the fun last year of getting a check from the government marked "Income tax refund."

Bulging refund lists were starred with some of the best known names in the nation, many of them being paid back sums that passed the $100,000 mark. All in all, if you wanted to figure it out, the government returned $51,484,000 in various kinds of tax refunds. Among the "lucky" ones were:

Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury; Robert W. Bingham, Ambassador to Great Britain; Martin J. Insull, of Chicago; Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; the late Cyrus H. K. Curtis; John Barrymore and Jesse Lasky.

AUTO EXHIBIT ATTENDANCE UP 50 PCT.

This year's display in Motor Square Garden, according to W. N. Owings, manager, is the greatest automobile show in the history of Pittsburgh in point of attendance and interest shown by the public Owings said:

"It looks to me as though the attendance will run 40 or 50 per cent over that of last year by the end of the week. And are not even giving a free automobile away as was done last year."

Today the attendance was already approximately 30 per cent over last year's show, Owings said, adding:

"The reason is that the new cars are creating so much interest among the people. A reason for this is because the new cars are not yet on the street."

Many innovations in motor and body design are the top feature attractions among the 23 makes of automobiles on display. Lower admission prices this year is said also to account somewhat for a part of the increased attendance.

A good barometer of the public's buying power, the dealers said, can be found at an automobile show by watching the sales and attendance. The attendance at the opening day this year was 55 per cent greater than the opening day at the show in Motor Square Garden in 1933.

The people this year, Owings explained, are not only admiring the cars, but are buying them. The dealers, he said, are getting more prospects and actual orders than at any time within recent years.

A musical program by a male quartet is one of the several musical attractions on the show program.

AUTO MEN SEE BETTER TIMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Booming auto shows in key cities of the United States give "tangible evidence of improvement in business conditions," the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced today.

Marked gains in attendance, orders and buying interest were reported in nine cities that have already held shows.

The Philadelphia show reported attendance 37 per cent above last year. Manager W. P. Berrien said a survey disclosed sales were 3½ times the number transacted last year.

Day-by-day paid attendance at the Milwaukee show showed increases of 92 to 298 per cent over last year.

State Treasurer Urges Abolishing Townships

present, or under a consolidation which is bound to come sooner or later, but I would do away now with the township.

934 BOROUGHS IN STATE

"We have 934 boroughs in the state, and 389 of them have a population of less than 500 souls. In each of them, however, the people are called upon by law to elect some 25 public officials. Tax rates vary from 12 mills to 30 mills for borough purposes and as high as 30 mills for school purposes, with most of the boroughs collecting the head tax for schools, and many of them up to the limit of the law.

"If this reorganization is not put under way quickly it will be ineffective, for never before has the taxpayer been so interested in this government as he is today. Reorganization cannot be brought about by a few public officials, no matter how well meaning they may be. The job can only be done by the taxpayer himself keeping everlastingly at it until it is finished."

In closing, Treasurer Waters advised the taxpayers of the state to co-ordinate their efforts in areas not confined to their own counties alone and warned them to be ready to present constructive suggestions to any legislative inquiry.

2 HELD IN THEFT OF FURS

Charged with larceny, Joseph Frand, 22, who gave his address as Hays street, and Sidney Klein, 19, of 253 Atwood street, charged with receiving stolen goods, were held for court today by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt, after a hearing in Morals Court.

Frand, according to detectives, was employed as a furrier in Max Azen's fur shop at 705 Penn avenue. Both men were arrested yesterday by Detective Walter Monahan following a complaint by Azen that pelts valued at $1,200 were missing.

Monahan testified that he found some of the furs displayed in the window of the Fitch Fur Shop, 253 Atwood street, a shop owned by Klein and his sister. Azen valued the skins recovered at $700.

Testifying in his own defense, Klein said:

"I bought the furs as an investment. Frand is a distant relative of mine and I didn't know the furs were stolen."

Frand waived a hearing.

ARMY AIR CHIEF LAUDS WAR PICTURES

By MAJ.-GEN. B. D. FOULOIS
Chief of the Army Air Corps.
Written for the Hearst Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — I have a very definite opinion concerning the desirable effect which the Hearst newspapers' World War photographs are producing on the public.

They speak a universal language, understood even by the young child and the lately assimilated foreigner, who has a weak grasp of the English language. This manner of presenting the facts is the most effective one possible.

SHOW WAR HORROR

These pictures do not glorify war, as has been the case in many previous pictorial presentations. They are not published to satisfy the morbid or the curious.

They are printed to show the unutterable horror and suffering caused by war. But there are worse things than war—slavery, and the surrendering of our national honor without lifting a hand in defense of our nation and our loved ones.

How shall we best prevent future wars?

URGES PREPAREDNESS

By strictly adhering to our national policy of non-aggression, but at the same time presenting to the world such a solid well-defended front as to discourage any nation or coalition of nations from attacking us.

And in an ideal well-rounded national defense plan, I conceive as the greatest part of it the air forces which will reach out and strike any invading enemy before it gets within gun range of our shores, or which will shatter aviation concentrations and ground forces hundreds of miles away from our borders.

Girl,22, Spokesman For New England Town's Mayor

EVERETT, Mass., Jan. 25.—(Universal.)—Miss Helen M. O'Neill, 22, pretty and witty, is now the official spokesman of the city administration.

Mayor James A. Roche, whose secretary she has been for a number of months, yesterday named her as his official representative and delegated to her the responsibility of attending the luncheons, banquets, celebrations and other functions to which mayors are usually invited. She'll view with alarm and point with pride for the Mayor on these public occasions and let him devote his whole time to the city's business.

She got the job, the Mayor said, because she has been responsible for most of his speeches anyway.

ALEXIS, HEIRESS STILL PARTED

International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—Another hitch in the world honeymoon of Prince Alexis Mdivani and the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, developed today.

Japanese quarantine officials announced they would hold the S. S. Tatsuta Maru, on which Barbara is arriving here to rejoin the prince, until noon Friday for the purpose of examining a scarlet fever patient aboard.

All passengers will be denied permission to land until the patient has been examined, and it was indicated the prince's request to board the ship in quarantine would be denied.

The prince arrived here yesterday after a lone crossing of the Pacific from Seattle, where he journeyed to avoid subpena servers in California. He was held up nearly a full day while immigration authorities examined his Georgian passport

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Do You Know As Much As Your Cat?

She's a knowing cat.

She asks for little—just her meals, a saucer of milk and a place in the sun. She gets plenty of sleep and exercise. She never worries, never frets. What is the result? Such vitality and resistance that we say, "Cats have nine lives."

What does your cat do when she is not well? She eats catnip, if she can find it. She eats grass and certain green plants to which her instinct leads her.

Your cat takes herbs for a tonic.

Did you ever stop to think that Old Mother Nature, who supplies the herbs necessary to your cat's health, has also provided the herbs necessary to your own well-being?

You don't have to hunt for them as the cat does. The herbs you need are skillfully blended and compounded in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, an old fashioned tonic that will help to restore your strength and energy.

Q. When I get bloated with gas, have indigestion, feel nervous, sleepless, isn't there some way I can get relief?

Ans.—Eat carefully, drink hot water one-half hour before your breakfast. Avoid greasy foods and take a tonic and blood purifier, such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, easily obtained at any drug store. Try this for about thirty days and see if it does not help. Also eat plenty of fresh vegetables and drink milk.

ORANGE DELIGHT SALAD

Peel oranges and remove all the white membrane. Separate into sections, removing skin and keeping sections whole. Peel bananas and cut in quarters the same length pieces as orange sections, cut the orange and bananas into French dressing and let stand one-half hour, drain and arrange three sections of oranges and three alternating pieces of banana to form a flower on crisp lettuce leaves. MRS. LILLIAN STARRETT, 7612 Frankstown avenue.
CHICKEN A LA CIRO

Two cupfuls chicken cooked.
One and one-fourth cupfuls Bechamel sauce.
Three-fourths cupful mushrooms, cooked or canned.

FOR OMELET

Three eggs.
Three tablespoonfuls top milk or thin cream.
One-fourth teaspoonful salt.
Two-thirds cupful grated cheese (for topping).

FOR BECHAMEL SAUCE

One and one-half tablespoonfuls butter.
One and one-half tablespoonfuls flour.
Three-fourths cupful top milk.
Three-fourths cupful chicken stock.
Salt and pepper.
One egg yolk.

Nine croustades of bread cases, one and one-half inches deep, three and one-half inches long and two and one-half inches wide.

Remove the skin and gristle from the cooked chicken and cut into one-half inch cubes. Cut the mushrooms into pieces no larger than those of the chicken. Sauteed mushrooms have a more pronounced flavor than those cooked in milk. Make a bechamel sauce as follows: Melt the butter, add the flour and cook for about two minutes, stirring but not allowing it to brown. Add the top milk and the stock in which the chicken was cooked, stirring as they are added. Continue cooking, stirring until the sauce thickens. Season with the salt and pepper; add the egg yolk and beat well. Mix the chicken, sauce and mushrooms and put into the bread cases, filling them a little more than two-thirds full.

The bread cases are made as follows: Cut slices of bread one and one-half inches thick. Trim off the crusts, making oblongs of bread three and one-half by two and one-half inches in size. Scoop out the center of each slice, leaving a hollow box with walls about three-eighths inch thick. Brush lightly with melted butter and heat in the oven until very delicately browned.

Over the top of the chicken mixture pour an omelet made as follows: Beat the egg yolks and milk together. Add the salt and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Sprinkle the omelet thickly with grated Gruyere cheese. If this cheese is not to be had in your market, use Swiss cheese of some other cheese of mild flavor. A strong cheese masks the flavor of the chicken and mushrooms. Cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 15 minutes. The omelet should become firm and brown and the croustades should become somewhat deeper colored. Serve at once. Yield, nine servings.

MRS. R. J. ADLER,

Chill. When mixture begins to thicken add:
One and one-half cups canned red salmon.
One cup diced celery.
Twelve stuffed olives cut in halves.

Here's The Way To Tell If You Have Acid Stomach

The Signs of Acid Stomach

Nervousness	Auto-intoxication	Feeling of Weakness
Neuralgia	Nausea	Sleeplessness
Indigestion	Frequent Headaches	Mouth Acidity
Loss of Appetite		Sour Stomach

What to Do For It

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

If you have Acid Stomach, you can easily trace it. The symptoms above, headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets" are the usual indications.

Now—to get rid of it, all you need do is follow these directions: TAKE: 2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets; substituting one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid and get the same result.

Try It—You Will Be Amazed!

Try this and, chances are, it will make a great difference in your life. For this small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to neutralize stomach acids causing distress.

After-meal pains and discomfort go. You feel freedom from dull headaches. That "afternoon fag"—you think is depletion or "nerves"—disappears. You feel like another person. People are doing this—doctors advocating it, everywhere.

But when you buy, be sure to get the REAL article—Genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia—the kind doctors endorse. Always ask for it by the name PHILLIPS'.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

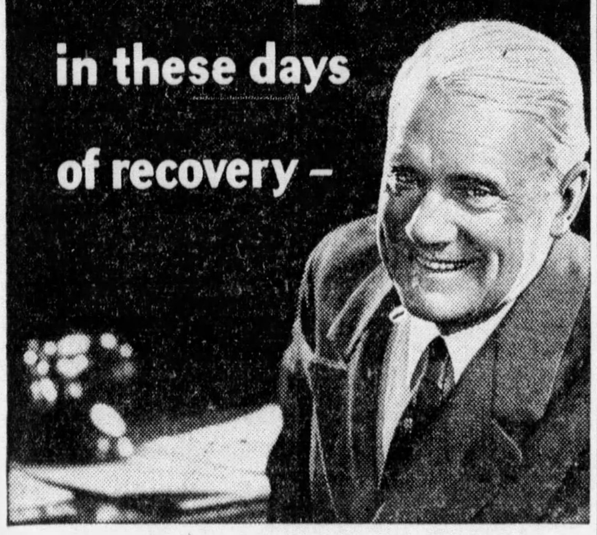
"I keep fit— in these days of recovery—



"—if I don't someone else will have my job"

HOW? "Well, I learned years ago that work . . . wear and tear . . . takes something out of men and women—particularly those who work indoors.

"Good food and fresh air at night are most valuable, but I found that the so-called simple tired feeling—'let down' some call it—comes from overtaxing one's strength.

"I tore down those precious red-blood-cells faster than my good body could rebuild. A friend told me the story of that grand medicine S.S.S. Now at 4 P. M. I am fit to still 'carry on'."

One of the really sad things in life is the pushing aside or "shelving" of the weak . . . someone is always ready for your job. Why not reason sensibly that when you begin to "let-down" then it is time . . . before it is too late . . . to build back your vitality?

Of course, if you suspect an organic trouble, consult a physician or surgeon. But if you feel weak . . . lack a keen appetite . . . or if your skin is pale . . . try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite . . . your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, we recommend S.S.S. because its value has been proven by generations, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. It is sold by all drug stores in two convenient sizes . . . the larger is more economical.

There is no substitute for S.S.S.

Secure S.S.S. from your own druggist . . . with few exceptions druggists are ethical and conscientious, and will not suggest a substitute. No medicine has the same formula as this time-tested Blood Tonic . . . nor does any other concern gather the same roots with their own trained collectors and extract the active medicinal principles, unchanged, in their original fresh state—this is the secret of S.S.S. . . . there is no substitute. Thousands of people have a low red-blood-cell count and don't recognize it. S.S.S. is useful in promoting a keen appetite and restoring deficient red-blood-cells and their hemo-glo-bin content which are so necessary for sound health. © The S.S.S. Co.

GLOBE-TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

After the Foster memorial broadcast Ed Harvey, WCAE, received a letter from Percy F. Smith, of St. Louis. Mr. Smith, whose 85th birthday was celebrated last Christmas, is an old-time Pittsburgh newspaper man. He is the sole survivor of the Pittsburgh Chronicle staff of 1865.

He was a close associate of Morrison Foster and induced him to write a biography of his famous brother, Stephen.

He offered Mr. Harvey some of his own original first-hand sketches on the life of Stephen Foster for future broadcasts.

Walter Eckert brought in his coins yesterday. He found them in a vacant lot years ago.

After they were cleaned up they were identified as old Roman coins, all except one. That was the mystery.

Finally with chemicals we cleaned up the last coin and found it was a beer check from Mobile, Ala.

Mrs. John Wilson, McKees Rocks—The police are the only ones who can give that information. If you are interested see the detective bureau at First and Short streets.

* * *

Mrs. Callahan—About a month ago I heard that Reverend Sproul was in the Middle West, either Kansas City or St. Louis.

* * *

A numismatic paragraph come from Van H. Eshelman, who cites an advantage of the silver dollar:

Although it is true, years ago people frowned
On money so heavy, we shouldn't now shirk,
For they'll be so handy to carry around.
To slap on a counter and wake up a clerk.

INDOOR MEET GETS UNDER WAY AT PITT TONIGHT

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Team of Many Coaches. Irish of 1924 Breed 17. Layden, Bach in Line

Vines Reaping Harvest. Numerous Others Fail. Ross Soars, Petrolle Done.

With Joe Bach stepping into Elmer Layden's shoes as head football coach at Duquesne University, while Layden moves on to his alma mater in South Bend, attention is drawn to the fact that among all the great teams that the late Knute Rockne developed at Notre Dame no other produced as many coaches as the national championship machine of 1924. Layden at fullback was one of the Four Horsemen and Bach at left tackle was one of the Seven Mules in that storied outfit, and a survey of the collegiate pigskin map reveals that more than 50 per cent of their playing mates also went in for gridiron tutoring. Of the 31 members of the 1924 squad who won Notre Dame monograms, 17 became either head coaches or assistant coaches, including the entire regular team. Layden first coached at Columbia College, Dubuque, and Bach was an assistant at Syracuse.

Knute Rockne

Another of the Four Horsemen, Jimmy Crowley, is in charge at Fordham after a term at Michigan State. Still another, Harry Stuhldreher, is chief at Villanova, while the fourth, Don Miller, was assistant at Georgia and Ohio State before taking up the practice of law this year, and had a chance to replace Chet Wynne at Auburn for next season before that post finally was given to Jack Meagher.

Of Bach's mates in the line, Noble Kizer, a guard, head mentor at Purdue, has had the most notable coaching success. Kizer's brother-in-law, Rip Miller, a tackle, has fared well at Navy. The late Dr. John Weibel, a guard, who died in Pittsburgh, did some line coaching at both Vanderbilt and Duquesne. Adam Walsh, center and captain, in charge at Santa Clara for a time, is assistant coach at Yale and boss of the line. Of the regular ends, Chuck Collins until recently was head coach at North Carolina, where Carl Snavely, of Bellefonte and Bucknell, has supplanted him, and Ed Hunsinger became freshman coach for Crowley at Fordham after helping at Villanova.

SIX OTHERS SCATTERED ABOUT COUNTRY

Six other members of the famous team have been scattered about the country in coaching roles. Joe Boland was at St. Thomas College in St. Paul and now goes back to Notre Dame to be Layden's line coach. Bill Cerney was at North Carolina with Collins. Harry O'Boyle coached at St. Anselm's in Manchester, N. H. John McManmon has helped mould teams at Boston College. Joe Maxwell was on the grid staff at St. Louis University, and Wilbur Eaton served at Mt. St. Charles College.

The only Notre Dame team to approach the 1924 eleven in coach production was that of 1921. Six players of the latter aggregation are now head coaches. They are Chet Wynne, recently appointed at Kentucky after a successful career at Auburn; Hunk Anderson, who has shifted from Notre Dame to North Carolina State; Frank Thomas, at Alabama; Eddie Anderson, at Holy Cross; Harry Mehre, at Georgia, and Tom Lieb, at Loyola of Los Angeles.

TURNING PRO PAYS—IF YOU'RE TOPNOTCHER

Entering the professional tennis ranks was a profitable step for Ellsworth Vines. In his tour with Bill Tilden he has received already about $25,000. He says he didn't get the bonus he could have pocketed by turning pro one year earlier, but figures that he can make a lot of other immediate easy money from the indorsement of tennis goods, a book on "How I Play Tennis," and articles for magazines and syndicates that want some opinions on the Davis Cup competition this year. All of which may have the effect of making many other young amateur athletes eager to crash into the professional division of their respective sports.

Orville Mohler

But it must be borne in mind that not all of the boys who turn pro get wealthy in short order. It's a road to riches only if you're a topnotcher, which very few in many aspirants happen to be. The big money is only at the peak. Bruce Barnes, Emmett Pare and others didn't do so well in pro tennis. Baseball, football and boxing also have seen many failures.

MOHLER FINDS ROAD HARD AND GIVES UP

Baseball's latest exhibit in that respect is Orville Mohler, former star back for Southern California in football, whose father played in the Coast League for years as that rarest of diamond rarities, a left-hand second baseman. Orville jumped at an offer to join a Coast League baseball club last year, picturing for himself a rapid ascent to the majors.

But Mohler found the road wasn't as smooth or as easy as he had imagined. He didn't click and he has decided to give it up, remarking that if a player can't be a topnotcher and get into the big leagues he's just wasting his time in the minors and would better get himself a regular job. You've got to be good to get up where the money is in any sport.

FATES HAND BOXER MANY TITLE CHANCES

Lou Brouillard may never realize his ambition to equal the achievement of Bob Fitzsimmons in winning three world fistic championships, but certainly he has no reason to complain of the way the fates treat him in the matter of title opportunities. As fast as he eats himself out of one championship—wielding a knife and fork is his weakness—he slips right into another. The French-Canadian won the welterweight crown from Young Jack Thompson and lost it three months later to Jackie Fields. Becoming a middleweight, he got a title chance at once and wrested the scepter from Ben Jeby, only to lose it in a hurry to Vince Dundee.

Lou Brouillard

And now Brouillard is hardly in the light-heavyweight division until he's in line for a shot at a third championship, as the understanding was that the winner of the Brouillard-Bob Olin bout in New York last week would be matched for the 175-pound crown with the victor in the Maxie Rosenbloom-Joe Knight title tilt next Thursday.

GREAT FIGHTER PASSES AS ROSS ADDS GLORY

Though it had been generally expected, the victory of Barney Ross over Billy Petrolle in New York last night brought not a little new glory to the lightweight champion. A man who can go out of his class and hand such a beating to an opponent of Petrolle's caliber must be ranked as one of the greatest champions any fistic division has known in recent years.

And another exceptional star passes in the announcement that Petrolle has quit the ring. He goes out with honor, a fighter equaled by few in the past and not likely to be equaled by many in the near future. Unquestionably, Petrolle was the greatest modern battler who never won a title.

They Seldom Practice, Yet These Y. M. C. A. Bobcats Win Games

P. BRIGGS W. HAMBLETT R. JOHNSON K. MANTLE J. HENNEN

P. AMBLER J. SMITH COACH ED ROWLANDS J. LINN C. REINHARD

A unique basketball squad is this one, the Bobcat outfit of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., of which Ed (Dink) Rowlands, former Dormont High School and independent player, is coach, manager, trainer, etc., etc. The players range from 15 to 18 years in age and at least four of them were turned down when they turned out for high school squads because they were "too small." Only two extended practice sessions have been held this season, and yet 19 out of 22 games have been won and 661 points have been scored, an average of 30 per game. Last season, the team's first, saw the Bobcats win 16 out of 22 games. Twelve more games remain on this season's card, one of them against the Herron Hill Falcons in the preliminary to the Tulsa Oilers-Willigs game at the Pitt Stadium Pavilion next Thursday night. Two games are played weekly, one at home and one away. Rowlands confines his coaching mainly to talking to the players before games and between halves. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture above shows the players interested in a new defensive stratagem mapped out by him for their use.

BADLY BEATEN, PETROLLE QUITS RING

By BILL CORUM
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Barney Ross, lightweight champion, outpointed Billy Petrolle in an over-the-weight match in the Bronx Coliseum last night. Nobody got hurt.

Some 12,000 devotees of the cauliflower ear jammed their way into the oddly shaped hall that had once stood in the Sesqui-Centennial grounds in Philadelphia and had been transported to New York piece by piece.

With 12,000 packed inside, another 10,000 were turned away. If they had come seeking a super-thrill of the prizering, they were the fortunate ones. There was no super-thrill. To be wholly frank, there were few thrills of any kind.

Neither Ross nor Petrolle enhanced his fine reputations hereabouts. The Chicago lightweight may be the greatest fighter we have seen since Benny Leonard. But last night he was only the greatest we've seen since Tony Canzoneri, if that.

As for the old fellow from Fargo, if he still has that once dynamiting punch of his, it was not wrapped in his glove last night. And Petrolle without a punch is just another fighter. He and Ross made just another fight.

After the government tax was taken out there was $33,212 left in the tills—a noble sum, surely, for a fight held on the outskirts of Little America.

After the bout, Petrolle announced that he was through. He retired once before, but after resting a year, came back and reached greater heights than ever before.

He takes his last curtain call without the necessity of apologies. He always gave 'em the best he had.

CREW CLASSIC RESTORED

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Triumphantly riding the rising tide of returning prosperity, the Poughkeepsie Regatta will swing back into life again on June 16 after an absence of a year from the inter-collegiate sports program.

Keeping to a promise they made last year when they regretfully cancelled the 1933 races, the stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association unanimously have voted to renew the classic and expressed the hope and belief that the usual representation would be on hand to man the sweeps.

The decision restores to Eastern rowing fans one of the oldest and most colorful of all intercollegiate rivalries, inaugurated in 1895 and renewed every year since, except for the World War period, until last summer.

STAR ATHLETES TO TAKE PART IN CARNIVAL

By JESS CARVER

Most track coaches, in fact, all of 'em, take their sport very seriously. Carl Olsen, head man of the runners and jumpers and heavers at Pitt is no exception. Thanks to the Iowa Swede's enthusiasm, Pittsburgh gets its first real indoor track and field carnival, said meet getting under way tonight in the Pitt field house as athletes representing 11 clubs, high schools and colleges of the tri-state area participate in the trials for all events.

Carl Olsen

The finals will be put on tomorrow night. Eleven events are scheduled, including a two-mile, 300, 1,000 and 600-yard runs, a 50-yard dash, the 50-yard high hurdles, high jump, hop, step and jump, pole vault and broad jump.

Coach Olsen's big idea in putting on the affair is to stimulate track and field interest in this district (and goodness knows it needs it) and to lay a foundation for bigger and better meets in the future.

STARS TO COMPETE

Among the outstanding performers who will be seen in action in this year's carnival are Everette Utterback, former Pitt national intercollegiate indoor broad jump champion and record holder; Lowell Allen and Ken Roessler, of Salem, O., pole vault aces; Bill Robusch, who has held all district college and A. M. A. high jump and pole vault crowns at one time or other; Bill Keller, Pitt's crack middle distance runner; Mike Dunn and Bob Evans, Geneva College's brilliant pair of hurdlers, and Ed Work, former Purdue and Big Ten timber-topper.

The student body at Duquesne University presented Elmer Layden a master's degree in football at a general assembly held this morning in the school gymnasium for the purpose of giving the new Notre Dame football coach a royal sendoff, and at the same time welcome the new football coach, oJe Bach. Layden is scheduled to leave Saturday for South Bend to take up his new duties.

The gymnasium was packed to capacity for the affair. Adam Di Vincenzo, head cheer leader at Duquesne, was master of ceremonies. The speakers were the Rev. M. J. Brannigan, vice president of Duquesne University; Edward J. Waldman, editor of the Duquesne Duke; Dr. Percy Jones, professor of English, and Joe Bach. Brew Jackson, trainer of the Duquesne athletic teams, offered vocal selections and music was furnished by the Duquesne University band. The program was broadcast over two local stations.

Last night, Layden was guest of the university's board of governors at a dinner at the Architects' Club and tonight, Coach Jock Sutherland, of Pitt, is holding a dinner for his departing rival at the P. A. A.

CROFT, LEWIS TECH LEADERS

Co-captains will lead the Carnegie Tech football varsity on the gridiron next fall. Upon the recommendation of Coach Howard Harpster, the Tech athletic council has named Thurman (Dutch) Croft, big tackle, and Lib Lewis, brilliant end, captains for 1934.

The pair supplant Colin (Red) Stewart, who led the Plaid last fall. The new leaders are popular on the campus and both are brilliant footballers. Lewis has been dogged by tough luck since enrolling at Carnegie. He broke his leg in the game with Notre Dame in 1931 and was out of school during '32, returning last fall to win the regular terminal position. He pulled a muscle in the opening game with Temple after scoring a touchdown and in the Notre Dame game further aggrevated the injury as he tallied the touchdown that beat the Irish. In the Pitt game he had a finger badly lacerated.

The council also set the date for the second Tech-Duquesne game for November 2, 1935. The first game will be played next November 17.

Varsity letters and freshmen numerals were awarded; James R. Robinson, of Fairmont, W. Va., and William F. Becker, of Long Island City, N. Y., were appointed varsity football managers; George (Red) Silverman formally was appointed basketball captain, and Oscar Kraft, of Milwaukee, named freshman football manager.

The varsity football letter winners follow:

Capt. Stewart, Beveridge, Burzio, Croft, Bricker, Dellastatious, Drechsler, Forsman, Goodridge, Heinzer, Lewis, Mihm, O'Toole, Sachs, Bill Spivak, Tersakis, Trbovich, Vonderhorst, Student Manager Ford and Freshman Manager Krie.

Numerals were awarded the following freshmen:

FIGHT RESULTS

At New York, Barney Ross, world lightweight champion, defeated Billy Petrolle, 10 rounds (non-title); Davy Day knocked out Danny Rosen, 4 rounds; Patsy LaRocco defeated Lou Fox, 6 rounds; Irving Eldridge knocked out Joe Koval, 3 rounds; Johnny Romero defeated Johnny Gallo, 6 rounds; Mike Belloise defeated Al Roth, 6 rounds.

At Paris, France—Emile LaBrize defeated Jimmy Carantia, 10 rounds.

At Hartford, Ct.—Billy Wallace knocked out Joe Sica, 3 of 8 rounds.

At Chicago Sidy Rathjasy defeated Jack Aiello, 10 rounds; Lennie Cohen knocked out Jackie Collins, 3 rounds.

At Baltimore—Pete Nebo and Lew Raymond drew, 10 rounds; Charley Thompson defeated Eddie Marks, 6 rounds.

HEIDELBERG AND RIEHLS SET FOR CUP REPLAY

BUFF DONNELLI TO TRY FOR U. S. TEAM

By TOM BIRKS

The National Amateur soccer cup replay, featuring the Heidelberg and Castle Shannon Reihls elevens, at Greenlee Field Sunday afternoon will be the outstanding soccer attraction of the week-end.

Two weeks ago these bitter rivals clashed on the same field, a last-minute splurge by Heidelberg deadlocking the game. Stanley Kuten got loose and scored a brilliant goal to force the game into a replay.

LINEUP SHIFTED

Manager McCabe, of Heidelberg, has given the Green and Gold eleven quite a going over since that session. Last Sunday's game with Gallatin indicated that Heidelberg is in fine shape for the replay battle. Heidelberg is out to win the title for the third time and to get a shot at the crack Philadelphia team, the German-Americans, who now hold the trophy.

Many Pittsburgh soccer followers that made the trip to Philadelphia last year for the National Amateur cup final in which the Castle Shannon McKnights were beaten, are of the opinion that the German-Americans would defeat any club in the Pittsburgh district. Heidelberg would like to disprove this.

The Riehls will have to play minus the services of Johnny Jaap, who is a professional. The loss of Jaap has caused the Shannon executives to switch the front line around.

Buff Donnelli is trying to make the necessary arrangements to go East to try out for the American team that will go to Italy in May for the International games.

BUFF HAS CHANCE

There is every reason to believe that Buff will make the team, provided he gets any co-operation from his team mates in the trials. He will probably have some classy inside men playing along who will make the necessary openings for the local flash to get his goals.

Pittsburgh has placed two men in International teams. Berky Jones, playing for Heidelberg, went to Paris and Mike Bockie was on the team that went to South America.

Ralph De Palma, at 50, Reveals Plans Here to Race Again in Indianapolis Speedway Classic

Layden's 'Farewell to Dukes'

COACH JOE BACH — ELMER LAYDEN

Layden, former football coach and athletic director of Duquesne University, and his successor in charge of the squad at the student assembly at which he bade farewell to the university on the Bluff today. He leaves Saturday with his family for South Bend to take over his new duties at Notre Dame University, his Alma Mater. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Thrilling Feats Of White-Haired Vet Recalled

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

At 50 years—that's all he says he is, anyway, and, if his hair is snow-white, his complexion still is a youthful pink—Ralph De Palma, here this week for the Pittsburgh Automobile Show in Motor Square Garden, has lived half of his life as an automobile racer, and he isn't through yet.

Ralph De Palma

Right now he's planning to compete at Los Angeles next month, and he'll be back in the 500-mile grind at Indianapolis on Memorial Day, now that his type of car is eligible again. Mechanical restrictions have kept the grand old veteran out of the big race in recent years.

And yet—

What driver's name can stir up more thrilling memories of that test of tests in what De Palma calls the proving ground of the automobile industry, the racing game?

1912 RACE A CLASSIC

He was in the first 500-mile race at Indianapolis in 1911, when Ray Harroun was the winner at the then phenomenal speed of 74 miles per hour. Ralph finished fifth. He had started his racing career in 1908, so that he was a veteran even then.

They still talk about the 1912 Indianapolis race and the part De Palma played in it as one of the classics of the sport. With a lead of 22½ miles and only a little more than a lap of the 2½-mile track to go, De Palma's machine blew up. A broken connecting rod knocked off the magneto and Ralph and his mechanic, Rupert Jeffkens, an Australian, pushed the car about a fifth of a mile to the lap line, where, with still a full lap to go, they had to give up. Ralph remembers one of the officials jokingly telling him:

"No, no, Mr. De Palma, this is not a pushmobile race."

Under the rules then in force, De Palma would have won if that had been his last lap and he had pushed the car over the finish mark. As it was, the untimely accident cost him a prize of $34,000, which was a lot of money in those days—and still is, for that matter. Joe Dawson was the lucky winner.

In 1915, De Palma was the winner at Indianapolis by exactly one lap over Dario Resta, the Italian, who later was killed at Brooklands, England.

HOLDS RECORD

Came the 1919 race, and De Palma, a great favorite with the fans, was leading by five miles with only 75 miles to go when he struck a wall trying to avoid going through the flames of a wrecked car. His own car was so badly damaged that he was forced into the pits for 45 minutes and finished fifth.

In 1920, fate again dealt the Italian a cruel blow. With 25 miles to go, he had a lead of two laps when one of his magnetos went dead and he had to finish on four cylinders and came in fifth, with Gaston Chevrolet the winner.

For 14 years, De Palma and his "kid nephew," Pete De Paolo, have held the Indianapolis Speedway record. Ralph held it at 89.84 miles per hour from 1915 to 1921, and De Paolo at 101 miles per hour from 1925 on. Louie Meyer now holds the record at more than 104 miles per hour. De Palma, a contestant in 13 of the Indianapolis races, has covered more mileage on that track than any other racer.

HAS BEEN 'LUCKY'

But that's only part of the story of Ralph De Palma, whose name has been a household word and synonymous of automobile racing over this last quarter of a century. He has been in hundreds of races on brick, board and dirt tracks, and the news right now is that he's all set to go back on the Indianapolis Big Time. He's been in a lot of accidents in his days, has had broken legs and arms and ribs, and once was knocked out when his chin traded bumps with a steering wheel. But he's never been in a wreck in which his car caught fire. He smiles grimly as he says:

"I've been lucky that way."

This is Ralph's first visit to Pittsburgh since 1918, although he raced at Uniontown a few years later. His latest assignment is with the Ford Company, and he is making the round of the automobile shows in various parts of the country. When sighted by your correspondent, he was looking for a good spaghetti restaurant downtown and had for his guide Art Wright, former public relations man at the Altoona Speedway, now with the American Automobile Association Contest Board, with headquarters in Washington. Ralph's parting shot was:

"Why don't you get a nice, new, big speedway in Pittsburgh? I'd like to race here. I'm only 50 now, and I feel good for 50 years more, so any time you're ready send for me."

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

The Italian giant takes England by storm with his quick K. O. of Jack Stanley in 1929. The "Vast Venetian," "The Monster of Maul," etc., etc., has become the "talk of the town" in London. . . .

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion.

CHAPTER IX.
CARNERA AS A SHOWMAN

The Stanley knockout came on Thursday night, and the next afternoon a wholly unexpected proposition came to us. I received, in effect, about 5 o'clock, a visit from the booking agent of one of the greatest London music halls, the Alhambra.

"How much would you ask," he said to me, "for a week of appearances beginning next Monday?"

Primo Carnera

"Of appearances?" I replied, "but Carnera has never prepared a theatrical act. He has had no stage experience, nor furthermore any costumes or accessories of any kind."

The English are extraordinary businessmen. When they believe they have discovered an attraction of worth—a box-office magnet—they are admirably daring.

"You will arrange it all right," replied the agent, "you can get together something. I have no doubt about that. Carnera is the man of the hour and I am ready to pay what you wish, that is to say a large sum."

GETS STAGE OFFER

Such an offer did not tempt me a bit. I believed I knew my business as manager, but when it came to preparing an act for the stage in two days, of which one was Sunday, that was to risk ridicule, perhaps to lose prodigious popularity for Primo by presenting him in what show folks call "a flop number."

So I told the agent:

"Your proposition does not interest me. Carnera is a boxer, not an actor. I am very sorry."

British tenacity is not an empty word. The agent came back with:

"Actor or no actor, he is a mammoth attraction and that's all that interests me. I repeat: How much?"

He became irritating. In order to get rid of him I mentioned an extravagant sum of money.

"Five hundred pounds per week and I promise you the worst act ever hissed in England!"

In spite of his professional poise, the agent gave a start.

"I offer you four hundred and I will sign you at once for two weeks. You can see the confidence I have in your success."

A HURRY-UP ACT

Eight hundred pounds (about $4,000 then) represented 80,000 francs—a veritable fortune for a man who, some months before, wore cord-soled sandals instead of shoes!

The offer exceeded my wildest flight of imagination.

"One thousand pounds for two weeks," I insisted, "and I would be delighted if you refused."

"I will prepare the contracts," replied the agent.

I was astounded and somewhat cowed at the same time. In effect to produce a music hall number in 24 hours without a rehearsal, without costumes, with nothing, required a certain audacity. I am sure that audacity has never deserted me, but this time the job tested that quality of mine to the limit.

When I broke the news to Carnera, telling him: "You make your theatrical debut, Monday, on the stage at Alhambra," he replied with the utmost tranquility in his deep bass voice: "Good, it's a go!"

MONEY—WHAT IS IT?

When I mentioned the sum of the contract: One hundred thousand francs for two weeks, it did not impress him a bit. . . . Well, for a long time, figures had not much significance for Primo. He who in his youth had known the most absolute destitution—to whom the purchase of a suit or a pair of shoes had been an unsolvable problem—had regarded his first thousand franc note as an enormous sum—"incredible." . . . After that, when I talked with him of purse of 10,000, of 20,000 francs or more, to him they remained vague, incoherent—more or less numbers and zeros confusedly aligned!

Apropos, I remember a characteristic anecdote: It happened several months after the incidents I have related. Carnera, having had many bouts in America, had made a very imposing amount of dollars. One day when his share had surpassed the million franc point, I said to him:

"Primo, old man, I have good news for you; you have a million already."

"A million dollars?" he queried.

"No, my boy, a million francs."

"Oh, yes, that is what I thought."

And that was all.

WITHOUT REHEARSAL

It is evident that Carnera had only a very vague idea then of what a million could be . . .

But, let us go back to the Alhambra. The problem was to produce, at certain hours a music hall number at least presentable. We decided to arrange some plastic poses with special spotlights, to be followed by some physical culture exercises at which Primo was commencing to excell, and to end with three rounds of boxing, of one minute each, against three different sparring partners.

We actually had not rehearsed the number and the first appearance on Monday would be at 2 o'clock.

"Do not worry," the manager at noon had told us, "there will be scarcely any people at this matinee, which will serve you as a rehearsal."

Imagine the amazement of the personnel of the Alhambra when, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, a crowd of 500 persons assailed the boxoffice. It was necessary to send in a hurry call for extra police. It was something unprecedented.

HIT OF THE SHOW

Incidentally, my giant had been engaged at the last moment as a supplementary sensational number to a program arranged many weeks in advance in which the chief attraction ought to be a noted popular singer.

But the audience was in such a hurry to acclaim its new idol that, when the singer appeared, she was received with grossly impolite shouts of:

"We Want Carnera!"

The unfortunate singer was unable to finish her first song and withdrew to the wings before the disorderly storm of applase for my "Vast Venetian."

And a London newspaper (the slightest gesture of the giant had now become a matter for sensational copy) flashed in its editions of the same evening a story with these headlines: "Carnera Knocks Out Singer."

Primo's act, so hastily prepared, was nothing less than an extraordinary success. From the day of his stage debut, Carnera revealed a remarkable quality which I had not suspected in him, that of an extremely gifted comedian.

Perhaps the numerous daily wrestling sessions in the traveling circus had developed this talent in him. In any case this remarkable aptitude was to be a valuable help in the course of numerous subsequent encounters and, in particular, at the time of the two bouts which he engaged in several weeks later with Young Stribling—sensational and fantastic encounters which were to make waves of ink flow and about which, for the first time, I am going to reveal the true "inside."

The two weeks at the theater were a continually increasing success, an uninterrupted series of packed houses, the Alhambra, during that fortnight, breaking all its records for receipts.

MEETS MISS TERSINI

It was in the course of this fortnight at the Alhambra music hall in London that Primo made the acquaintance of Miss Emilia Tersini, today known throughout the whole world, who was at that time an attractive waitress in the restaurant in Soho where we took our meals late in 1929.

When Carnera, captivated by the velvety and languishing eyes of the beauutiful Emilia, commenced a discreet courtship (which went crescendo in its continuation, alas, with some dangerously inflamed letters!) he hardly suspected what romance might produce. Nor did he dream, of course, that the young Italian girl who served him chops and spaghetti would be awarded, three and a half years later, a sum four times greater than the approximate $5,000 which Primo's two weeks' contract at the Alhambra brought in! And such damages have been assessed for breach of promise to marry, alas!!

ENTER YOUNG STRIBLING

When Primo wrote to Emilia "You are for me the dearest woman in the world," he did not realize that a prophetic construction might some day be put upon that not inept choice of word . . .

But the time has come to tell of the two encounters, still famous, in which the Italian faced the late Young Stribling, one of the ablest boxers and most pleasant gentlemen I ever met.

The writers will present a program of sketches in which they will lampoon the individuals and games with which they are associated.

NEW CHAMPIONS EXPECTED IN FLOOR RACES

By JULIUS LEVIN

Judging from the showing of the district scholastic basketball teams as the season nears the halfway point, new champions loom in many sections of the W. P. I. A. L. and in one division of the City League.

With South High School, last year's champion, riding high, wide and handsome in Section I, there is little chance of a new titleholder being crowned in this division, although Connelley Trade School is not out of the running by any means despite its defeat at the hands of the Orioles.

Perry appears to be eliminated in Section II with the race resting between South Hills and Langley, now deadlocked for first place. South Hills was checked by Allegheny only to turn right around and hand Langley its first setback. Perry, last year's Section II titleholder, already has dropped two league games, bowing to South Hills and Langley.

KEN HIGH AHEAD

New Kensington, undefeated in Section I of the W. P. I. A. L., appears to be well on its way to its third successive divisional crown. Leetsdale, champion in Section II for the last two years, faces a real menace in Avalon, which is pressing the Buker charges for the crown.

New Castle, holder of the Section III crown for the last two seasons, has a real rival in Butler, while in Section IV, Ambridge, the defending titleholder, finds itself pressed by its old rival from across the river, Aliquippa. Both are undefeated.

Monessen, defending champion in Section V, already has been checked and the fight in this group is wide open. Ford City is well on its way to its third straight championship in Section VI, while Duquesne, last year's W. P. I. A. L. winner, looms as a repeater in Section VII. The Ray Henry-coached team is undefeated in league competition.

SCOTT UNDEFEATED

Scott High, former W. P. I. A. L. and state champion, is back in the running for the Section VIII crown and looms as a successor to Rankin, last year's winner. Dormont appears to be the successor to Mt. Lebanon as the titleholder in Section IX. Mt. Lebanon had won the title two straight years.

Sections X and XI are certain to get new titleholders inasmuch as the defending champions in both divisions have been switched around.

Connellsville, Section X titlist last season, is battling Uniontown for the Section XI toga, while the Section X crown rests between Greensburg and Latrobe. Norwin won the Section XI title last season.

Robinson Township appears to have been eliminated in Section XII with Brentwood, a newcomer in the league, ascending the throne. Georges, Section XIII champion, has a real rival in Mapletown, while McDonald and Oakdale are battling for the right to replace Cecil Township.

WASHINGTON IN RACE

Canonsburg, twice winner in Section XV, finds Washington ready to oust it from the race, while East Bethlehem looms as a successor to Centerville in Section XVI.

East Pittsburgh, coached by Johnny Coleman, is well on its way to its third straight Section XVII championship, while in Section XVIII, Mars is expected to replace Union Township.

A change has been made in the eliminations for the state championship. The City League winner and the W. P. I. A. L. champion, heretofore in the same brackets, will be in separate groups this year. As a result, the only possible chance of the two contenders meeting will be in a game for the regional final.

TEDDY YAROSZ HOST TODAY

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

North Boroughs Athletic Club amateur bouts, Etna Elks Auditorium.
Moon Mullins vs. Jackie Sharkey, 10 rounds, Vincennes, Ind.
Bep Van Klaveren vs. Phil Rafferty, 10 rounds, New York.
Frankie Petrolle vs. Bucky Jones, 8 rounds, Philadelphia.

With the state middleweight title bout of 15 rounds between Teddy Yarosz and Jimmy Smith at Motor Square Garden, Friday night of next week, just a week away, interest is being concentrated on the principals.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond today led an inspection party to Ted's training quarters in the Beaver Valley to get a line on the boxer's condition. Meanwhile he has received word from Philadelphia that Smith and Danny Hassett, his stablemate, who meets Anson Green in the semi-final here, are working out with each other and both are near their peak.

The advance sale of tickets continues to exceed expectations, but Promoter Jules Beck says there still are many good ones left for fans who want to be sure of seeing the show. The possibility of a sell-out a few days before the bout still is threatened. Ticket orders are being filled as fast as received at fight headquarters in the Seventh Avenue Hotel.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Two five-round bouts and 10 three-rounders make up an amateur boxing card under the auspices of the North Boroughs Athletic Club in the Etna Elks' Auditorium tonight. Homus Wagner will be among the spectators.

Jim McGirr will stage his next professional show in McKeesport one week from next Monday night.

Moose Butch's knockout victory over Rosy Grier in Canton, O., Tuesday night, was his fifteenth straight win. His bout with Ross Fields at Wheeling has been set back from next Monday to February 12 at Fields' request. Moose is aiming to build up himself locally so he can land a real 15-round bout with a topnotcher here during the summer.

Max Elling wants a crack at Joey Bazzone and Dominic Mancini and also is ready to box Marty Gornick again.

Charley Hyatt's Father Guest of Seals Tonight

C. DeWITT HYATT

The Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph do a double duty in their weekly radio broadcast over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight when they have C. DeWitt Hyatt, athletic director of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, as their guest speaker and at the same time reveal a hidden chapter in the life of their announcer, Alan Trench. You'll be surprised!

Hyatt is the father of Charley Hyatt, the greatest college basketball player ever developed in these parts, now the star of the famous Tulsa Oilers, who play the Willigs, of McKeesport, in a big homecoming game for Charley in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion next Thursday night. He will speak on the athletic phase of club life and also will tell of the development of Charley as a basketball star.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will be master of ceremonies.

PIGEON RACERS GET AWARDS

W. Riley, C. Engel, G. Dummer and operators of the Silver Loft today are in possession of awards from the Pitsburgh Branch of the American Racing Pigeon Union. The awards are made annually, shortly after the close of a season, to the owners of birds whose performances were outstanding during the campaign.

Riley is the recipient of the average speed diploma of the old bird series, and also the champion average speed diploma, for the combined old and young bird races. Engel received the average speed diploma for the young bird series, and Dummer was awarded a gold medal which his birds won in a series of championship 500-mile races last year. Oscar W. Opsann, president of the United Homing Pigeon Concourse, of New York City, made the latter award while attending the annual meeting here. The Silver Loft won over $400 in prizes in races for young birds.

The outstanding award known to pigeon-racing—the Hall of Fame award from the American Racing Pigeon Union—was received by the Morris brothers in recognition of their bird's astounding feat in 1932, when it made a second 600-mile flight after only three days of rest. This record is said to be without equal.

Officers elected to serve during 1934 are: G. R. Carbley, president; T. J. Fulton, vice president; H. W. Liekefet, secretary and treasurer; W. R. Stamford, recorder; C. Happ, C. Abitz and F. Wilsman, auditors.

PITT SWIMMERS ROUT TECH

Coach Pat Corr's crack University of Pittsburgh varsity swimming team opened the 1934 intercollegiate campaign by scoring a 48-to-23 triumph over Carnegie Tech's splashers in the Tartan pool yesterday afternoon, sweeping all seven of the individual events and losing the relay through being disqualified.

One Tech record went by the boards when Russ Lindberg covered the 150-yard backstroke distance in 1:45.1.

QUARTER-FINALS REACHED IN SQUASH PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Quarter-final contests stand out on today's program of competition in the annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation singles squash racquets tournament in progress since last Saturday on the Northumberland courts. Three of the four bracket-of-eight matches are slated for this afternoon, the remaining tussle, wherein Ed Seifert, Keystone star and captor of two inter-city verdicts, will encounter Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, being listed for tomorrow.

The feature of today's bill brings together Henry Blaxter, versatile K. A. C. flash, and Frank McClintock, veteran Winged Head contender, at 5:30. A half-hour earlier, Jim Ebbert, leading survivor of the home club contingent, battles Charley Fagan, cagy Keystoner. In the third tussle of the session, McCook Reed, city premier, takes on his cousin, McCook Miller, conqueror of Joe Oliver.

SEIFERT BEATS BICKEL

Seifert hit the high spot of yesterday by eliminating his teammate, rangy Bill Bickel, 17-16, 15-12, 15-11.

Favorites prevailed in other tilts, Blaxter defeating Dr. Whitey Stegeman, Ebbert downing Barney Wolfe and McClintock accounting for C. L. Snowdon, Jr., as Reed ran afoul of unexpectedly formidable opposition from Keystone's Chip Kennedy and traveled four close cantos ere recording 17-18, 18-16, 15-11, 15-12 decision. The summary:

Third round—W. McCook Reed defeated G. C. Kennedy, 17-18, 18-16, 15-11, 15-12; J. K. Ebbert defeated W. B. Wolfe, 15-7, 15-5, 15-10; Frank S. McClintock defeated C. L. Snowdon, Jr., 15-5, 15-13, 15-10; Henry V. Blaxter, Jr., defeated Dr. G. Stegeman, 15-8, 15-9, 16-17, 15-8; E. E. Seifert defeated W. D. Bickel, 17-16, 15-12, 15-11; Charles A. Fagan, Jr., defeated Charles A. Woods, Jr., 15-11, 18-15, 15-11.

DAVIS RETURNS

President J. Phillips Davis, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, has returned to the Steel City after spending the past week-end and the early portion of the current week in the East. Davis represented the P. T. A. at the Middle States L. T. A. meeting in Philadelphia on Saturday and later adjourned to New York for final conference over details of the annual conclave of the United States L. T. A. to be held in Pittsburgh for the first time February 9 and 10.

EQUITIES DULL, HOLD NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Financial markets appeared somewhat spiritless today.

Stocks followed a rather dull routine in the early hours and prices of some of the recently buoyant leaders were disposed to ease a trifle under intermittent profit-taking flurries. There was nothing unusually heavy. Some specialties held their followings and managed to move up fractionally to around a point. Several so-called "pools" were supposed to be operating, but information about these was vague.

Buying of gold and the sale of dollars in London by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York did not seem to affect the firmness of the American monetary unit, which pushed up a cent or more in relation to sterling. Grains and cotton moved hesitantly. Silver futures were a little heavy, but rubber exhibited strength.

Shares of some of the motor and automobile accessory companies moved up moderately in response to prognostications of better business.

Brokerage houses with foreign connections reported that buying from abroad has been expanding substantially recently. One of the leading houses in the "Street" stated that its business from London on Wednesday was the heaviest in more than a month. Selected common stocks and secondary rail liens, it was said, appeared to lead in popularity with the European customers.

Various market observers, although still bullishly inclined, continued to caution clients against the indiscriminate purchase of either stocks or bonds. It was reiterated that a number of stocks now look too high as measured either by conservative hopes or existing facts.

The recent halt in steel production progress, while due to a number of factors, was partly attributed to the tapering off in demand from the automobile industry as a result of delays in getting new models into production. The motor lull, advices from manufacturers stated, was expected to be only temporary.

The overscription to the government's new billion-dollar note and certificate issues apparently furnished little stimulus to either listed shares or bonds, although banking circles pointed out that the heavy demand for the short-term securities was a foregone conclusion. The many guesses as to the allotments of subscriptions ranged from 10 to 35 per cent. The popular reception accorded the new obligations was said to have been due to the attractive interest rates and to the fact that only a billion dollars was borrowed when some estimates had placed the figure much higher.

Opinions were voiced in the financial district that, as soon as the administration's monetary legislation is enacted by Congress and indications given that the dollar will be maintained at around 40 per cent revaluation, an effort may be made to float a long-term treasury refunding loan.

A note of cheer was sounded by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., which found that bank clearings throughout the country for the week ended yesterday showed "the first substantial gain during the past month or more." The fact that 17 of 21 larger cities reported larger clearings was seen as confirming the general improvement of business and industry.

SOVIET CREDIT SEEN NEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The presence in New York of Alexander A. Troyanovsky, the Soviet ambassador, created a well-founded report last night that an extension of credit would shortly be granted to Russia by Wall street banks.

The ambassador was a guest at a Bankers' Club luncheon with representatives of the largest financial institutions and industries, including Thomas Lamont, of the J. P. Morgan Company; Owen D. Young and Reeve Schley, vice president of the Chase National Bank.

Troyanovsky, it was understood, reiterated the Soviet position that a credit extension must precede heavy purchases of American goods.

Another point stressed was that there must be more trade reciprocity by America.

The belief has long been held in New York circles that heavy credits would come from banking houses and not from the federal government. This was emphasized at the time of recognition.

BUYING LAGS, WHEAT EASES

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Downturns of grain prices took place early today, influenced by the fact that temperatures Southwest were not as low as had been expected. Buying lacked volume. Opening unchanged to 5/8 lower, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn started unchanged to 1/8 down, and subsequently underwent a general decline.

Hope Drives Fear From America

By B. C. FORBES

AFTER FOUR YEARS of walking on quicksand, America is finding firmer footing.

Whereas almost every class formerly was more or less fearful of what might befall—men of affairs, debt-owing farmers, wage-earners, mortgaged home owners, bankers, executives—the majority are now looking upward rather than downward, are hopeful rather than fearful.

Mr. Forbes

Already there has been genuine improvement in almost every important economic direction: in agriculture, in trade, in employment, in stocks, in bonds, in most raw materials, in minimum wages, in transportation, in industry, in profits.

The atmosphere in America's financial metropolis is no longer heavily charged with nervousness. Day after day brings displays of a degree of stability long lacking. There have been few sharp, disturbing breaks lately in security or commodity prices. Occasionally there have been quick rebounds; but the common thing has been for markets to move unspectacularly, albeit with a strong under-current.

Yesterday was quite typical of most days: both securities and commodities were more active than they were during acute uncertainty, and the price trend was modestly upwards. Such a condition is healthy, infinitely preferable to sensational sky-rocketing in quotations, which would inevitably bring unsettling relapses.

Yes, America appears to be on its way out and up economically in a steady-going, orderly, encouraging way.

BETTER OIL dividends loom.

THE TREASURY in its big borrowing can depend upon the co-operation of influential bankers. Just how to go about fixing terms for new governmental financing is one subject on which Secretary Morgenthau does consult practical authorities.

SALESMEN are probably the livest lot in America. The "stars" exercise extraordinary resoucefulness, especially in devising ways and means to do helpful things for their prospects and customers.

Judging from questions put to the writer, some apprehension has arisen among salesmen in certain lines that the forbidding of price-cutting by NRA codes will handicap selling. In salesmanship other things besides prices count. The art of salesmanship, as I see it, can be expressed in one brief sentence:

Make people want to do business with you.

RFC Suspends Debenture Sales

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Sale of 2½ per cent debentures to banks by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been stopped, it was learned today.

The administration felt that money borrowed by the government should be obtained by the Treasury rather than other agencies. In the future the RFC will obtain what funds it needs from the Treasury.

The RFC had been offering its debentures to banks which sold their preferred stock and capital notes to the corporation.

Swindlers Resume Sell And Switch Game

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE FEDERAL SECURITIES ACT has done much for the protection of investors but it has not succeeded in preventing the use of the telephone by stock swindlers. This is made known in a report of the Better Business Bureau on the activities of fraudulent brokers.

The act appears to have relegated the well-known tipster sheet to limbo but it has not wiped out the old sell-and-switch game. The Better Business Bureau declares that this form of swindling is increasing.

The first approach of the sell-and-switch operators usually is made by telephone. The salesman names the stock of some well-known company and declares that he has information that the stock is due for an increase in price. It often happens that the first stock recommended is one already held by the prospect or at least one favorably known.

Margin Purchase Usually Sought

THE CUSTOMER USUALLY is told to buy the stock on margin and is urged to send in his checks or securities immediately. Usually the broker actually buys the stock. The salesman rarely is interested in getting the prospect to buy outright and take delivery since this lets the prospect get out of his control.

If the stock actually does increase in price, the salesman again phones and recommends that the customer take his advice, sell the stock and buy shares in another organization which is not well known.

Even if the price declines, the salesman calls anyhow and explains that the pool which was to have boosted the price has changed its plans. Accordingly he advises the sale of the stock and the purchase of another stock on which he has positive information that the price will rise.

The second stock is not sold on margin. For obvious reasons the mails are rarely used. The general practice is for a messenger to deliver the stock immediately and to get the customer's check if the salesman has been successful in getting more money out of him than the original amount put up.

Switch System Is Old Method

OF COURSE the second stock into which the customer finally is switched has little or no real value and it is in this transaction that the fraudulent broker gets his profit.

The sell-and-switch method is an old one but, judging from its continued use, it works. The prospect's natural suspicions at first are allayed by the recommendation of the stock of a well-known company. Then, after confidence has been gained, the fraudulent transaction takes place.

A few simple precautions will guard against fraudulent stock salesmen. First of all, don't buy stocks over the telephone from salesmen whom you do not know. Insist that the salesman call on you. Then ask him to show his card showing that he is registered with the Pennsylvania Securities Commission. Every firm and every salesman conducting a general business in stocks or bonds must be registered if the business is legal.

Of course registration is not proof that it is advisable to buy the stocks or bonds offered, but it at least indicates that the firm has convinced the Securities Commission that it is engaged in an honest business.

GASOLINE PACT CONFAB ON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Detailed consideration of the gasoline stabilization pool and marketing practices agreements for the oil industry was begun today at the second session of a conference of signatories of the pacts. The sessions are closed to the public.

The representatives of the signatories of the agreements had before them copies of the pacts as finally agreed to by Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, together with the reservations he attached to them.

A recess had been taken since early yesterday to permit a thorough study of the documents.

The purpose of the conference is to determine the methods of application of the agreements and the effect they will have individually within the industry.

FOURTH DEGREE

CHAPTER XIX

"Where to?" asked Carroll in bewilderment.

"Where? Oh, of course, to Mrs. Phelps. We're going to make her tell what she took out of that desk over there. And it is imperative that we get there before Robert Cleveland has a chance to see her."

At this moment there was a blare from the police car as it rushed up in front of the door, Carroll and I, looking as dumb as a couple of fish but breathing hard with excitement, dashed after Anderson into the driving storm and were whirled away into the clouds of mist and rain up the narrow lane which led to Neighbor Phelps' house.

In silence we watched Anderson and waited for him to speak. What it was all about we had not the faintest idea, but one glance at the Inspector's face told us that it was serious whatever it was. It was flushed a brick-red with resentment and anger and his mouth was drawn in a tense straight line. A foreboding face at this moment, with every trace of kindliness wiped out. Now we were seeing Anderson the detective, the merciless sleuth off on a bloody trail. I could almost have expected him to reach across the automobile seat and clasp the handcuffs on my wrists as he cried, "You are the man!"

Mrs. Phelps Followed

"You heard him!" he burst out at last. "You heard him—the dirty liar! What kind of a fool does he take me for? Coming up there with that song and dance and trying to pull the wool over my eyes! Applesauce!"

"What's the trouble, Captain Andy?" I asked soothingly. "Who's done what and why?"

Anderson stared at me for a moment in silence and a certain grim humor crept into his flashing eyes.

"I mean Robert Cleveland," he answered. "You heard that conversation up there at the house a few minutes ago, didn't you? Heard him say 'he had just met' Mrs. Phelps, didn't you, 'once about six weeks ago' and that he 'would hardly know her again'?"

He shook out the words bitingly as a terrier worries a rat.

"Well?" said Carroll innocently. "He didn't know her, did he?"

"Know her? Hell!" exploded Anderson. "I've had Mrs. Phelps followed every minute since I first learned that she was the last person to see Mrs. Paige before she was murdered. Particularly since I found those cigaret butts with woman's lipstick smeared on them. And here—look at this—this is the official report on Mrs. Phelps' morning of this very day. Just read it, will you, and tell me what you think of it?"

Visited Man

He handed us the envelope which he had received from the plain clothes man in the library a few minutes earlier. It was an official police sheet and Carroll and I read it, overcome with curiosity.

It stated an amazing fact—a fact that in the light of Robert Cleveland's visit and the statements which he had made was absolutely incomprehensible!

Mrs. Phelps had left her home at 9 o'clock that very morning, had gone to Robert Cleveland's private office. And she had been alone with him in consultation for exactly one hour and 10 minutes prior to Cleveland's call at the Paige house!

"But I don't understand," I began stumblingly. "Why on earth should Mr. Robert Cleveland, of all people in the world, have denied knowing Mrs. Phelps? And have said that he had met her only once about six weeks ago? Why did he say anything about it? Or come up and calmly offer you his assistance?"

"Assistance!" snorted Anderson. "Kay, you get dumber every minute! Cleveland came to see me for exactly one reason and one only—and that was to sound me and find out how much I knew! Mrs. Phelps went to him with information and he had to find out quickly whether we were on the right trail or not. That lady—and maybe Cleveland himself—are guilty and I'm going to prove it to you in quick order!"

Anderson Enraged

The car now came to a stop in front of a low rambling villa overrun with ivy—a charming home even in the driving gale.

Anderson flung open the door without waiting for his chauffeur's assistance and dashed up the few steps leading to the tiny entrance porch. He put one hand on the bell and kept it there while with the other he vainly tried to open the door. The Inspector was in a towering rage, stung to the quick that a public official of Cleveland's prominence should have attempted to hoodwink him.

The ring was answered very promptly by a young, pretty maid in uniform.

Anderson scarcely gave her a glance.

"Inform Mrs. Phelps that Inspector Anderson is here and wishes to see her immediately. Immediately, do you understand? And tell her that I intend to tolerate no delay!"

It was evidently on the tip of the servant's tongue to state that her mistress was out as she had doubtless been instructed to do, but something in Anderson's tone convinced her that she had best deliver the message as promptly and as accurately as possible.

"Yes, sir," she replied in a frightened voice and scurried away.

Anderson strode into a low-ceilinged drawing-room to the left of the hall and we tagged along close at his heels.

The maid apparently forgot nothing in repeating the conversation, for Mrs. Phelps, either through fear or anger, promptly swept down the stairway. Her face, like Anderson's, was flushed with rage.

"Really, sir," she began, without any preliminaries and without deigning to notice either Carroll or myself, "I have always understood that policemen were without the rudiments of politeness but I did not know that their lack of good manners extended to invading the homes of private individuals and the ordering of other peoples' servants!"

Suspect Defiant

"I don't care what you understand, Mrs. Phelps," answered Anderson rudely. "You take a seat there in that chair. I have a few questions to ask you and I intend to have an answer to them!"

"Really?" replied the lady, with a scarcely veiled sneer. "I imagine that you are going to be quite disappointed. I came to see you voluntarily and offered my assistance in any way possible. That is quite a different matter from receiving orders!"

"A very different matter, indeed," began Anderson. "But you can take your choice between answering these questions here in the privacy of your home or at the police station in the presence of the reporters. I have a blank warrant here in my pocket and at the first lie you tell me you will find yourself locked up as a material witness in the murder of Mrs. Paige. There are several things that apparently you do not know about the police department. One is that it has a way of its own to make people talk who don't want to.

"Come here, you," he shouted at the maid who was still lingering in the doorway with her mouth open and a terrified expression on her face. "You are not to interrupt your mistress until I have finished! Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir," gasped the girl meekly, and withdrew from the room. We heard her French heels tapping down the hall.

"Now," began Mrs. Phelps defiantly, "Just exactly what do you want that you dare to invade my home and speak to me and to my maid in this manner?"

Denies Charge

"This is what I wish to know," answered Anderson coldly, "and I intend to have an answer. What did you take from Mrs. Paige's desk in the library last night when you and your confederate sent us out to the garden?"

Mrs. Phelps never winced. On the contrary, her relief was apparent and she permitted herself a bland malicious smile. Whatever she had feared it was not this.

"Why, that is such a simple question, my dear Inspector! I took nothing at all!"

"That's an outrageous lie and I am going to have the truth," retorted Anderson furiously. "This gentleman here saw you remove something from that desk and here is the very hairpin with which you succeeded in prying it open!"

From an inner pocket he produced the slender gilt hairpin which he had picked up on the floor of the library the night before.

Mrs. Phelps smiled now in frank amusement.

"What a detective you are, Inspector! That may or may not be my hairpin. If you picked it up in Sunny's house, it probably is. I can assure you, however, that you will doubtless find plenty more of them strewn around in every room of the house, for I was a frequent visitor there, and these bobbed heads of ours are the death of us!" And she ran her hands through her yellow mop. "But surely you do not consider me under suspicion just because I dropped a hairpin, do you?"

"What did you take from the desk?" persisted Anderson inexorably.

"And again, my dear Inspector, I will answer you that I took nothing nor did I open the desk!"

Synopsis

Sonia (Sunny) Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph (Ranny) Paige, is found hanging by a silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. An autopsy reveals that Sunny had been suffocated first with the tassel of the cord and then hung. Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, says the night of the tragedy was her night off and that Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, was to spend the evening with Sunny. Inspector Anderson is furious when Ranny employs Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, to investigate the tragedy. Anderson and Judson decide to forget their antagonism and work together. Anderson questions Mrs. Phelps. A face peers in the window. Anderson thinks Mrs. Phelps tampered with Sunny's desk when the police sought the intruder. Robert Cleveland, prominent attorney and friend of Paige, seems anxious to help the young man.

MILITARY LEADERS OF THE WORLD WAR

The terrible drive of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Gen. Ludendorff in March, 1918, induced the Allies to place their European forces under the command of Marshal Ferdinand Foch. Victory was the result of the united effort. The Western German Front soon collapsed; so did those of the other of the Central Powers, who faced revolution and chaos as well as defeat. November 11, 1918, an armistice was signed by Germany. Above generals led American, British, French, German armies.

PEACE CONFERENCE AT PARIS—THE BIG FOUR

The Peace Conference met at Paris January 18, 1919, led by President Wilson, and Premiers Clemenceau (France), Lloyd George (England), and Orlando (Italy), the "Big Four." The Allies previously had accepted President Wilson's 14 Points (freedom of the seas, elimination of secret diplomacy, reduction of armaments, impartial adjustment of colonies, fixing borders by nationalities, etc.

The Treaty of Versailles, however, was punitive and in contrast to Wilson's intentions. It was signed by Germany June 28, 1919, as the alternative to renewal of war. Germany was deprived of about one-sixth of her territory and all her colonies, had to confess guilt for the war, assume reparations to be fixed by a commission, and promise to pay a tremendous indemnity. Similar fate betook the other Central Powers.

One part of the treaty was the Covenant of the League of Nations, aiming at World Peace. The U. S. never ratified the treaty; she declared the war terminated by Congressional resolution.

WILSON CAMPAIGNING

When President Wilson sailed to Paris for the Peace Conference, 1918, he had lost support at home through a partisan appeal for election of Democrats to Congress. Still absent, his peace policy was attacked in Congress. Returned, his brilliant eloquence could not obtain a ratification of the Versailles Treaty. Wilson then began a countrywide tour, making a direct appeal to the people for support of the League of Nations, his project for world betterment. Opposition trailed him, speaking against it. Wilson lost his case and also his health. Above, President Wilson on his tour in Columbus, O., fall of 1919 (United States History)

CIRCULATORY SYSTEM OF THE HUMAN BODY

The circulatory system is a network of tubular canals, blood vessels, in which the blood travels, transporting nourishment to the cells and carrying away waste material (1) The heart, a double pump drives the blood through the strong elastic walled arteries; the blood then passes through the thin-walled capillaries and enters the muscle-walled veins, which return it to the heart.

Right and left halves of the heart form a complete pump each (2) Upper part of heart (3, in section) consists of thin-walled left and right auricles receiving blood through the veins. Below them are the left and right ventricles, thick-walled chambers with powerful muscles. The auricles contract, fill the ventricles with blood, the contraction of the ventricles eject the blood into the aorta (from left half) resp into the pulmonary artery (from right half) The valves in heart and blood vessels allow the flow of blood in one direction only. Thus the circulation system is double, the pulmonary circulation is served by the right half, and the body circulation (systemic) by the left half of the heart.

Each 23 seconds the same unit of blood is returned to the heart which expands and contracts about 70 times a minute (heart - pulse - beat).

Dombey, a widowed rich businessman, lost his boy, the center of his ambitions. He neglects his daughter Florence and marries a proud, cold, beautiful woman, who becomes fond of the little girl. Mr. Dombey, displeased, tries to humiliate his wife through Carker, his manager. His wife, in retaliation, promises to meet Carker in France, only to shame and defy him. Carker, pursued by Dombey, is killed by a train.

Florence, accused as the cause of the trouble, takes refuge with an old sea captain, a friend. She then marries Walter Gay, her childhood playmate, and goes with him to sea.

Dombey's firm collapses, he is humbled and left desolate. Florence returns and lovingly provides for him. (Charles Dickens: Dombey and Son)

Yours of the 23rd Inst. Received

The whole nation is gogging up about lynching. Before choosing up sides remember there is a town named after it in Virginia.

Round the first of the year we wrote to many prominent posses in different sections of the map. We wanted their views on their quaint customs. One of the replies follows under separate cover:

"We don't like crime down in our state. If you visit my town some time we will give you the freedom of the city. Ed Brang, Lynchburg."

That was a happy coincidence too numerous to mention.

We wrote to Ed refusing the invitation and canceling the freedom of Lynchburg.

We don't wear anything around our neck that ain't been knitted by a benevolent and hospitable ladies-aid society.

Out of 6,768,000 replies, one was for lynching, one against, and the others didn't answer.

Rather than start the argument all over again we called it a draw.

The concensus of opinion is that nobody cares what happens to anybody if it doesn't happen to them.

There will always be sporadic outbursts of hempen enthusiasm so long as ropes are long and tempers are short.

But don't forget that posses don't form unless crimes have been committed. Jesse James feared no posse ever coagulated together by indignation and retribution. Jesse liked them. They were company on the way home.

We concede that this kind of tug-of-war is the lowest form of outdoor sport. But 80 years ago it was the only law in the west. Now, when the mills of the gods slow down it seems the folks are grinding their own flour.

Lynching is the effect and not the cause. There is no locality in this nation that wants trouble. But, if you supply the words they will furnish the music.

Personally, The Bug is against lynching. We cannot stand the suspense.

How to Prevent War

The Uncensored Pictures, Turning Our Thoughts to Safety, Point to the Need of Strong Defenses

As the eye dwells upon the uncensored World War photographs now being published in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, and depicting so faithfully its heart-rending agonies, one cannot help asking—how do such afflictions come upon us?

From what arises the compulsion that men should accept such sufferings and submit to such a fate as a part of the human lot?

The answer is not hard to find.

War is the result of national policies. It may not be an actual "instrument of national policy," as the phrase is used in the Kellogg Pact, by which a majority of the nations have agreed to refrain from war as a direct means of achieving national purposes.

But war is none the less the result of national policies—blind, mistaken, stupid policies—even negative policies, such as neglect to maintain a proper defensive strength against the designs and aggressions of hostile or envious rival nations.

China is not war-like, nor does she want war, but she has plenty of it as the result of her fatal policy of ignoring dangers and neglecting the irresistible potentialities of her people for national defense.

Diplomacy is the great ally of war. This sinister game, in which all nations think themselves adept, never admits its errors, never retraces its steps. When it can no longer cope with the results of its folly, it can be depended on to plunge the helpless and voiceless peoples of the world into war, as the only "out" for itself. It passes the buck, as it were, to the bewildered masses, and finds it easier to endure their slaughter than its own discomfiture and loss of reputation.

Then, when blundering diplomacy and the stupidities of statesmen have done their worst, some law, such as "the selective draft," is invoked—and the helpless people of the land are wrenched from their homes and useful labors, and marched by the thousands and the millions to the charnel house of a war which is not of their making and which they hate with their souls.

We can only break this hideous sequence of events—we can only escape the fate of the war-stricken, by asserting our rights as a self-governing people to be protected against such a fate before it is too late.

If we see our foreign envoys or our State Department flirting with international pacts or leagues or accords or understandings, we must make known our determination in terms that cannot be misunderstood that WE WILL HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH SUCH THINGS! They point the way that leadeth to destruction. The American people will not travel such a road.

If we see in our government a disposition to slight the national defense, on the specious plea of economy, while squandering public money in expenditures which contribute little to our well-being and NOTHING TO OUR SAFETY, we must stamp upon such a betrayal. It is nothing but a step, and a long one, in the direction of war.

To weaken our defenses is to invite attack. If we are not able to repel attack, we may be certain we shall invite it.

To starve the Army, to skimp the Navy, to neglect our Air Defense, are the initial steps toward war. We are laying the foundations of war. It is the sure beginning of our undoing.

Let us realize this!

AND LET US MAKE OUR GOVERNMENT REALIZE IT!

The way to stop war is to stop its beginnings! To stifle in their inception policies that breed war! To avoid neglects that invite war!

The safety of the people is the supreme law—salus populi est suprema lex. But the force of this law should be exerted long before it becomes necessary for "the safety of the people" that countless thousands of them should die in war and greater numbers suffer war's burdens and anguish.

Let us as a people perceive that our safety lies in avoiding involvement in the world's conflicts and in a far-sighted and adequate preparation to defend our land and people against the plots or thrusts of enemies, whoever they may be.

This is our clear duty, and it is the supreme law of our national safety!

Art Gains Appreciation

Pittsburghers Show Increasing Interest in the Proposal to Make This a More Beautiful City.

The presentation of a gold medal yesterday to Frank Vittor, the distinguished Pittsburgh sculptor, by Nobile Don Leone Sircana, the royal Italian vice consul, on behalf of his government was a more significant affair than appeared on the surface.

The attendance of a large number of prominent Pittsburghers at the exercises and the remarks made in connection with the presentation bore witness to an increasing appreciation of art.

Especially notable was Edgar J. Kaufmann's appeal for support of the movement to make the downtown business district more beautiful. Like most American cities we have been so preoccupied with commercial pursuits that we have neglected the esthetic. The consequence is that in artistic matters we make a poor comparison with European cities—our public buildings are not so beautiful and we lack the public squares with fountains and statues that add so much to the attractiveness of the Old World capitals.

Our neglect of art was perhaps excusable in the youth of the city, but now that Pittsburgh has grown up it is in order to give some consideration to the beautiful as well as the merely utilitarian.

The work for which Mr. Vittor was honored was a bust of Henry Kaufmann; and that adds to the satisfaction that Pittsburghers must take in the affair, for Mr. Kaufmann, founder of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, is a public benefactor whose good works have brightened the lives of thousands.

A word of comment is also called for by the fact that in expressing appreciation of Mr. Vittor's work and the art of Italy, Edgar Kaufmann, Jr., spoke not only in English but also in purest Tuscan, the tongue of Florence, the literary language of Italy, and the language of all cultured Italians.

An acquaintance with the Italian language is of cultural as well as practical value. French, German and Spanish are taught in the public schools. The question may well be asked if Italian is not also entitled to a place in the curriculum. It is now taught only in some of the night schools.

Certainly, in view of the important part that Americans of Italian descent are taking in our public affairs, and in view of the increasing friendliness between the United States and Italy, as exemplified by the Italian government's bestowal of a medal on a Pittsburgher, familiarity with the beautiful language of that country is an asset well worth possessing.

A Forgotten Man

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A glamorous mile to lay under heel these crisp days is that Park avenue stretch between Fortieth and Sixtieth at 5 p. m. It is not the Champs Elysees in spring but the arched and gaudy girds of lights of the Grand Central Building provide a vista comparable to the Arc de Triomphe.

The Waldorf tea and cocktail rooms are aglow with laughter and music. So are those of the revived Park Lane, across the way. Sherry's too, and Theresa Worthington Grant's. Northward the Ritz Tower, Ambassador and Delmonico's add lustre. As do the fashionable Racquet and Union clubs.

Chinchilla, sable and orchids are in profusion and most luxuriously upholstered limousines are on view. Even the plum liveried footman is restored. There are sidewalk smoking debutantes, collegiates, crisp white mustaches and lorgnetted dowagers.

Recently, for instance, I saw Fannie Hurst, Katharine Hepburn, Miriam Hopkins, M. H. Aylesworth, James Montgomery Flagg, Paul Muni and Paul Block—all within range of a very few blocks. In such a confusion of grandeur the depression seems entirely lost.

New York no longer has what the theatrical profession knows as "tough galleries." Old Hammerstein's had the saltiest. Excellent performers often got the bird. Nothing could be done. Unless a piff-awmer caught the favor of the upper roost he was a sad spectacle. The second roughest was the Colonial on upper Broadway, a vaudeville house then patronized by lads blazing with guttery epithets from Hell's kitchen. George Jessel lasted there in early days just one performance. It broke his heart.

I remember one heartless effort to razz an artist at Hammerstein's. Cruelly enough, Marshall P. Wilder, the dwarfed monologist, was the target. He did not leave the stage. Helplessly, he extended his arms and implored: "Give me five minutes to do my best. If I don't please, hurl the fruit. He gave the performance of his career and wound up in a whirlwind of seven curtain calls.

It was at Hammerstein's, too, I saw Rube Goldberg give his first vaudeville performance—a chalk talk. He was lily white and scared stiff as the orchestra chorded an entrance. But he knew the Hammerstein humor and crossing the stage with a glance to the gallery yelled: "Hello, rough necks!" They loved it, and Rube got a big ovation.

One of the most notable interviews ever given by Leon Trotzky when he was the Red War Lord came nearly being consigned to oblivion. Isaac Marcosson had gone to Moscow especially for the talk. After waiting many days he received a telephone summons at 11 p. m. to come to Trotzky's office in the government building. Trotzky was in a garrulous mood. For five hours he paced up and down delivering momentous observations. They spoke in German and Marcosson took no notes. At daylight the fatigued interviewer started walking briskly to his hotel. On the way he stumbled over a sewer pipe and fell to the ground, badly dazed. When he arose he could remember only one thing—that Trotzky said he was reading a Russian translation of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "Babbitt." For three days he remained in bed nursing his injuries, with a pencil and pad at his side. And slowly fragments of the interview came back bit by bit until he had the finished whole.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I Believe in Today!

I BELIEVE IN TODAY!
I BELIEVE IN THE PEOPLE OF TODAY—AND I'M BETTING ON US MODERNS
AND OUR TIMES.

Those persons
Who are always blubbering
About the Dear Old Days
Give me a
Pain in the neck.
You'd think,
To hear them tell it,
That life was just
A candy heart
For everyone
Prior to 1914.
But that's hooey!

I was born
In the Dear Old Days,
Fifty Years ago;
Grew in them,
Worked in them,
Lived with
Their consequences.
And I'm here to tell you
They weren't good old days;
They were messy old days,
Ignorant, unsanitary,
Silly, dishonest,
Unhappy, unfair old days.

There were lovely things
In those old days—yes,
There were swell times
For some people—yes.
But life for most people
Wasn't swell;
Life for most people
Was hell.
Poor people
Didn't have a chance
In those good old days.
Little children
Worked like slaves
In mills and mines.
Or rotted in tenements.
Mothers died of neglect.
Fathers went mad
From despair.
Parents got by
With murder.
Youngsters grew up
Crippled and bitter
In mind and soul.

And how did it end?
How did all that grabbing
And grouching end?
That selfish hypocrisy,
That sickly sentimentality,
That era of sewers
Covered with rose-wreaths—
How did it end?
It ended
With the cruelest war
The world has ever seen;
It ended with bankruptcy,
Revolution and riots
And general demoralization
That robbed
A whole generation
Of its chance.
That's how
The Dear Old Days ended.
That's what they bought
Our human race—
Hate and heart-break,
Wreckage and shame.
The inevitable pay-off
For centuries of lies.

Now we're in the new days,
The tough days,
The rough days,
The days when life is calling
Every man's bluff.
Pretty speeches?
Pompous pouting?
Special Treats
For Teacher's Pets?
They're all out!

Now it comes—
The show-down;
The show-down for people,
For institutions
And governments.
And what Cain
It's going to raise
With dishonesty
And conceit.

But, thank God, it's here;
For now, at last,
We'll have to come clean
Or go bye-bye;
We'll have to play fair
Or be rubbed out!

And now, maybe,
We'll really have Good Days;
Good Days for everybody:—
For the simple
As well as the smart,
For the weak
As well as the strong,
For the clumsy
As well as the quick;
An equal chance
And a fair break
For all the world!

Rough times?
Tough times?
Sure they are!
Hard times?
Crude times?
And how!
But, thank God,
Honest times,
Brave times,
When we're daring, at last,
To risk the adventure
Of brotherly love.

And so I'm saying—
You can have
Your dear Old Days,
Your Dead old Days,
With their rose-wreaths
And their sewers,
But as for me,
I'M FOR TODAY
AND THE BIG FIGHT OF TODAY AND THE NEW PEOPLE OF TODAY AND I'M BETTING
ON US MODERNS,
AND OUR TIMES!

Human Side of the News

The Passing of the Great Cattle Ranches of the West—The Famous Pony Express

By Edwin C. Hill

THE oldtime cattle business is gone; the great ranches, with few exceptions, have broken up, surrendering to civilization. But it was a part of our national history which is unforgettable. It bred stout-hearted men and courageous women. One sometimes wonders what the American West has gained that really takes its place.

To glance back is like gazing at a mighty panorama. The Overland Trail and the Oregon Trail. A great empire in the making. The prairies black with buffalo as far as the eye could see in any direction. The ceaseless tide of immigrants everlastingly moving toward the setting sun, toward liberty and new opportunity; toward the golden lure of California. The Red Indians, sensing the loss of their lands and the destruction of their tribes. Fighting as heroically as a native people ever fought in the hopeless struggle against the resistless tide that had set in against them.

Ben Holladay and his Overland stage lines, running the greatest transportation system that man ever organized and set in motion, with the great Concord wagons, built in Concord, New Hampshire, pounding across the prairies, fording streams, climbing mountains, carrying the mail from New York to San Francisco in 23 days, driven by the best men that ever cracked a whip around the stubborn ears of a temperamental mule.

But most appealing of all, most romantic of all, the Pony Express riders, swarming across the continent on their speedy ponies, through snow and blizzard, through the burning heat of the desert, through hostile Indians. With them, as with the airmail fliers of this day, there was only one motto: the United States mails must go forward. Nothing must halt them, neither danger nor death itself.

Never before or since has the mail been carried so fast and so far, by horses.

The Pony Express Riders flashed across the prairies and through the mountain passes, from St. Joe, Missouri, to Sacramento, California, carrying Lincoln's first Inaugural Message in seven days and seventeen hours. There were 80 riders and 190 stations, crowded down the throat of the wilderness, 65 to 100 miles apart.

The Pony Express employed 500 of the fastest horses that could be found, lightning-fast thoroughbreds, many of them, from the Kentucky Bluegrass. The riders were picked men, slim, hard and lithe, made of steel and whipcord. They had just two minutes at every station to change horses and mails. The most famous of all of them, was William F. Cody, Buffalo Bill, who set a record that was never approached.

Buffalo Bill's Great Ride

YEARS ago, when this writer used to see Col. Cody riding into the arena of Madison Square Garden on his great golden horse, the Old Indian fighter sitting as straight as an arrow for all of his seventy-odd years, his white hair tumbling to his shoulders and his snow-white mustache and goatee, I thought not so much of the single-handed duel he had with Yellow Hand, the Cheyenne Chief, as of the day he rode the Pony Express 384 miles, without one stop except to change horses and swallow one hasty meal.

When they built the overland telegraph line in 1861 the brief but glorious career of the Pony Express came to an end.

Patrick J. Tucker lays claims to being last of the oldtime cowpunchers, and he makes the Old West live and glow in the pages of his new book, "Riding the High Country."

A simple, genuine human document, which brings back to us the romantic and colorful days of the cattle era.

A Horse Was A Necessity

IN those days a man's horse was almost his life, you know. One day young Pat Tucker, riding his White Bird hoss, was rounding up stock in midsummer in the desert wilderness, miles from anywhere, and came to a stream which tempted him to swim. He shucked his clothes and tied them to his saddle, because the ground was swarming with ants, and he turned White Bird loose to lunch on the abundant grass. He had his swim and climbed out of the waterhole. The rest is the story as Pat Tucker tells it:

"White Bird pointed his ears to the sky and gave a snort. I didn't smell right to him. He circled me three times, then threw up his tail and galloped for the bench land. No hoss, no clothes, 100 in the shade, and no shade! I remembered that if I died I would go straight to heaven, for I was a one clean cowboy. I bowed my neck and took a squaw trot to the top of the bench, and there was my white horse making eyes at his old friend. When I got close to him he gave another snort and lit out on a gallop.

"Fourteen miles to camp, bare feet, prickly pears and no insurance! I was as bare as the day I was hatched, but I was running all the time. I made a bloody trail. The prickly pears were as thick as hairs on a coyote's back, and the sun was taking the tallow out of my backbone. According to the Good Book, God is everywhere, but He wasn't there that day.

"I got to a high ridge and was beginning to spit cotton when I saw the cowboys coming my way. I kept running. When they came up to me I faded like a wild rose. I didn't wake up for two days, and when I came to I was lying on a canvas with flour under me and flour over me.

"I didn't ride any hosses for three months. I traveled in the bed wagon and kept tally on the branded calves. Then one day I shed my skin like a rattlesnake and was as good as new."

Farley's Postal Bank Plan Boon to People

By James T. Williams, Jr.

ONE of the most progressive recommendations in the first annual report of President Roosevelt's Postmaster General will delight the plain people, but will not prove so delectable to some of the bankers.

This is Mr. Farley's recommendation that Congress increase the limit of postal savings balance of each depositor from $2,500 to $5,000.

Other officials of the Roosevelt Administration are said to look with favor upon an extension of the postal savings system to include checking accounts for the hundreds of thousands of small depositors who trust this Federal agency.

A few months ago the administration appeared to be befogged by the financial propaganda against postal savings banks with which certain financial interests and their errand boys in the Federal city have been darkening the horizon.

It was only last October at a meeting of bankers in Fort Worth, Tex., that the Comptroller of the Currency made the astonishing announcement that if the Federal deposit insurance fund should prove successful "Congress would be justified in abandoning or sharply curtailing the postal savings system."

The fear that Mr. O'Connor had any authority to speak for the President in promising such a destruction of so popular an agency as is the postal savings system has now been removed by Postmaster General Farley's clear cut recommendation for expanding the system.

Postal Savings Deposits Increase

FOR many years after the countries of the old world operated successfully postal savings banks, the commercial banks of this country were able, by their influence upon succeeding Congresses to prevent the establishment of such a system in the United States.

Not until the Taft Administration was it possible to overcome the activities of the anti-postal savings banks lobby and get authority from Congress to set up a system of postal savings banks under the Postoffice Department.

Ever since the depression set in, deposits in the postal savings banks throughout the country have been on the increase. On June 30, 1933—the end of the last fiscal year—postal savings totaled twelve hundred and three million, eight hundred and forty-two thousands of dollars. This was an increase of more than four hundred and eight million, four hundred and ninety thousands of dollars over the amount at the end of the preceding fiscal year.

While the Glass banking bill was before the Senate at the last session, another attack was made by powerful financial interests on the postal savings law. But the only amendment accepted by the Congress was one prohibiting the payment of interest on demand deposits. This brought the postal savings system into line with other commercial institutions which were also forbidden to pay interest on demand deposits.

System Wakes Up 'Sleeping Dollars'

THE attempt of the powerful financial interests, which oppose any extension of the postal savings system, to blame that system for some of their own shortcomings was emphatically rebuked by the Third Assistant Postmaster General in a letter to a Southern Senator last May.

Writing to Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, Assistant Postmaster General Eilenberger said:

"To lay the ills of the banking world at the door of the postal saving system is unwarranted. Had it not been for the postal savings system, this country would have been honeycombed with hidden money."

The record proves that the postal savings system has done more to wake up and put to work the "sleeping dollars," which inevitably are removed from circulation and hoarded when banks begin to fail, than all of the federal threats that have been issued to punish hoarders by jailing them.

The files of the Post Office Department are filled with examples that prove the confidence of the plain people of the country in the postal savings system, the funds of which are protected by the federal government's guarantee.

All deposits received by the postal savings system are promptly redeposited in local banks that can satisfy the goverment of their safety.

It took the American people more than half a century to profit by the experience of other countries and set up the postal savings banks in this country. If Congress will extend this system by increasing the limit of deposits not merely to five but to $10,000 or even more, and open up the postal savings banks to checking accounts, the small depositor will no longer be "the forgotten man" in the financial world of the United States.
